South African Visitor

Roseau — Hugh-John Townsend, a 21-year-old agriculturist and farming enthusiast from South Africa, has been visiting in the Roseau community for several weeks. He began his travels in April of 1986, and has been sight-seeing and studying different methods of farming in the U.S. He plans to return to South Africa and further study agriculture and its related fields, considering a career in farming and-or consulting. He stated that one of the greatest differences between farming in Minnesota and South Africa is the level of mechanization. Farmers in South Africa have easy access to a plentiful supply of relatively cheap labor and do not need the mechanization that farmers do in North America.

Hallock — Jerry Olsonawski and his sons saved the life of a bald eagle after the blizzard last weekend. They discovered the young bird floundering in a field on the prairie northwest of Hallock while snowmobiling Sunday, and carefully brought it into their warm garage to recover. Suggestions were offered of purchase of benches, picnic tables and trees or a graveled path on the hike trail.

The Saga Continues

Stangeland Claims Narrow Victory In Congress Contest

Congressman Arlan Stangeland claims that canvassing boards in all 23 counties of his district have certified election results which make him a 121-vote winner over challenger Sen. Collin Peterson 94,024 to 93,903. The margin would take into consideration a reported 100-vote error in a Bemidji precinct.

Sen. Peterson also claims that he will be the election winner and is making plans for establishing an office in Washington, DC, where he can conduct business until the election question is satisfied.

According to Minnesota election procedure, the state canvassing board will meet November 18 and will have three days to certify the results.

"We congratulate the canvass boards, auditors and all election officials for a job well done," stated Heidi Bunkowske, Stangeland's campaign manager. "There are no reports of abnormal irregularities or problems with the election process. This was another clean, well-run election in the Minnesota tradition."

A tabulation of election returns from the 23 counties in the sprawling Seventh District indicates that the congressman carried only nine of the counties and had a commanding edge in only one of those — Wadena, which he carried by 1,056 votes. He carried Otter Tail county by 1,253 votes but there were nearly 20,000 votes cast in that county.

Peterson won in 14 counties — including Pennington and Marshall — and had the biggest plurality in Red Lake county which he carried 1,341 to 784. In Stearns county he had a margin of 1,275 votes but there were over 37,000 votes cast in the county.

Tabulation of the votes in each county as provided by Congressman Stangeland's office is as follows and includes deduction of the reported 100 vote error in Bemidji:

Minneapolis Man Shot Saturday In Hunting Accident

Polk county sheriff's office in Crookston is investigating a hunting accident which happened Saturday morning. The Sheriff's office reports that Ronald Lee Halvorson, 38, Minneapolis, was shot in the upper chest by a member of a different hunting party about 10:30 a.m. Saturday west of Union Lake on state land.

Halvorson is reported in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Riverview hospital in Crookston where he was transported to by ambulance after the accident. Halvorson was apparently in a hollow gutting a deer when he was shot.

The name of the party who shot Halvorson is being withheld pending investigation and formal charges.

Co. Commissioners Learn Of Coal And Pellet Tests

Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel Inc. in Thief River Falls announced to Pennington county commissioners last Wednesday that Argonne National Laboratory of Argonne, IL, was purchasing 300 tons of pellets for tests sponsored by the Federal department of energy.

Nordhagen explained that the tests will involve mixing pellets with coal by using a binder. The binder, calcium hydroxide, is similar to lime. The tests will determine whether mixing pellets with coal will lower dioxine levels and other chemicals emitted from the use of coal.

Dr. Ken Dougherty, professor of chemistry with Northern Texas State University, Dr. Barney J. Venables of TRAC laboratories Inc., Denton, TX, and Oscar O. (Ole) Ohlsson from Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, IL, were at Future Fuel doing some testing on the pellets. The 300 tons of pellets will be transported to Argonne for testing in the Spring.

During the commission meeting Nordhagen also told commissioners that Future Fuel is trying to work with the county, the Minnesota waste management board, Minnesota Pollution control agency and public to clean up metal cans on Future Fuel property. Nordhagen said cans are now being picked up and sent to a landfill. Nordhagen said that in the future a shredder may be used to shred the cans which can then be sold to recycling plants.

Also at the meeting county commissioners learned that their liability insurance carrier will not renew a contract with the county. County Auditor Ken Olson said this means the county will have to start looking for a new insurance carrier.

Sheriff Chuck Richards and Sheriff elect Bob Wold told commissioners that a water main had broken at the law enforcement center and was being repaired. They also asked the council for permission to advertise for a secretary position and another deputy position.

In other business the commissioners filed for an extension on a compost grant and paid its dues of $3,763 for 1987 to the Association of Minnesota counties.

County Board Requests DAC Merger With ODC

Another shoe dropped Tuesday evening in the situation surrounding the Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls when the Pennington county board of commissioners presented the DAC board with a request that it proceed to merge with the Occupational Development center here.

County board chairman Albert Koop read a prepared statement midway through a requested meeting with the DAC board in the courthouse meeting room Tuesday evening. He said the statement had been prepared following lengthy discussion at the county welfare board meeting that afternoon. The county board, with the addition of Mrs. Neal Fox and Mrs. Paul Furuseth, also serves as the welfare board.

"The State Department of Human Service's substantiation of abuse reports concerning the DAC director and the resultant potential loss of the Falls DAC's license by his continuing employment, leads the county board to the conclusion that to avoid loss of our DAC program in Pennington county, the board must attempt to find a different delivery of DAC services," the statement began.

"Because of this, the Pennington county board requests the Falls DAC to proceed to merge with the ODC. Failure to proceed with this recommendation will leave the county board no alternative but to request proposals for new DAC providers," the statement concluded.

Attorney Larry McDowell, representing the DAC board and serving as its primary spokesman Tuesday evening, took exception to the request in the statement as he did earlier in the meeting to the county board's decision to withhold contract funds to the center.

He told the board he believed that once again they had taken an action which would or could adversely affect the DAC, and that they had done so on the basis of unproved allegations and without knowing what action the DAC board would take.

He asked county board members if they had talked to any of the parents of DAC participants to get their feelings. County social services director Gary Erickson responded that parents of the center's clients who were allegedly abused by the director and named in affidavits filed by employees of the center had been contacted.

"Why are you not concerned with the people who are receiving the service?" he asked the board. "It would appear you are acting with total disregard for the participants."

Erickson responded that the merger requested is proposed to strengthen and improve services to the handicapped by consolidating programs for persons with the lowest level of disability to those who are least impaired. He also noted that no contract for 1987 had been proposed by the DAC and that such a proposal is usually received by this time. The county board is concerned about continuity of program, he said.

"I can assure you there will be a director for the DAC," McDowell responded, "but I cannot tell you who it will be. The center has served for 15 years or more uninterrupted and there is no factual basis to believe it will not continue to do so."

Early on in the meeting, when county board chairman Koop noted that the county had withheld funds from the DAC and had invited that board to the meeting to "fill us in on where you are and where you're going," McDowell seized the opportunity to say he was sorry to see that the county board had chosen to act "on rumors heard on the street." He said the DAC board had no intention of modifying its program to participants and was continuing to provide the services for which the county board had contracted.

He reviewed what had transpired in about the past four weeks since it was alleged that DAC director Evan Armstrong had abused clients at the center. He said the director was restricted access to the center while the state department of human services conducted an investigation. A letter from the state was received by the DAC board saying what restrictions were to be imposed.

Sequentially, he said, complaints were filed with the DAC board concerning one of the staff (program gram director Jim Rooker). Because of the nature of the complaint, McDowell said, the board felt that it was best to restrict that individual's access to the center. He was placed on probation and another person hired to fulfill his duties. Following completion of the investigation, the employee was discharged and notified by letter of the reasons. The DAC board has elected not to make those reasons public, he said, but that the employee could do so if he wished.

A lawsuit was then filed by three employees at the center, including the person discharged, requesting damages and reinstatement of the discharged employee. With this suit pending, McDowell said, it was decided to extend the temporary employment of program director rather than to advertise for hiring of a replacement. He said the DAC board undertook its own investigation internally and that it should be completed soon. "At this time the program is continuing and services are being continued," he said.

Johnson Receives Education Award

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Few times in the history of School District 564 have awards for "Friends of Education" been awarded. In fact the last time this award was made was in 1976 and it was made to Jay Borchert. Recently, however, the special award was again presented to a derserving individual.

Children at Mark Twain elementary school in Thief River Falls appear pretty happy about a new addition at Mark Twain. Judy Johnson, parent, also has occasion to smile about the addition. It may not be a new public school but the new addition that has everyone smiling is important to students nonetheless, because playground equipment is important.

Johnson explained that she and Virginia Lee saw a need for more playground equipment at Mark Twain elementary school. Johnson said she first talked to Glen Espe, principal at Mark Twain, and he encouraged them to develop a plan and put it into action.

Johnson said that while she isn't a carpenter or landscape artist, she now knows more about cedar and other construction material for playground equipment than she really wanted to know. She is also thankful that phase one of a three phase project is complete a year after she began, but she realizes only part of the project is complete.

Each phase costs between $6,000 and $7,000. Phase one, Johnson said, became possible because of donations made by the Swenson Foundation, Elda Hanson Memorial fund and the Thief River Falls park and recreation department. Hopefully other organizations will make donations to complete the project.

Besides the smiles on children's faces, one additional plus as Johnson sees it, is the fact that all of the playground equipment was built in Minnesota. The equipment was made in Delano.

Johnson was presented the award Tuesday morning at Mark Twain. She said she was pleased to receive the award but wished Virginia Lee, who moved to Coon Rapids last summer, could share in her happiness and the children's happiness.

'House For Amy' Fund Receives More Donations

Additional donations have been received by A Chance to Grow for the "House for Amy" fund and project at the Larry Killian farm near Plummer. Donations and volunteer efforts resulted in the exterior of the house being built and enclosed with interior work remaining to be done.

Amy Killian, five-year-old brain damaged child of Larry and Diane Killian, is involved in an intensive therapy program including a large number of volunteers. The new home will provide a second story area for use as a therapy center.

Recent donations include carpeting and vinyl flooring by a firm in Plymouth and a number of miscellaneous items such as sink and light fixtures which have been accepted by A Chance to Grow, a group in support of brain damaged children in Minneapolis.

Anyone interested in contributing to the House for Amy fund can send a tax-deductible donation to A Chance to Grow, 5034 Oliver Avenue North, Minneapolis, MN 55407. Donations should be designated for "A House for Amy."

Thursday Will Be Minnesota D-Day

Thursday will be D-Day (Don't Smoke Day") for smokers across the state of Minnesota; a day on which non-smokers are being encouraged to help their smoking friends kick the habit, and smokers are encouraged, even begged, to quit the dangerous habit for just one day. The nationally-known program was begun in Minnesota 12 years ago.

"Most successful quitters have to try more than once, and if a smoker can get through 24 hours, maybe they'll have the courage to keep off the habit for good," state Rick Gustafson, public information chairman for the American Cancer society's Pennington county unit.

Individual non-smokers are asked to lend a helping hand this year and "adopt" a smoking friend or family member for D-Day. By providing encouragement and moral support, a non-smoker can help a smoker through the difficult process of quitting. And smokers will win better health.

Those who adopt a smoker and those who quit using tobacco are both eligible to win a prize in the Minnesota D-Day Quitters' contest. Prizes include a one-week vacation in Florida, courtesy of New Mech companies and the University of Minnesota hospitals, a stereo system from Best Buy company, and a weekend at Quadna Mountain resort. All prizes were donated for the contest. Minnesota D-Day is co-sponsored by the American Cancer society, Minnesota division, and the American Lung association of Minnesota.

Students in Helen Anderson's ninth grade health class at Lincoln high school are participating in the Adopt a Smoker contest this year. They will try to win the stereo system that is offered as the prize for youth who adopt a smoker.

The students have been active in the campaing against smoking by making posters to be displayed in business places around town, encouraging their "adoptees" and others to do their best to quit smoking on D-Day. There will be local first,

Parents Of Clients At DAC Meet With Board On Tuesday

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Parents of clients at the Falls Day Activity center and four of the clients themselves expressed their emotions and opinions at a meeting with the center's board of directors which started about 11:45 a.m. Tuesday in the basement of the Rex cafe.

Except for the Times' representative who had been invited to attend, the meeting was closed to the public and representatives of a television station and out-of-town newspaper who sought entry to the session. Two representatives of Pennington county social services also attended.

LeRoy Larson, chairman of the DAC board, presided at the meeting and invited parents to express their opinions or ask questions of the board. He said that the board could not discuss the reasons for dismissal of program director Jim Rooker because of the lawsuit brought by Rooker and two other employees of the center against the center board.

He said that an investigation is being conducted by the board which involves contacting past employees of the center and that the investigation should be completed soon.

Larson told the parents attending the session that the Times editor had been invited because accounts of recent activities involving the center had been factual in the Times while Grand Forks Herald stories had misquoted sources or used comments out of context. He also had refused to talk to Herald reporters earlier because they had ignored his request that they not interview employees while working at the center to avoid further disruption to clients there. Parents also indicated they were more comfortable with only their hometown newspaper in attendance.

One of the mothers in attendance, who had been informed by a local police officer involved in the investigation that her son had allegedly been abused, said that greater communication is needed between the center board, its staff and parents of clients. "If there was a problem," she said, "I would have liked to know about it."

Another mother suggested that communication is "a two-way street." If there is a problem with a child at home, she said, the parents or guardians should let the center staff know about it. Behavior at one place can be better understood with background about what is happening at another.

One board member complained to one of the social services employees that no DAC board member was involved in the investigation of alleged abuse of clients. "The board doesn't know what is substantiated," he said, "and yet is expected to act appropriately on decisions that can have longstanding effect not only on an individual and his career but on the center and its program."

Armstrong was present at the meeting and for about 40 minutes during which time only board members and parents were permitted to be in attendance answered questions from parents and board members.

Following that discussion period,

There is no limit to the number of students participating from any one school in each contest.

An opening general session for all non-livestock contestants is set for 9 a.m. in Lysaker gymnasium with an awards assembly scheduled from 1 to 2 p.m. also in the gym. Scholarships will be awarded for superior performance in each contest.

Last year over 1,000 students competed in the annual event, according to associate professor of agronomy Marvin P. Mattson, special events chairperson. In addition to local area schools, registrations for this year's Ag activities day have already been received from as far away as Princeton and Minneapolis in Minnesota and from Fessenden, North Dakota.

There is no registration charge, but preregistration is required. Interested persons should call the University's agriculture division at 218-281-6510, ext. 302.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

What kind of a board is running the Day Activity center in Thief River Falls? When the director is accused of abuse by the program director, and the board fires the accuser and not the accused, something is definitely wrong. How many good friends does Mr. Armstrong have on that board? Is the firing of Mr. Rooker a warning to anyone else who dares to speak out?

The board's concern should be for the participants of the D.A.C., not protecting Mr. Armstrong. Will all the charges against Mr. Armstrong be swept under the rug, like so many of the cases of abuse are these days? Evidently your county attorney, Mr. Olin, has done that already.

It seems today in our sick society, that the accuser is made to feel guilty and not the accused. It is no wonder that most people choose not to get involved and turn a deaf ear to any pleas for help. How many years were the participants at the D.A.C. subjected to abuse before these young people came along to speak out in their behalf?

"Don't make waves" seems to be the slogan of most people today. Would we be living in a free country today if our forefathers had been so complacent?

Nancy Melgaard Earns Credits In Co-op Education

Nancy Melgaard of Thief River Falls, a senior at Concordia college in Moorhead, is participating in the college's cooperative education program this fall.

Cooperative education provides students with the opportunity to gain practical experience in their major or minor field of study by working with business and professional firms. Up to two academic credits may be earned while the student explores possible career fields. Most of the 28 academic departments at Concordia participate in this program.

Melgaard, a chemistry and biology double major, is an intern for Dock 222, a consignment, donation and thrift store in Fargo, ND.

She worked in the office, handling the sales and consignment desk, and performing duties such as posting, typing, and making out-checks for consignors. She was also responsible for public relations work such as developing public service announcements and co-writing a brochure, and advertising projects such as the development of a flyer. She is the daughter of Joan Melgaard Stroble of Thief River Falls.

Vaccinations For Taiwan Flu For Only Some Cases

Minnesota Medical association says recent public information regarding the need for Taiwan A influenza shots has been confusing and incorrect.

Some recent reports have incorrectly stated everyone under the age of 35 should get the vaccination for this new strain of influenza. The vaccine is recommended for those under 35 with specific health problems.

Those problems include:

Lung ailments, including asthma or emphysema.

Heart problems such as heart failure or heart defects.

A deficient immune system that causes the body to be less resistant to disease. This includes cancer patients and those patients receiving drug therapy. Health officials also recommend the Taiwan A vaccination for AIDS patients.

Diabetes and possibly some cases of anemia.

Health officials are not sure the Taiwan A strain will hit the U.S. this flu season, however, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta suggests susceptible portions of the population should receive the vaccine.

The Taiwan A vaccine has arrived in Minnesota, and it will become widely available through private physicians later in the month and through December.

Thanksgiving Is Most Dangerous Holiday Weekend

Thanksgiving weekend, this year from 6 p.m. Wednesday, November 26, until midnight Sunday, November 30, is one of the most dangerous in terms of motor vehicle accidents, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Last year on the 102-hour Thanksgiving weekend, eight people in Minnesota lost their lives in motor vehicle accidents. In addition another 705 were injured during the period.

"It is unfortunate and often tragic that our first winter storms in Minnesota often come during the Thanksgiving weekend, when neither cars nor drivers are prepared," Tschida said. He asks motorists to get their vehicles ready for winter driving as a first step before planning a Thanksgiving trip.

Additional reminders for the holiday weekend include getting plenty of rest, scheduling a trip sensibly so that drivers are not exhausted, taking frequent breaks and changing drivers every several hours. Also, if a severe winter storm is in progress, the best advice is to postpone or cancel the trip.

Livestock Housing And Ventilation Workshop Slated

A livestock housing and ventilation workshop is scheduled for Tuesday, November 25, in the Newfolden community center at 1:30 p.m.

Special emphasis will be given to ~~alternative~~ dairy barn use due to the dairy buyout program according to Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director.

Larry Jacobson, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Minnesota, will be present to discuss factors of building uses and changes necessary to make alternative uses of present structures.

Livestock producers, whether using dairy buyout or active producers, are encouraged to bring their housing and ventilation questions. Plenty of time will be available for interaction with Jacobson, Thompson said.

Emergency Funds Established For Crime Victims

Minnesota's victims of crime will have a new source of assistance if sponsors of a legislative initiative are successful in their efforts to establish a law enforcement crime victims fund.

The initiative proposes to make emergency cash assistance available immediately to crime victims through local law enforcement agencies. This is something not possible under present law governing the Crime victims reparations board. The board does provide and will continue to provide financial assistance to victims but can do so only after required deliberation and case documentation. The new measure is being sponsored by Minnesota House member Representative Randy Kelly of St. Paul.

Kelly said, "The proposed fund will enable police officers to respond compassionately to the safety needs of victims," something law enforcement agencies have long felt an obligation to do according to H. Michael Carr, sheriff of Wadena county. "But, often we have not been given positive ways in which to assist victims." Carr is a member of the crime victims reparation board.

Victims of crime often find themselves with emergency needs for replacement of locks, repair of screens, transportation to or from medical care or shelter, or simple cash assistance to buy necessities if they have been robbed. Under the proposed law, every law enforcement jurisdiction in the state would be permitted to apply for, and establish a fund which would allow immediate cash assistance to be provided to crime victims twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week.

The fund will be administered by the crime victims reparations board with money coming from the collection of surcharges on traffic fines currently earmarked for the board of Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST).

Perpich Names Speer To Head Minnesota DEED

Governor Rudy Perpich announced that David J. Speer, co-founder and president of the largest public relations firm in the Minnesota region will head the state department of energy and economic development (DEED).

Speer, 59, Golden Valley, will succeed Mark Dayton, 39, who announced his resignation November 5 as head of the state's business development agency. Dayton had been appointed by Perpich in 1983 following an unsuccessful U.S. Senate campaign.

Speer's appointment will be effective December 15, the same date as Dayton's resignation.

Speer is co-founder of Padilla and Speer, Inc., which is marking its 25th anniversary this year. He said he will take an indefinite leave of absence from the firm.

Padilla and Speer has two contracts with the state, both with DEED. One is to publicize a study, the other to produce a publication on computer software. Speer said he will accept the advice of attorneys on whether the contracts must be ended immediately or when they expire.

DEED is an agency with 224 employees and a current budget of $27.7 million a year. Under state law, a salary between $50,000 and $60,000 can be paid to the DEED commissioner.

Dayton announced his resignation at the governor's post-election news conference in Hibbing, saying he wants to spend more time with his two sons.

Conversion Of Dairy Barn Topic At Newfolden

What to do with dairy barns emptied in the dairy buyout program will be the topic of a meeting being held in Newfolden Monday at 1:30 p.m. in the community center.

Larry Jacobson, University of Minnesota ag engineer, will discuss what changes would need to be made or could economically be made to barns that are now empty.

Options would include conversion to hog, sheep or beef production facilities, ranging from a loafing barn to a farrow to finish facility. Producers may wish to convert the barns to grain storage and will need to look at reinforcement and perhaps aeration.

Everyone is welcome to attend regardless if they are in the buyout or not, and are encouraged to do so.

cancer answers

Q: My husband has been smoking a pack of cigarettes a day for over 20 years. I am very worried about him getting lung cancer. Would the chewing gum with nicotine make him quit?

A: You are right to be concerned about your husband's smoking. Heavy smokers have about 23 times greater chance of developing lung cancer than nonsmokers and put themselves at increased risks for many other diseases as well.

The nicotine-spiked gum you refer to is called "Nicorette" and is available by prescription only. It will not make anyone stop smoking, but studies have found that it doubles the success rate for those quitting smoking when used with a program of support and counseling. The gum is used to wean smokers off nicotine while they break their old smoking behavior patterns.

Because the nicotine in cigarettes is addictive, many heavy smokers suffer withdrawal symptoms when they first quit. These include mood swings, irritability, difficulty concentrating, restleness and impatience.

By removing these unpleasant symptoms, the gum can help smokers concentrate on changing their habits. Each piece contains two milligrams of nicotine, or approximately as much as one cigarette. The chewing gum releases the nicotine slowly over a period of 20 to 30 minutes, producing a level of nicotine in the blood similar to the results of smoking a cigarette.

Minor side effects of the gum include hiccups, sore throat, transient mouth ulcers and upset stomach. The gum itself is not addictive.

Ask your husband's doctor for more information about Nicorette gum. The Cancer Information Service can also send you free booklets on how to quit smoking. Call the CIS toll free, 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: I have managed to quit smoking at work but I still get the urge to light up whenever I drink alcohol or when I'm finished with dinner. I think I can remain a nonsmoker from 9 to 5 but I need help quitting smoking around the clock.

A: You've already completed the first step to being a full-time nonsmoker by identifying the activities which trigger your urge to smoke — in your case, eating and drinking alcohol. The key to developing the nonsmoking habit is to learn to deal with these urges without giving in to them.

Here are seven major coping skills to help you fight the urge to smoke:

(1) Review your reasons for quitting.

Write down all the reasons you stopped smoking. Then look at the list several times a day — particularly when you're hit with the urge to smoke.

(2) Know when you are rationalizing.

It's easy for a new nonsmoker in a tense situation to think, "I'll just have one cigarette to calm myself down." If thoughts like this pop into your head, stop yourself. Realize there are better ways to relax and choose one of these alternatives.

(3) Anticipate triggers and prepare in advance how to avoid them.

If alcohol triggers your desire to smoke, try cutting down on drinking alcohol. Avoid smoking places — ask to be seated in the nonsmoking section of restaurants and planes. Try putting something other than a cigarette in your mouth. You may enjoy chewing sugarless gum after dinner instead of smoking.

(4) Reward yourself for not smoking.

Congratulate yourself each time you get through the day without smoking. After one week, treat yourself to something you enjoy. It will remind you of the fact that what you're doing is important.

(5) Use positive thoughts.

Keep reminding yourself how far you have come and how much you have accomplished. Tell yourself that you do not smoke nor do you want to.

(6) Use relaxation techniques to help you cope with urges to smoke.

Breathing exercises help you reduce tension. Instead of having a cigarette, take a long deep breath, count to 10 and release it. Repeat five times and see how relaxed you feel.

(7) Seek social support.

The commitment to remain a nonsmoker can be made easier by talking about it with friends and relatives. They can help you celebrate the daily milestones and can be counted on to talk you out of a cigarette when you have an urge.

If you do slip and have a cigarette, recognize that it is a small setback. It doesn't mean you've become a smoker. But you must do something to prevent that from happening. For more information on maintaining the nonsmoking habit, call the cancer information service toll-free 1-800-4-CANCER and ask for a copy of the fact sheet entitled, "You've Kicked the Smoking Habit. . .For Good."

County Board Requests DAC To Merge With ODC

The question was asked if Evan Armstrong was a member of the DAC board of directors. The answer was that he had been a member but had recently resigned from the board. It was further pointed out that bylaws of the organization provide for the director to be a non-voting member of the board.

Asked how the DAC board was selected, board chairman LeRoy Larson indicated that it is filled through a committee system of the board itself.

"Hand picked," commissioner Koop commented. "That's your term," McDowell countered. He said that many religious and non-profit groups function under a similar system of board member selection.

McDowell said he had no quarrel with the board's suggestion that it seek bids for DAC services, but he said the board should set out a specific set of requirements "for what you intend to buy. Are you just looking for some place for these people to go or do you intend to provide a program of some benefit to them?"

In discussion of costs of center operation, McDowell said he understood that the center's pulltab operations under the state's charitable gaming laws produced about $75,000 last year. Social services director Erickson noted that this was substantially more than the DAC's 1986 budget projection of $27,000. DAC board chairman LeRoy Larson said that at the time the projection was made the center had fewer than the five or six locations where it presently has charitable gambling operations.

If pulltab funds that far in excess of budget have been taken in, county board chairman Koop asked, why was it necessary to cut back on salaries of employees? (The DAC board reduced salaries of employees by 23 per cent when county funding was withheld, stating it was equivalent to the county's contribution to the center's operations.)

The DAC board elected not to spend money it might not receive, McDowell said. "You have a contract with the DAC which calls for provision of service," McDowell told the county board. "The DAC has been providing that service as called for in the contract. I can see no provision in the contract for withholding of funds."

County commissioner Don Grabanski took issue with McDowell's contention that the county board had acted on assumption. He said he was not making an assumption and that he would make up his mind when the audit of the DAC is completed.

"To do what?" McDowell asked. "You only have two choices — to give the center the money or not give it the money. The DAC has reason to believe it might not get the money and therefore has elected not to spend it." Grabanski had introduced the board resolution to withhold funds.

County commissioner Roger Hoffman said that the board's decision to withhold funds was made because the state department of human services did substantiate the allegations that were made against the director, and he wanted that point clarified. Commissioner Skip Swanson added that any proposals received for providing DAC service would have to be fully state licensable to be considered.

Peter Lavalier, executive director of the occupational development center, said that conversations have been conducted between the DAC and ODC concerning merger and that both believe there are benefits to be derived. He said the ODC board would be pleased to consider a merger which could be be accomplished without dissolving the DAC board.

Commission chairman Koop asked if the time spent by Armstrong in directing the DAC's charitable gaming operation didn't leave him with little time to serve as director of the facility. LeRoy Larson said that was one of the reasons a program director had been hired for the center.

Indications were given that the DAC board intended to come to some decision at its meeting Thursday — the end of the 30-day period stipulated by the state department of human services in which the DAC board must implement a plan of action in regard to the director.

four clients at the center were given an opportunity to make their observations to the board and answer questions from board members and parents. They said they missed Armstrong at the center and wanted him to get back soon. They were upset by the turmoil and change surrounding the center and complained about attitude and comments by staff members there.

Under questioning regarding what they had seen and experienced, none said they had ever been struck by the director or abused by him, and none had seen him hit anyone else. One, however, said he had seen Armstrong sit on one of the clients when he misbehaved.

Among questions expressed by parents at the meeting were two which seemed to be recurring: If there were cases of abuse of clients over the past couple of years, why weren't they reported when they occurred and the parents or guardians notified? And if the abuse occurred, why didn't one or more of the clients talk about it at home?

Like so many other questions surrounding the DAC center situation, there seem to be no ready answers.

The number of families maintained by women grew almost 90 per cent between 1970 and 1985. The growth is attributed largely to more marriages ending in divorce and more women having children without marrying, according to a fact sheet on working women published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

No Smoke Over D-Day Thursday In Minnesota

second and third prize winners for the best posters.

Most of the students have already signed up their smoker "adoptees," and have made special plans on how to help their smokers to kick the habit with phone calls and visits of encouragement, gifts of fruit or nutritious goodies to replace the cigarettes, or more drastic measures such as hiding ashtrays.

Elementary students will also be participating in the D-Day against smoking with activities accenting the hazards of smoking planned for each grade. Kindergartners will discuss the "Breath of Life" with a candle flame-oxygen demonstration in their classroom; first graders are going to "Jump for Joy" and talk about the physical effects of smoking; second and third grade teachers will discuss how much money is involved with the habit in second grade "Fun Money" and third grade "Money to Burn." Fourth graders will compose "A Letter To Myself" about their own good qualities and the negative aspects of smoking, and fifth graders are creating "Flags For Freedon" to celebrate their freedom from a tobacco habit.

D-Day is an effort to promote a tobacco-free lifestyle across the state, and is part of the nationwide "Great American Smokeout." It is a fun, creative way for all of Minnesota to say "we want to be tobacco free," and quit the habit for their health's sake.

Eken Predicts 1987 To Be Year Of Opportunity

1987 will be "a year of opportunity" for family farmers, according to Minnesota Farmers Union president, Willis Eken.

Eken says his organization will concentrate on taking advantage of that opportunity during its 45th annual state convention latr this month. Theme for the convention is "MFU — On the Move".

"This is an appropriate theme because the actions of our organization and membership in the past year have contributed mightily to opening the door of opportunity for change in federal agricultural policy," Eken said.

Eken listed the USDA poll of wheat producers, legislation passed in Minnesota, the introduction of new federal legislation, and recent election results as significant factors in potential change in federal farm policy.

"Farmers first demanded change by voting in favor of supply management in the poll of wheat producers," Eken continued, "and then they rejected current federal policy by sending many of the supporters of that policy packing in the recent election."

Eken is confident the new leadership in Congress will be more willing to address the real concerns of family farmers and rural communities starting with consideration of the Harkin-Gephart "Save the Family Farm Act," much of which, he says, is patterned after the Minnesota omnibus farm act passed by the legislature last spring with the backing of MFU.

"Farmers are suffering with falling prices and massive overproduction, and current policy only encourages more of the same," Eken said. "At this year's convention we will concentrate on taking the next step and affecting real change in farm policy."

About 350 delegates from around the state will meet at the convention to write MFU's 1987 policy statement and conduct other business. Several state and national agricultural experts will address the convention November 23 and 24 at the Prom Center in St. Paul.

Another convention highlight will be the "Farmer's Share Lunch" at noon, Monday the 24. Delegates will be served a lunch of Minnesota food products and pay only the price farmers actually receive for the products.

The convention opens at 12:30 p.m. Sunday and will adjourn at 3 p.m. Monday, November 24.

Omnibus Water Resources Bill Signed Into Law

In a ceremony at the White House Monday, Congressman Arlan Stangeland joined President Reagan and fellow congressmen in signing into law H.R. 6, the omnibus water resourcesdevelopment bill.

"This legislation will halt the decline in federal spending on the Corps of Engineers civil works programs and chart a bold and innovative course toward a more efficient and environmentally sound water resources infrastructure" said Stangeland, a member of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee and ranking minority member of the sub-committee on Water Resources.

The bill provides authorization of projects to upgrade the nation's inland and coastal navigation systems, promote conservation and enhancement of environmental resources and conservation and secure protection from erosion and flooding.

Of particular concern to many residents of Minnesota's Seventh District are the strong environmental protections within the new legislation. One of these establishes a $35 million environmental protection mitigation fund, to make certain that fish and wildlife losses caused by a water resource project will be properly mitigated.

An office of environmental policy will be established within the Corps of Engineers to formulate, coordinate and carry out corps policy on environmental quality and water projects.

Water Quality Is Topic For Basin Summit Meeting

Water quality is the topic of the fourth annual Red River basin land and water international summit conference to be held November 20-21 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

North Dakota and Minnesota health departments and Manitoba department of environment will be available for water testing at the conference sponsored by the international coalition for land and water stewardship in the Red River basin. Bring a sample of your drinking water in a clean jar and have your state lab test it.

Another special interest feature at this year's conference will be a water management simulator provided by Montana state university. This computer model will give you an opportunity to be a water manager, solving water problems and then seeing the results of your decisions.

Groundwater models will be set up by the Minnesota department of natural resources and Manitoba department of environment. These models will demonstrate how groundwater moves, interacts with surface water and becomes poluted.

An array of local, state and federal management professionals will give presentations on water quality issues throughout the two day conference. Citizen input will be essential in prioratizing and developing solutions to basin-wide water problems, said coalition president Lance Yohe.

"Everyone has a stake in the issue of water quality. It affects each of us as well as future generations," Yohe said. "Everyone should become more aware of this topic and a way to do this is by participating in the conference."

A $40 full conference participation fee includes two breakfasts, two luncheons, a banquet, refreshments and materials. General participation admission is $10. For more information or to pre-register contact The International Coalition, Box 772, Moorhead, MN, 56560, (218) 233-0292.

Q: My husband has been smoking a pack of cigarettes a day for over 20 years. I am very worried about him getting lung cancer. Would the chewing gum with nicotine make him quit?

A: You are right to be concerned about your husband's smoking. Heavy smokers have about 23 times greater chance of developing lung cancer than nonsmokers and put themselves at increased risks for many other diseases as well.

The nicotine-spiked gum you refer to is called "Nicorette" and is available by prescription only. It will not make anyone stop smoking, but studies have found that it doubles the success rate for those quitting smoking when used with a program of support and counseling. The gum is used to wean smokers off nicotine while they break their old smoking behavior patterns.

Because the nicotine in cigarettes is addictive, many heavy smokers suffer withdrawal symptoms when they first quit. These include mood swings, irritability, difficulty concentrating, restleness and impatience.

By removing these unpleasant symptoms, the gum can help smokers concentrate on changing their habits. Each piece contains two milligrams of nicotine, or approximately as much as one cigarette. The chewing gum releases the nicotine slowly over a period of 20 to 30 minutes, producing a level of nicotine in the blood similar to the results of smoking a cigarette.

Minor side effects of the gum include hiccups, sore throat, transient mouth ulcers and upset stomach. The gum itself is not addictive.

Ask your husband's doctor for more information about Nicorette gum. The Cancer Information Service can also send you free booklets on how to quit smoking. Call the CIS toll free, 1-800-4-CANCER.

Q: I have managed to quit smoking at work but I still get the urge to light up whenever I drink alcohol or when I'm finished with dinner. I think I can remain a nonsmoker from 9 to 5 but I need help quitting smoking around the clock.

A: You've already completed the first step to being a full-time nonsmoker by identifying the activities which trigger your urge to smoke — in your case, eating and drinking alcohol. The key to developing the nonsmoking habit is to learn to deal with these urges without giving in to them.

Here are seven major coping skills to help you fight the urge to smoke:

(1) Review your reasons for quitting.

Write down all the reasons you stopped smoking. Then look at the list several times a day — particularly when you're hit with the urge to smoke.

(2) Know when you are rationalizing.

It's easy for a new nonsmoker in a tense situation to think, "I'll just have one cigarette to calm myself down." If thoughts like this pop into your head, stop yourself. Realize there are better ways to relax and choose one of these alternatives.

(3) Anticipate triggers and prepare in advance how to avoid them.

If alcohol triggers your desire to smoke, try cutting down on drinking alcohol. Avoid smoking places — ask to be seated in the nonsmoking section of restaurants and planes. Try putting something other than a cigarette in your mouth. You may enjoy chewing sugarless gum after dinner instead of smoking.

(4) Reward yourself for not smoking.

Congratulate yourself each time you get through the day without smoking. After one week, treat yourself to something you enjoy. It will remind you of the fact that what you're doing is important.

(5) Use positive thoughts.

Keep reminding yourself how far you have come and how much you have accomplished. Tell yourself that you do not smoke nor do you want to.

(6) Use relaxation techniques to help you cope with urges to smoke.

Breathing exercises help you reduce tension. Instead of having a cigarette, take a long deep breath, count to 10 and release it. Repeat five times and see how relaxed you feel.

(7) Seek social support.

The commitment to remain a nonsmoker can be made easier by talking about it with friends and relatives. They can help you celebrate the daily milestones and can be counted on to talk you out of a cigarette when you have an urge.

If you do slip and have a cigarette, recognize that it is a small setback. It doesn't mean you've become a smoker. But you must do something to prevent that from happening. For more information on maintaining the nonsmoking habit, call the cancer information service toll-free 1-800-4-CANCER and ask for a copy of the fact sheet entitled, "You've Kicked the Smoking Habit. . .For Good."

The question was asked if Evan Armstrong was a member of the DAC board of directors. The answer was that he had been a member but had recently resigned from the board. It was further pointed out that bylaws of the organization provide for the director to be a non-voting member of the board.

Asked how the DAC board was selected, board chairman LeRoy Larson indicated that it is filled through a committee system of the board itself.

"Hand picked," commissioner Koop commented. "That's your term," McDowell countered. He said that many religious and non-profit groups function under a similar system of board member selection.

McDowell said he had no quarrel with the board's suggestion that it seek bids for DAC services, but he said the board should set out a specific set of requirements "for what you intend to buy. Are you just looking for some place for these people to go or do you intend to provide a program of some benefit to them?"

In discussion of costs of center operation, McDowell said he understood that the center's pulltab operations under the state's charitable gaming laws produced about $75,000 last year. Social services director Erickson noted that this was substantially more than the DAC's 1986 budget projection of $27,000. DAC board chairman LeRoy Larson said that at the time the projection was made the center had fewer than the five or six locations where it presently has charitable gambling operations.

If pulltab funds that far in excess of budget have been taken in, county board chairman Koop asked, why was it necessary to cut back on salaries of employees? (The DAC board reduced salaries of employees by 23 per cent when county funding was withheld, stating it was equivalent to the county's contribution to the center's operations.)

The DAC board elected not to spend money it might not receive, McDowell said. "You have a contract with the DAC which calls for provision of service," McDowell told the county board. "The DAC has been providing that service as called for in the contract. I can see no provision in the contract for withholding of funds."

County commissioner Don Grabanski took issue with McDowell's contention that the county board had acted on assumption. He said he was not making an assumption and that he would make up his mind when the audit of the DAC is completed.

"To do what?" McDowell asked. "You only have two choices — to give the center the money or not give it the money. The DAC has reason to believe it might not get the money and therefore has elected not to spend it." Grabanski had introduced the board resolution to withhold funds.

County commissioner Roger Hoffman said that the board's decision to withhold funds was made because the state department of human services did substantiate the allegations that were made against the director, and he wanted that point clarified. Commissioner Skip Swanson added that any proposals received for providing DAC service would have to be fully state licensable to be considered.

Peter Lavalier, executive director of the occupational development center, said that conversations have been conducted between the DAC and ODC concerning merger and that both believe there are benefits to be derived. He said the ODC board would be pleased to consider a merger which could be be accomplished without dissolving the DAC board.

Commission chairman Koop asked if the time spent by Armstrong in directing the DAC's charitable gaming operation didn't leave him with little time to serve as director of the facility. LeRoy Larson said that was one of the reasons a program director had been hired for the center.

Indications were given that the DAC board intended to come to some decision at its meeting Thursday — the end of the 30-day period stipulated by the state department of human services in which the DAC board must implement a plan of action in regard to the director.

four clients at the center were given an opportunity to make their observations to the board and answer questions from board members and parents. They said they missed Armstrong at the center and wanted him to get back soon. They were upset by the turmoil and change surrounding the center and complained about attitude and comments by staff members there.

Under questioning regarding what they had seen and experienced, none said they had ever been struck by the director or abused by him, and none had seen him hit anyone else. One, however, said he had seen Armstrong sit on one of the clients when he misbehaved.

Among questions expressed by parents at the meeting were two which seemed to be recurring: If there were cases of abuse of clients over the past couple of years, why weren't they reported when they occurred and the parents or guardians notified? And if the abuse occurred; why didn't one or more of the clients talk about it at home?

Like so many other questions surrounding the DAC center situation, there seem to be no ready answers.

The number of families maintained by women grew almost 90 per cent between 1970 and 1985. The growth is attributed largely to more marriages ending in divorce and more women having children without marrying, according to a fact sheet on working women published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

second and third prize winners for the best posters.

Most of the students have already signed up their smoker "adoptees," and have made special plans on how to help their smokers to kick the habit with phone calls and visits of encouragement, gifts of fruit or nutritious goodies to replace the cigarettes, or more drastic measures such as hiding ashtrays.

Elementary students will also be participating in the D-Day against smoking with activities accenting the hazards of smoking planned for each grade. Kindergartners will discuss the "Breath of Life" with a candle flame-oxygen demonstration in their classroom; first graders are going to "Jump for Joy" and talk about the physical effects of smoking; second and third grade teachers will discuss how much money is involved with the habit in second grade "Fun Money" and third grade "Money to Burn." Fourth graders will compose "A Letter To Myself" about their own good qualities and the negative aspects of smoking, and fifth graders are creating "Flags For Freedon" to celebrate their freedom from a tobacco habit.

D-Day is an effort to promote a tobacco-free lifestyle across the state, and is part of the nationwide "Great American Smokeout." It is a fun, creative way for all of Minnesota to say "we want to be tobacco free," and quit the habit for their health's sake.

Eken Predicts 1987 To Be Year Of Opportunity

1987 will be "a year of opportunity" for family farmers, according to Minnesota Farmers Union president, Willis Eken.

Eken says his organization will concentrate on taking advantage of that opportunity during its 45th annual state convention latr this month. Theme for the convention is "MFU — On the Move".

"This is an appropriate theme because the actions of our organization and membership in the past year have contributed mightily to opening the door of opportunity for change in federal agricultural policy," Eken said

Eken listed the USDA poll of wheat producers, legislation passed in Minnesota, the introduction of new federal legislation, and recent election results as significant factors in potential change in federal farm policy.

"Farmers first demanded change by voting in favor of supply management in the poll of wheat producers," Eken continued, "and then they rejected current federal policy by sending many of the supporters of that policy packing in the recent election."

Eken is confident the new leadership in Congress will be more willing to address the real concerns of family farmers and rural communities starting with consideration of the Harkin-Gephart "Save the Family Farm Act," much of which, he says, is patterned after the Minnesota omnibus farm act passed by the legislature last spring with the backing of MFU.

"Farmers are suffering with falling prices and massive overproduction, and current policy only encourages more of the same," Eken said. "At this year's convention we will concentrate on taking the next step and affecting real change in farm policy."

About 350 delegates from around the state will meet at the convention to write MFU's 1987 policy statement and conduct other business. Several state and national agricultural experts will address the convention November 23 and 24 at the Prom Center in St. Paul.

Another convention highlight will be the "Farmer's Share Lunch" at noon, Monday the 24. Delegates will be served a lunch of Minnesota food products and pay only the price farmers actually receive for the products.

The convention opens at 12:30 p.m. Sunday and will adjourn at 3 p.m. Monday, November 24.

Omnibus Water Resources Bill Signed Into Law

In a ceremony at the White House Monday, Congressman Arlan Stangeland joined President Reagan and fellow congressmen in signing into law H.R. 6, the omnibus water resourcesdevelopment bill.

"This legislation will halt the decline in federal spending on the Corps of Engineers civil works programs and chart a bold and innovative course toward a more efficient and environmentally sound water resources infrastructure" said Stangeland, a member of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee and ranking minority member of the sub-committee on Water Resources.

The bill provides authorization of projects to upgrade the nation's inland and coastal navigation systems, promote conservation and enhancement of environmental resources and conservation and secure protection from erosion and flooding.

Of particular concern to many residents of Minnesota's Seventh District are the strong environmental protections within the new legislation. One of these establishes a $35 million environmental protection mitigation fund, to make certain that fish and wildlife losses caused by a water resource project will be properly mitigated.

An office of environmental policy will be established within the Corps of Engineers to formulate, coordinate and carry out corps policy on environmental quality and water projects.

Water Quality Is Topic For Basin Summit Meeting

Water quality is the topic of the fourth annual Red River basin land and water international summit conference to be held November 20-21 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

North Dakota and Minnesota health departments and Manitoba department of environment will be available for water testing at the conference sponsored by the international coalition for land and water stewardship in the Red River basin. Bring a sample of your drinking water in a clean jar and have your state lab test it.

Another special interest feature at this year's conference will be a water management simulator provided by Montana state university. This computer model will give you an opportunity to be a water manager, solving water problems and then seeing the results of your decisions.

Groundwater models will be set up by the Minnesota department of natural resources and Manitoba department of environment. These models will demonstrate how groundwater moves, interacts with surface water and becomes poluted.

An array of local, state and federal management professionals will give presentations on water quality issues throughout the two day conference. Citizen input will be essential in prioratizing and developing solutions to basin-wide water problems, said coalition president Lance Yohe.

"Everyone has a stake in the issue of water quality. It affects each of us as well as future generations," Yohe said. "Everyone should become more aware of this topic and a way to do this is by participating in the conference."

A $40 full conference participation fee includes two breakfasts, two luncheons, a banquet, refreshments and materials. General participation admission is $10. For more information or to pre-register contact The International Coalition, Box 772, Moorhead, MN, 56560, (218) 233-0292.

Pioneers Earn Football Awards

Three Northland Community College football players were named to the 1986 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division All-Conference team, and Pioneers head coach Rick Nelson earned Coach of the Year honors as post-season awards were announced this week.

Offensive tackle Regie Berger, wide receiver Scott Groven and defensive lineman Anthony McCullough were Northland players named to the Northern Division All-Conference team — consisting of players from the MCCC Northwest and Northeast Divisions.

Berger is a 6-3, 200-pound freshman from Dilworth; Groven is a 5-9, 175-pound sophomore from Goodridge; and McCullough is a 6-4, 255-pound sophomore from Canton, OH.

Nelson, in his third year at Northland guided the Pioneers to their first-ever Northwest Division title this fall with a school-beat 5-3 regular season record. The Pioneers lost to eventual state champion Vermilion 28-13 in the MCCC playoff semifinals. Nelson, whose teams went 1-7 in both his first and second year at the Thief River Falls school, gave credit for the Pioneers' finish and his Coach of the Year award to the players and assistant coaches Paul Williams, Kevin Schuman and Steve Bengston.

Four Northland players were given MCCC Northern Division All-Conference honorable mention status — Tim Wayne, a 6-2, 185-pound sophomore defensive end from Goodridge; Jeff Johnson, a 6-1, 240-pound sophomore defensive tackle from Thief River Falls; Dean Brandon, a 5-9, 165-pound sophomore wide receiver from Thief River Falls; and Steve Ristau, a 5-10, 195-pound freshman runningback from East Grand Forks.

Linebackers Steve Wiskow of Thief River Falls and Mike Stennes of Erskine were also nominated for all-conference consideration by the Northland coaches.

In addition to the all-conference honors, the 1986 National Junior College Athletic Association All-Region 13 post-season listing announced this week included the names of McCullough, the top-rated defensive player in the five-state area Region 13, Groven and Ristau, an all-region choice even though he did not beat out the top three vote-getters in the all-conference balloting.

Forsberg-Aune Trying To Be Cross Country All-American

Kristy Forsberg-Aune, the top runner on the University of North Dakota women's cross country team, plans to become the first female cross country All-American in UND's history, according to Kathy Howe, assistant UND Sports Information Director.

The first step came in the North Central Conference and Regional meet held in Fargo Nov. 8. The top three individual women and top two women's teams advance to national competition.

Forsberg-Aune finished fifth in the regional meet qualifying her for the NCAA II nationals to be held Saturday at California State University-Riverside.

Forsberg-Aune advanced by virtue of finishing fifth in the regional meet. The top three individuals advanced but since three of the top five were from qualifying teams Forsberg-Aune was the second runner to qualify on an individual basis, explained Howe.

This will be Forsberg-Aune's second appearance at the national meet. Last season she finished 59th but has visions of finishing in the top 25 this year which would give her All-American status.

Forsberg-Aune

According to Forsberg-Aune she was disappointed with her finish last season. "I was intimidated by those national competitors," Forsberg-Aune, a Thief River Falls native, told Howe. "All the runners were big. When they took the picture of the All-Americans, they were really built."

"This year I want it," she said. I have more self-confidence. This year I won't be so scared," added Forsberg-Aune. According to her coach Dick Clay, "She knows she's good enough to make All-American. She's so much more mature as an athlete."

Swimmers Name Tri-Captains

Pete Kuyath, Heidi Tofte and Christy Puetz, juniors on this year's team, were named tri-captains of the 1987 Thief River Falls swimming team at the Prowlers' annual season-ending banquet Monday.

They will succeed graduating senior co-captains Laura Beito and Brenda Russell as leaders of next year's high school girls swim team.

Special awards for the recently-completed 1986 season went to Russell, named the Prowlers' most improved swimmer, and Puetz, who earned hardest worker and most valuable honors.

Athletic letters were presented by Thief River Falls coaches Jay Forney and Angie Sinn to seniors Gayle Borchert, Marci Turenne, Michelle Turenne, Russell and Beito; juniors Jenny Nelson, Kuyath, Puetz and Tofte; sophomores Karla Espe and Denise Kiesow; freshman Colleen Belmont; eighth graders Dionne Ammerman, Heidi Gunderson and Jennifer Ness; and student managers Paul Giauque and Shon Thompson.

Thief River Falls went 7-2 in dual meet competition this fall, won a six-team Park Rapids Invitational, won an eight-team Grand Forks Invitational, won a triangular against Grand Forks Red River and Central, placed third in the 12-team Fargo Shanley relays, third in a nine-team Fargo South Invitational, third in an early-season triangular with Moorhead and Alexandria and wound up sixth in the season-ending ten-team Section 8 meet.

Twelve Prowlers participated in the Section 8 meet, but none of them were able to reach the state meet.

"They (Prowlers) did a super job this year," pointed out Forney, whose season highlights included a rare dual meet win over Moorhead, along with first-ever championship efforts at the Park Rapids and Grand Forks Invitationals.

"For not knowing what we were going to have for a team this year (because of heavy graduation losses), the kids did a tremendous job. I felt we fielded as competitive a team as we could under the circumstances. When they got into the water they gave it their best shot."

Thief River Falls fields a competitive swimming team year in and year out, mentioned Forney, despite the lack of a concentrated year-round program that traditional swimming powers use to produce the top-notch swimmers. The Prowlers, he explained, truly represent the student-athlete aspect of things since nearly all of the swimmers are also active in other school and community functions. It might not allow them to become state championship-caliber swimmers, admitted Forney, but it certainly makes them a well-rounded individual ready to move on to other areas when their high school swimming career ends.

A pair of team records were set this fall when Puetz swam a 1:05.66 in the 100-year butterfly and Ness turned in a 1:14.97 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

One Franklin Middle School pool record was also established in 1986 as Moorhead's Rea Sandvig swam a 2:03.50 in the 200-yard freestyle here.

Other Thief River Falls team records still in the books:

200 medley relay — 2:01.26 (Michelle Puetz, Gayle Borchert, Christy Puetz, Tammy Gunderson), 1985.

200 freestyle — 2:06.0, Joan Jury, 1975.

200 I.M. — 2:20.50, Michelle Puetz, 1984.

50 freestyle — 25.58, Michelle Puetz, 1983.

Diving — 283.50 points, Brenda Lund, 1980.

100 freestyle — 57.29, Michelle Puetz, 1984.

500 freestyle — 5:48.89, Laura Beito, 1985.

100 backstroke — 1:03.67, Michelle Puetz, 1984.

400 freestyle relay — 3:54.69 (Betsy Hallstrom, Deb Williams, Marci Pluth, Kathy Dillon), 1978.

College Notes

+ Tim Kruse, a Concordia College defensive end from Thief River Falls, was one of eight Cobbers named as Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (MIAC) first-team all-conference players, it was announced this week by school officials. Kruse is a junior at the Moorhead school, the MIAC champion who will host the University of Wisconsin-Steven's Point in the first round of the NCAA Division III football playoffs Saturday at 12:30 p.m. at Jake Christianson Stadium.

+ Todd Wing, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, returns as a member of the University of Minnesota swim team. + Former Thief River Falls high school and University of Wisconsin baseball-hockey standout Scott Sabo was in town briefly before leaving for Australia, where he'll be playing baseball this winter. He'll report to the Cleveland Indians training camp in February. The left-handed pitcher was traded from the Oakland system to Cleveland last summer, a move he figures will help him in his bid to move up through the minor league ranks and get a shot at the Indians' major league roster.

+ Brian Johnston, a 6-0, 200-pound junior defenseman from Thief River Falls, is one of the returning regulars on the 1986-87 Concordia College hockey team. The Cobbers, who hope to improve upon an 8-18 record of a year ago, open their schedule Saturday by hosting Bemidji State University at 7:30 p.m. in Moorhead. New head coach for the Cobbers is Steve Baumgartner, who has taken over for veteran Al Rice, who is listed as an assistant coach this winter. The Concordia roster also includes senior wing Larry Goos from Roseau, plus five Moorhead graduates — sophomore goalie Chris Miller, senior defenseman Mark Rice, freshman defenseman Mark Jenson, freshman center Roger Ole and senior defenseman Kirk Arnold.

+ Thief River Falls' Michelle Puetz, a freshman on the University of North Dakota women's swimming team, had a hand in three wins over the weekend as the Sioux defeated North Dakota State University 64-45 in dual meet competition. Puetz won the 1,000 freestyle in 12:14.17, took the 100 backstroke in 1:04.50 and swam the lead leg on the first place 400 medley relay team that turned in a 4:21.36. The Sioux will be competing in the Wyoming Invitational this weekend in Gillette, Wy, where they'll meet the University of Minnesota, University of South Dakota and the University of Colorado in Friday-Saturday competition.

Trophy Deer Mount Is Put On Display At Agassiz Refuge

A 13-point buck shot at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in 1984 and acquired and mounted by Neil (Jake) Jacobson, North Country Taxidermy, is on display at the refuge headquarters north of Thief River Falls.

Antlers on the buck scored 173 and five-eighths points, making it eligible for entry into both the Minnesota state and Boone and Crocket record books.

Jacobson loaned the mount to the refuge this fall for permanent display. Anyone wishing to view the trophy, and exercise wishful thinking, is invited to stop at the refuge headquarters during office hours, 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

TRF Hosts Pee-Wee, Bantam Hockey Jamboree Saturday

First Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association (MAHA) District 16 Pee-Wee and Bantam A hockey jamboree will be held Saturday in Thief River Falls.

Pee-Wees (11-12-year-olds) and Bantams (13-14-year-olds) from Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Roseau and Bemidji will participate in the event. Warroad, because of a prior commitment, will be the only MAHA District 16 member not represented at the jamboree.

Bantams will be playing in the Sports Arena, while Pee-Wees compete in the Old Arena.

Each scrimmage session will be 30-to-35 minutes in length.

Thief River Falls Bantam A team is coached by Jeff Tunberg, with Jeff Wiltse serving as an assistant coach. Thief River Falls Pee-Wee A team is coached by Mark Harder, with Tom Ose and Dale Wennberg serving as assistant coaches. Still in the try-out stages, the Thief River Falls Bantams and Pee-Wees have gone through one pre-season "cut" in the formation of A and B teams for the 1986-87 season, but the larger-than-noormal A rosters this weekend will be reduced before regular season play starts later this month. Opportunity to watch the players under game conditions during the jamboree will be one of the objectives this weekend before the squads are finalized.

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) traveling teams begin their 1986-87 regular season schedule with weekend action November 29 and 30, when all four teams — VFW Bantam A, Eagles Pee-Wee A, Bantam B and Pee-Wee B teams will have Saturday and Sunday assignments. Fargo South teams will be in Thief River Falls November 29, with the A teams meeting at 11:30 a.m. (Bantams) and 4:30 p.m. (Pee-Wees) at the Sports Arena and the B teams playing the same times at the Old Arena. Games November 30, will have the Pee-Wee teams at Bemidji (1 p.m. B game, 2:30 p.m. A game), while the Bantam A team hosts Crookston at 1 p.m. at the Sports Arena and the Bantam B team drives to Grand Forks for a 2:45 p.m. game at the Eagles Arena.

Mark Enge is the Bantam B head coach, assisted by Richard Holmes. The search continues for a Pee-Wee B coach.

Each of the TRFAHA teams will host an invitational tournament this winter. The Saturday-Sunday events are scheduled Dec. 13-14 for Bantam B; Feb. 7-8 for Bantam A; and Feb. 28-March 1 for both the Pee-Wee A and B teams.

The MAHA District 16 Pee-Wee A tournament will also be held in Thief River Falls. The Pee-Wee B event will be at Hallock, Bantam A at Warroad and Bantam B at Roseau.

In addition, the annual Thief River Falls McDonald's Squirts In-House Invitational for 9-10-year-olds will be held March 7-8.

Volunteers Aid Refuge Personnel

Some people just don't go with the flow. Fresh out of high school, most kids spend their summers working or recuperating from four demanding years of "readin, ritin and rithmatic." But a few do something different. Such is the case with Eric Charleson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Charlson, and Mike Kloety, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marland Kloety of Thief River Falls. Both worked as volunteers at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge from June to October this past summer.

Averaging three or more days a week, they collected and identified aquatic insects, radio tracked canvasback ducks, banded waterfowl, searched for duck nests, worked with computers and raced across the marshes by airboat.

Both avid hunters, they were exposed to Agassiz' diverse and copious wildlife — some of the best Minnesota has to offer. These enthusiastic and hard-working young men worked more than 700 hours and provided the refuge with much needed help and good company. Said wildlife biologist Jim Mattisson, "We've really appreciated their help and we hope that they've benefited from their work here as well."

For their much-appreciated work they were presented with a certificate acknowledging their work and a gift from the refuge staff.

Thief River Falls girls open their 1986-87 regular season schedule Tuesday at Marshall County Central.

Forestry In Minnesota

(Third In A Series)

by Vince Buck

Warroad

An annual report dated November, 1914 shows that 10 miles of trails were built and 112 trail and road signs posted in the area. A cabin was built on the Northwest Angle in Section 12-167-33, at a cost of $121.

A circular letter from Dillon Tierney, St. Paul dated August 25, 1915 states: "When state funds for fire fighting are exhausted, forest officers will have to fight fires alone with such volunteer assistance as the ranger has provided for. You should make arrangements with county boards so they will pay for the extinguishment of fires which are burning the peat roads which are established as state highways."

In a circular letter from W.T. Cox dated June 7, 1915: "In view of the great number of unemployed men scattered through the forest districts, I believe that we are not justified in paying more than twenty cents an hour (for fire fighting). Perhaps 17.5 cents would be sufficient.

In 1920 Mr. Linder was appointed to the position of supervisor with headquarters at Warroad and Oscar Levin succeeded him as district ranger that same year. Dick Willems as hired as patrolman on a seasonal basis, with headquarters at Schilling. Dick's unfinished memoirs state that he covered his sub-district on foot the first year.

His equipment consisted of lawbook, badge, shovel and canvas pail. His duties; visit settlers and promote fire prevention, prevent and suppress fires and enforce fire laws. The next year he bought a horse and covered his district on horseback. A small amount of expense money was allotted to him to buy feed for his horse while away from headquarters. Later he sold the horse (too many flies) and bought a Model T without top or windshield.

In May, 1923 Dick was appointed to a steady position as patrolman at Ludlow Island in the Muskeg Bog north of Upper Red Lake. Here again his memoirs reveal some interesting sidelights: With H.I. Johnson, he built a boat of green lumber and floated his belongings down the Rapid River 25 miles to a road. Here they hired a settler to haul the boat with the equipment and supplies on a wagon 16 miles to Ludlow Island where they found a 12x14-foot tar paper shack. They spent the first day cleaning the shack up to make it liveable. They apparently constructed the first lookout tower at Ludlow Island. After Willems was established at his new headquarters, Johnson was appointed to a seasonal position at Schilling. In the meantime, Wm. Torfin had been appointed as seasonal patrolman with headquarters at Wannaska.

Levin was transferred to Itasca Park in April, 1924 and Willems was appointed to the district ranger position at Warroad. That same year Frendel Norman became patroman at Clear River and Russell Murray replaced Torfin at Wannaska.

Vermilion Wins Title

Vermilion, a 28-13 winner over Northland in the opening round semifinals the week before, won the 1986 Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoff title Sunday with a 20-16 victory over North Hennepin at the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul.

North Hennepin reached the finals by beating Rochester 13-0 the week before.

Vermilion, 9-1 for the year, will go to River Grove, IL, Saturday for the Midwest Bowl championship against the Illinois state champion.

Public Input Sought

Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Section is seeking public input on wildlife habitat improvement projects, according to Dr. Larry Shannon, DNR Fish and Wildlife Director.

Wildlife Section is preparing an environmental assessment on the general development and improvement of wildlife habitat on state wildlife management areas, designated waterfowl lakes and selected county, state and federal forest lands. These habitat improvement projects range from restoration of wetlands and building access trails and firebreaks to habitat modifications through timber sales, herbicide applications and prescribed burns.

"The assessment will evaluate various habitat modification activities, the process used in decision-making, reviewing and approving projects and the type of public input that is necessary for local projects," said Shannon.

Comments pertaining to the wildlife habitat improvement programs should be sent to Richard Carlson, Wildlife Development Supervisor, DNR Section of Wildlife, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4007.

Avoid Damaging Roads

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources asked hunters and other outdoor recreationists to take special care this fall to avoid damaging forest roads.

Road repair and maintenance is one of the most costly annual expenses for the DNR's Division of Forestry and other private landowners. Pressures are mounting from a number of sources to reduce the miles of road currently open to the public for recreational activities. Concerns about liability, erosion, game harassment, game habitat and costly road repairs are causing public agencies and private citizens to have second thoughts about keeping roads open.

DNR's Division of Forestry maintains 1,900 miles of road which serves the 4.5 million acres of state forest lands and several million acres of county, federal and private forest lands.

DNR officials say hunters and other outdoor recreationists can help prevent costly damage to forest roads.

Roads and trails are especially susceptible to damage during wet seasons. Vehicles aggravate muddy surfaces on roads, forming ruts that collect more water, creating deeper ruts.

Eventually, vehicles get stuck in the large holes. The use of four-wheel drive or winching to get out of the ruts makes the holes deeper causing the roads to become impassable.

If the roads cannot be repaired before winter, they often remain in poor condition well into the spring before it is dry enough to make repairs. This year, the weather was so bad that last year's damage never could be repaired, according to DNR forestry officials.

"Continued damage of this type could lead to future closures of many roads when the conditions are not optimum for the road surface," said Eric Geisler, DNR forest road specialist.

ZAMBONI FUND for replacement of the ice surfacing machine at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena was initiated Tuesday with a $1,000 donation from the Thief River Falls Skating Club to Mayor Bob Carlson. Yvonne Ode, president of the Skating Club and chairman of last year's North Country skating competition — from which the funds were earned — presented the check. The skating competition involved several hundred skaters from a number of clubs in Minnesota and North Dakota. Mayor Carlson said the present Zamboni unit was purchased when the arena was new in 1968 with a gift of $11,500 from the L.B. Hartz foundation. The units now cost $50,000. When a new unit is purchased, it is planned to move the present machine to the Old Arena to replace outdated equipment there.

DNR NEWS

Fall Bird Watch

A variety of waterfowl wing their way south during the month of November. Many will stop in southern Minnesota and some will winter over in this area of the state.

A favorite stop for Canada geese is Silver Lake at Rochester. During the peak period from mid-November through Thanksgiving, bird watchers can see as many as 30,000 geese congregated on the lake.

"The area can only hold about 30,000," said Jack Heather, Department of Natural Resources area wildlife supervisor at Rochester. "If we get more than that number, some of the birds will be displaced to other areas. It's really a sight to see 30,000 geese in one place."

Tundra swans began to move into southeastern Minnesota in late October. The best watching period will be from mid to late November around freeze-up time, according to Nick Gulden, DNR area wildlife supervisor at Winona.

"The best place to see the swans is at Pool 5 on the Mississippi River between Weaver and Minneiska," Gulden said. "There is a good overlook on the south side of Highway 61 where people can get a good look at the swans."

Swans are protected by federal and state laws and cannot be hunted. As of late October, five swans were shot during Minnesota's waterfowl season. Hunters are urged to be sure of their target before shooting.

Killing or wounding of swans is a misdemeanor in Minnesota punishable by a fine of up to $750 and-or up to 90 days in jail. Judges can also order restitution costs and confiscation of equipment.

Canvasback duck watching is also good in this southeastern Minnesota area. This year, hunting of canvasbacks was prohibited in Minnesota and other states in the Mississippi, Atlantic and Central flyways. After the other birds have migrated through, bird watchers will see large rafts of mergansers on Lake Pepin.

Concentrations of mallards will be found between the Weaver Bottoms and Appleby Pool on the Whitewater River. As many as 5,000 to 7,000 mallards can be seen in the area. Lake Winona offers an excellent variety of diving ducks like scaup, goldeneye and buffleheads. Inland at the Whitewater Wildlife Management Area late migrating waterfowl will be found around the Richard J. Dorer Pools.

Prime hawk migration is over but hawks can be seen until December. At Read's Landing along Highway 61, eagles can be seen all winter.

Winter songbirds are moving south, too. Juncos and evening grosbeaks are beginning to show up and bird watchers should be on the lookout for gray jays.

"There is so much activity by the birds in this southern Minnesota area that you should take your binoculars so you can see what's really going on," said Joan Galli, DNR nongame specialist. "The area offers some spectacular bird watching and other outdoor recreation opportunities."

Road Construction

Access to one of the state's more popular hunting areas was restricted this season according to Department of Natural Resources Forestry officials.

An eight-mile section on the eastern end of Hedbom forest road in the Savannah State Forest has been closed to traffic this hunting season because of construction. Savannah State Forest is located north of McGregor between Jacobson and Sandy Lake.

A major upgrading project will tie the forest road to the county road system in St. Louis County. This will provide substantially better access for traffic crossing between Aitkin County Road 65 and Floodwood.

"The entire forest was open to hunting," said Meg Hanisch, public affairs coordinator for the DNR Forestry Division. "However, vehicles were not permitted on the eastern end of Hedbom road."

Since construction workers worked in the area during daylight hours, hunters were urged to be especially cautious and to be certain of their target before shooting.

DNR Forestry Division is currently improving forest roads throughout the state. The Hedbom forest road project was begun in 1984. The western end of the road was completed in 1985.

Next time you make jokes about pigs, remember, they have been around 36 million years, and according to "Ranger Rick" magazine, they are very useful animals. Not only can their meat be eaten and made into bacon but pig skin is used for footballs, saddles, jackets and to treat people with severe burns. Chemicals produced from pigs are used to treat humans who suffer from diabetes, and pig heart valves are used to replace human heart valves.

Many Tax Deductions Fade Away In 1987

Now is the time to ride the coattails of the old tax laws and to take advantage of tax deductions that will be phased-out under the tax reform act, advises the Minnesota Society of CPAs. Here's a run-down on the deductions that will be affected by the new tax laws.

One favorite deduction that will be eliminated in 1987 is state and local sales taxes. Currently, whenever you make a purchase, you are allowed to take a deduction on your income tax for the sales tax you pay. Over the course of a year, this can really add up, especially for someone who makes a big purchase. If you were considering buying an expensive item, like a car, you might want to do it by December 31 so you can qualify for a sales tax deduction on your income tax.

Except for mortgage interest on a first and second home, the deduction for interest payments on loans and credit cards will be restricted, and eventually phased out, beginning in 1987. Often, when you make a payment on a loan or a credit card, a portion covers the interest payment. Depending on how much you owe, this can amount to a large sum of money.

Over the next five years, this deduction will be phased-out. In 1987, taxpayers will only be able to deduct 65 per cent of the interest they pay on loans and credit cards. In 1988, they will only be able to deduct 40 per cent. Only 20 per cent will be deductible in 1989 and only 10 per cent in 1990. By 1991, taxpayers will no longer get a deduction for non-mortgage interest payments on their income taxes.

Taxpayers who find themselves with several loan or credit card payments might want to consider paying them off in 1986 in order to qualify for a full deduction for the interest paid or consider refinancing them through the use of a home equity loan on their homes.

Medical deductions will also be restricted under the new tax reform laws. Under the existing laws, you are allowed to take a deduction for any costs that exceed five per cent of your adjusted gross income. Beginning in 1987, you are only going to be able to take a deduction for expenses that exceed 7.5 per cent of your adjusted gross income. That means you are either going to need more medical expenses or a lower adjusted gross income to qualify for this deduction compared to that allowed in 1986.

Taxpayers who find themselves close to the five per cent floor now should consider going for that check-up they have been putting off, buying those new glasses they need or getting braces for their children's teeth now instead of next year.

Deductions for retirement savings are also going to be curtailed under the new laws. Many taxpayers who currently qualify for a deduction based on the amount they contribute to their IRA are going to have to re-evaluate their situation. Some will lose this deduction altogether.

Single individuals who have an adjusted gross income (AGI) of more than $35,000, and married couples who have an AGI of more than $50,000 will be totally excluded from taking a deduction for their contribution to their IRAs if they are able to participate in an employer sponsored retirement plan, or who have a spouse who is able to participate.

In this situation, single individuals with an AGI that falls between $25,000 and $35,000, and married couples with an AGI between $40,000 and $50,000 will only be able to deduct a portion of their contribution. Only those taxpayers who are not eligible to participate in an employee sponsored retirement plan will be able to contribute the maximum amount possible to an IRA and take a full deduction on their income tax return.

If you have an existing IRA, or if you were considering opening one, contributions made before you file your 1986 income tax return on April 15, 1987 will be totally deductible.

Another change in the tax law affects those who don't normally itemize their deductions and make charitable contributions.

Currently, a taxpayer is allowed to claim deductions for contributions to charitable organizations without having to itemize deductions. But that will change. In order to qualify for a deduction after 1986, you will have to itemize your deductions. What's more, under the current higher tax brackets, charitable contributions are worth more in tax savings.

CPAs advise that if you are confused about your eligibility for these deductions, consult an expert before the end of the year. Remember, by taking advantage of deductions allowed under the current tax law, you can effectively trim your tax bill.

Hreinn Lindal's Concert Showed Vocal Versatility

by Heidi Guenther Ryan

In a program of diversified vocal works, Iclandic tenor Hreinn Lindal, a favorite European opera performer, graced the stage of Lincoln high school in the second of this year's concert association concerts. Lindal's vocal versatility and warm stage presence successfully guided the way through an evening of Scandinavian song literature, works by Richard Strauss, Carl Bohm, Tchaikovsky, opera arias and vocal standards.

The first section of pieces were those of the Norwegian composer Edward Grieg. Singing in the original Norwegian, Mr. Lindal gave the audience a description of each of the three works. Of great interest was the opening number "Jeg elskar dig" (I love you). This song was dedicated to Nina Hagerup, Grieg's wife, who sang many of the composer's works. The second section also featured works by Scandinavian composers representing Iceland, Sweden and Finland. These works, too, were sung in the original language and interpreted for the audience by the soloist.

In the spirit of Richard Strauss, "The important thing is not the beginning of the melody but its continuation. . ." Mr. Lindal sang works by Strauss, Bohm and Tchaikovsky with a true gift of melodic charm, subtle and not so subtle dynamics, and rhythmic grace that manifested themselves in the difficult works by these composers.

Arias from the operas "Le Roi dys" (Lalo) and "Eugene Onegin" (Tchaikovsky) again treated the audience to Mr. Lindal's dynamic exuberance and melodic feel. Singing in truly operatic fashion, the soloist enhanced his performance with gestures favored in these arias. Lenski's aria from "Eugene Onegin" worked its way up and down the Hungarian minor scale, a modality not often recognizeable to "western" listeners. This modality begins like the natural minor scale, but features half step intervals between the 4th, 5th, and 6th degrees of the scale.

Vocal favorites constituted the final section of the program. "Granada" by Augustin Lara gave the soloist opportunity to display his noted dynamic versatility, while it also allowed accompanist Craig Johnson occasion to demonstrate his ability as pianist. The old tenor standard, "O Sole mio," with the invitation to join in in song, appeared in this portion.

A greatful audience called Mr. Lindal back for an encore. The soloist chose a Mario Lanza favorite "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" to round out a very dexterous and demanding vocal recital.

Throughout the performance, Mr. Lindal's vibrato was highly appreciated by this reviewer. Absent was the fat, overly-exaggerated vibrato of most present day opera singers; instead a wonderfully opulent vibrato was heard in its place. The artistic subtleties of his voice made for a rich evening of vocal song. Hreinn Lindal's music is strikingly lyric and refined.

Many Tax Deductions Fade Away In 1987

Now is the time to ride the coattails of the old tax laws and to take advantage of tax deductions that will be phased-out under the tax reform act, advises the Minnesota Society of CPAs. Here's a run-down on the deductions that will be affected by the new tax laws.

One favorite deduction that will be eliminated in 1987 is state and local sales taxes. Currently, whenever you make a purchase, you are allowed to take a deduction on your income tax for the sales tax you pay. Over the course of a year, this can really add up, especially for someone who makes a big purchase. If you were considering buying an expensive item, like a car, you might want to do it by December 31 so you can qualify for a sales tax deduction on your income tax.

Except for mortgage interest on a first and second home, the deduction for interest payments on loans and credit cards will be restricted, and eventually phased out, beginning in 1987. Often, when you make a payment on a loan or a credit card, a portion covers the interest payment. Depending on how much you owe, this can amount to a large sum of money.

Over the next five years, this deduction will be phased-out. In 1987, taxpayers will only be able to deduct 65 per cent of the interest they pay on loans and credit cards. In 1988, they will only be able to deduct 40 per cent. Only 20 per cent will be deductible in 1989 and only 10 per cent in 1990. By 1991, taxpayers will no longer get a deduction for non-mortgage interest payments on their income taxes.

Taxpayers who find themselves with several loan or credit card payments might want to consider paying them off in 1986 in order to qualify for a full deduction for the interest paid or consider refinancing them through the use of a home equity loan on their homes.

Medical deductions will also be restricted under the new tax reform laws. Under the existing laws, you are allowed to take a deduction for any costs that exceed five per cent of your adjusted gross income. Beginning in 1987, you are only going to be able to take a deduction for expenses that exceed 7.5 per cent of your adjusted gross income. That means you are either going to need more medical expenses or a lower adjusted gross income to qualify for this deduction compared to that allowed in 1986.

Taxpayers who find themselves close to the five per cent floor now should consider going for that check-up they have been putting off, buying those new glasses they need or getting braces for their children's teeth now instead of next year.

Deductions for retirement savings are also going to be curtailed under the new laws. Many taxpayers who currently qualify for a deduction based on the amount they contribute to their IRA are going to have to re-evaluate their situation. Some will lose this deduction altogether.

Single individuals who have an adjusted gross income (AGI) of more than $35,000, and married couples who have an AGI of more than $50,000 will be totally excluded from taking a deduction for their contribution to their IRAs if they are able to participate in an employer sponsored retirement plan, or who have a spouse who is able to participate.

In this situation, single individuals with an AGI that falls between $25,000 and $35,000, and married couples with an AGI between $40,000 and $50,000 will only be able to deduct a portion of their contribution. Only those taxpayers who are not eligible to participate in an employee sponsored retirement plan will be able to contribute the maximum amount possible to an IRA and take a full deduction on their income tax return.

If you have an existing IRA, or if you were considering opening one, contributions made before you file your 1986 income tax return on April 15, 1987 will be totally deductible.

Another change in the tax law affects those who don't normally itemize their deductions and make charitable contributions.

Currently, a taxpayer is allowed to claim deductions for contributions to charitable organizations without having to itemize deductions. But that will change. In order to qualify for a deduction after 1986, you will have to itemize your deductions. What's more, under the current higher tax brackets, charitable contributions are worth more in tax savings.

CPAs advise that if you are confused about your eligibility for these deductions, consult an expert before the end of the year. Remember, by taking advantage of deductions allowed under the current tax law, you can effectively trim your tax bill.

Hreinn Lindal's Concert Showed Vocal Versatility

by Heidi Guenther Ryan

In a program of diversified vocal works, Icelandic tenor Hreinn Lindal, a favorite European opera performer, graced the stage of Lincoln high school in the second of this year's concert association concerts. Lindal's vocal versatility and warm stage presence successfully guided the way through an evening of Scandinavian song literature, works by Richard Strauss, Carl Bohm, Tchaikovsky, opera arias and vocal standards.

The first section of pieces were those of the Norwegian composer Edward Grieg. Singing in the original Norwegian, Mr. Lindal gave the audience a description of each of the three works. Of great interest was the opening number "Jeg elskar dig" (I love you). This song was dedicated to Nina Hagerup, Grieg's wife, who sang many of the composer's works. The second section also featured works by Scandinavian composers representing Iceland, Sweden and Finland. These works, too, were sung in the original language and interpreted for the audience by the soloist.

In the spirit of Richard Strauss, "The important thing is not the beginning of the melody but its continuation. . .," Mr. Lindal sang works by Strauss, Bohm and Tchaikovsky with a true gift of melodic charm, subtle and not so subtle dynamics, and rhythmic grace that manifested themselves in the difficult works by these composers.

Arias from the operas "Le Roi dys" (Lalo) and "Eugene Onegin" (Tchaikovsky) again treated the audience to Mr. Lindal's dynamic exuberance and melodic feel. Singing in truly operatic fashion, the soloist enhanced his performance with gestures favored in these arias. Lenski's aria from "Eugene Onegin" worked its way up and down the Hungarian minor scale, a modality not often recognizable to "western" listeners. This modality begins like the natural minor scale, but features half step intervals between the 4th, 5th, and 6th degrees of the scale.

Vocal favorites constituted the final section of the program. "Granada" by Augustin Lara gave the soloist opportunity to display his noted dynamic versatility, while it also allowed accompanist Craig Johnson occasion to demonstrate his ability as pianist. The old tenor standard, "O Sole mio," with the invitation to join in in song, appeared in this portion.

A greatful audience called Mr. Lindal back for an encore. The soloist chose a Mario Lanza favorite "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" to round out a very dexterous and demanding vocal recital.

Throughout the performance, Mr. Lindal's vibrato was highly appreciated by this reviewer. Absent was the fat, overly-exaggerated vibrato of most present day opera singers; instead a wonderfully opulent vibrato was heard in its place. The artistic subtleties of his voice made for a rich evening of vocal song. Hreinn Lindal's music is strikingly lyric and refined.

Then It's Too Late

Why is it? A man wakes up in the morning after sleeping on an advertised bed, in advertised pajamas. He will bathe in an advertised tub, wash with advertised soap, shave with an advertised razor, have a breakfast of advertised juice, cereal and toast (toasted in an advertised toaster), put on advertised clothes and glance at his advertised watch.

He will ride to work in an advertised car, sit at an advertised desk, smoke advertised cigarettes and write with an advertised pen. Yet this man hesitates to advertise, saying that advertising does not pay. Finally, when his unadvertised business goes under, he will advertise it for sale.

Workshops Set For Motivating Children To Read

Author Jim Trelease, a nationally acclaimed lecturer on motivating children to become readers, will conduct workshops for parents, teachers and the general public December 5 at the middle school auditorium in Fergus Falls.

A workshop for educators will begin at 1 p.m. and a presentation for parents will take place at 7 p.m.

"The decline in American literacy," he declares, "is due in large part to the fact that our children no longer want to read. No player in the NBA was ever born wanting to play basketball. So, too, the desire to read must be planted and reading aloud to the child is the oldest and most successful method of instilling that desire."

The presentation is sponsored by the Northern Lights Library network and the Vikingland reading council. There is no charge for admission. For more information contact Joan B. Larson, coordinator, Northern Lights Library Network, Box 845 Alexandria, MN 56308, call 612-762-1032 or contact the local library.

Education Ass'n. Invites Parents To Visit Teachers

Parents have a remarkably positive attitude toward schools states a recent survey on parental involvement. However, a shocking 36 per cent said they never had a conference with a teacher concerning their child. A remarkable 21 per cent have never talked to a teacher before or after school.

During American Education Week, November 16-22, 1986, Thief River Falls educators strongly urge parents to take advantage of conference time in the school their child attends. Parents and the school staff share a deep concern for a child's welfare, and there is no better way to encourage the growth and development of children than by working together to meet his or her educational needs.

Teachers have numerous suggestions about things a parent may do to help a child in school. Some suggestions are given for help with homework, help with verbal skills with special techniques the teacher can provide, and even perhaps setting up a study area for their child.

The Thief River Falls Education Association encourages parents to keep appointments with their child's teacher.

Sparby Elected To DFL Steering Committee Nov. 8

State Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls was elected to the DFL steering committee of the Minnesota House at the DFL caucus organizational meeting November 8. The caucus also named Rep. Fred Norton, St. Paul, speaker and Rep. Robert Vanasek, New Prague, majority leader.

Sparby, who is beginning his third term in the House, called attention to the importance of having northwestern Minnesota represented on the steering committee.

"With the DFL back in the majority in the House, the DFL steering committee will be at the heart of important decisions regarding personnel, House administration, and most importantly, legislative issues. Those of us from this area of the state must be in a position to bring our concerns about the rural and small town economy to the attention of the full Legislature, and I believe my post on the steering committee will offer that opportunity.

"Though we from rural districts have succeeded in focusing some legislative attention on the problems we face, there are still many concerns that are unique to our area and which need to be addressed by the Legislature," Sparby said.

"I look forward to working with my colleagues on the steering committee to develop the kind of legislation that will promote economic health in Northwestern Minnesota — on our farms and in our small towns. We must also continue our work on tax reform and simplification and on more cost effectiveness in government programs to keep spending down."

Girl Scouts In TRF Extend Welcome To First Graders

First Grade Brownie Girl Scouts from Mark Twain school met for the first time Tuesday with Kris Hall as their leader. Girls have also registered for a troop at Washington school with Deb Hayes as leader and at Knox school with Nancy Hager as leader. These troops will begin meeting soon.

According to Bev Ditmer, field director for Pine to Prairie Girl Scout council, this is the first year there has been Brownie troops for first grade girls in Thief River Falls. This makes a total of 20 troops in the Thief River Falls association. Ginny Armstrong is local association chairman.

Girl Scouts is an informal educational program based on an ethical code — the Girl Scout promise and law, which is accepted by each member. There are programs for girls age 5 through 17. The five age levels are: Daisy - Kindergarten; Brownie - grades 1,2,3; Junior - grades 4,5,6; Cadette - grades 7,8,9; and Senior - 9, 10, 11, 12.

First grade troops will also be formed at St. Bernard's and Northrop schools if an adult volunteer is found to lead the girls. Any girl interested in being in a Girl Scout troop at any level, or any adult volunteering to be a leader can call Ginny at 681-5874 or Bev at 681-5797.

Swimming Pool Committee Begins Membership Drive

Swimming pool committee members in Thief River Falls are in the midst of a membership drive for its new 500 club.

Since last summer the swimming pool committee has raised around $30,000 in pledges and donations from various groups and civic minded individuals. The goal however, is to raise $500,000. A new sponsoring club created by the committee will hopefully push a new swimming pool for Thief River Falls even closer to realization, according to committee officers.

Members of the 500 club will see their names on a permanent plaque at the swimming pool when the pool is finally completed. They will also receive a certificate of appreciation.

Becoming a 500 club member means the members will donate $500 to the pool fund. Various rate adjustments have been set up. Contributions can be made weekly, bi-weekly, monthly, quarterly, or by any other arrangement.

The contributions can be made by individuals or businesses. If a business is interested, a committee member would be available to explain the purpose of the committee. Pledge cards are available from any of the committee members.

OTH-B Meeting In TRF On Thursday

Over-the Horizon-Backscatter radar system will be the subject of a public hearing Thursday night in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium. The air force recently announced that the deadline for submitting comments on the draft environmental impact statement (EIS) has been extended to December 8, and also planned additional public hearings.

The other scheduled public hearings were held at the following locations: Hillsboro, ND 7 p.m. November 18 at the armory building; and Britton, SD, 7 p.m. November 29 at the high school auditorium.

The public hearings are an opportunity for concerned citizens and government officials to participate in the air force's decision-making process. The format for the public hearings is as follows: Air Force officials will explain the environmental impact analysis process for the proposed radar system and describe the major elements of the system, including the transmit site, receive site, and operations center. The presentation will also address the possible environmental concerns and impacts caused by the installation of the radar system.

Following the Air Force's presentation, there will be a question and answer period for approximately 30 minutes. Immediately following the question and answer session will be a public comment period for interested individuals to present their comments. Time permitting, after hearing from all those who have requested to speak, they will again open the floor for added questions and comments.

Wheat Growers Convention At Moorhead Dec. 1-2

"Making the Most from Those Generic Certificates" will be the topic of discussion on the Tuesday morning program at the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers (MAWG) 11th annual meeting and convention to be held December 1-2 at the Regency Inn and conference center in Moorhead.

According to MAWG president Gordon Sonstelie of Winger, the 1985 farm bill introduced some unique marketing opportunities for wheat producers through generic PIK certificates. The marketing seminar planned as part of the annual convention will not only deal with the specifics of the generic certificates, but also include discussion of the farm program to determine how the "certs" will fit into the overall program implementation in the future life of the 1985 farm bill.

"In addition," Sonstelie says, "speakers will give their thoughts on how long the future of the 1985 farm bill might be, and some of the changes that might be proposed and possibly implemented when the Congress reconvenes in January."

In addition to the marketing seminar, Tuesday's program will include an informal luncheon, with former Minnesota Governor and U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman as the luncheon speaker. "Freeman is currently president of the Agriculture Council of America," Sonstelie said, "an organization that is pursuing a very aggressive agricultural export promotion program."

The two-day meeting will also focus on reducing input costs, with a cost of production workshop; and a panel discussion with participants from our major export competitor countries entitled "Meeting the Competition." The MAWG's business session, including the discussion and development of resolutions for the coming year, will also be included on the program.

According to Sonstelie, all Minnesota wheat growers, both members and non-members are encouraged to attend the two-day meeting. Registration for the convention is $20 and will be available at the door. In addition, special rates at the Regency Inn are available for those planning to attend.

WILDLIFE ARTIST Thomas Parr Williamson exhibited some of his work Thursday at Pat's Potpourri on Oakland Park road in Thief River Falls. The Baudette area artist has been spending the past several months organizing a marketing operation for this work, especially limited edition prints. He intends to keep the number of prints low to make the edition more exclusive and to keep the price within the range of affordability for most people. He also intends to keep record of purchasers of prints and to allow each to bid for the original painting when the edition of prints is sold out.

Farm Finance Problems Ease

Financial problems for area farmers continue, but for the second quarter in a row they appear to be easing somewhat, according to a recent survey of rural banks conducted by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneaplis. The survey results are based on the responses of 89 bankers throughout rural areas of Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and northwestern Wisconsin.

Fed economist Stanley L. Graham reported that even though farm earnings continued to decline in the third quarter, they did so at a more moderate pace. Nearly one-fourth of the bankers said farm earnings in their areas were actually greater than a year ago. This was a tripling of the proportion reporting greater earnings in the second quarter. On the other hand, about half the bankers said third quarter farm earnings were below those of a year ago.

The moderation in the decline, Graham said, can be attributed, in part, to lower fuel prices and interest rates. Also, some parts of the survey area, most notably Montana and the western Dakotas, benefited from a rise in livestock prices and a drought-ending rainfall which boosted crop yields.

Farmland values also declined at a more moderate pace. The bankers reported that, on average, the value of irrigated farmland declined 3.8 per cent; nonirrigated farmland, 4.4 per cent; and pasture and grazing land, 6.1 per cent. The comparable declines in the second quarter were 5.2 per cent, 5.6 per cent, and 7.9 per cent, respectively.

The Fed's survey also revealed other signs of some improvement for farmers. The percentage of bankers reporting an above normal demand to refinance farm loans dropped nearly 20 percentage points in the third quarter. In addition, fewer farmers were forced to go out of business or partially liquidate their assets. At the end of September the bankers said that three per cent of area farmers went out of business for reasons of financial stress in the last six months; 4.1 per cent did so during the previous six months.

Graham cautioned, however, that financial problems remain serious in most areas. Farm debt repayment was still slow at nearly a third of the banks and fast at only six per cent. Refinancing demand was greater than normal at more than a third of the banks and less than normal at just five per cent.

Despite the recent signs of easing, most of the bankers responding to the Fed's survey do not expect much improvement for the fourth quarter. The only widely held optimistic view is that interest rates will decline further by the end of the year. Graham noted, though, that another possible cause for optimism has appeared since the survey was taken, the new acreage diversion program for feed grains announced by the USDA in late October. The program will start to bring farmers advance payments in the fourth quarter.

Aviators Avoid Plane Crash

By Captain Lucy Kender

The sky was clear. It was a beautiful day for flying. The Minnesota National Guard's Beechcraft Baron twin-engine plane routinely took off from Fort McCoy, WI, enroute to Camp Ripley.

But within minutes after that take-off, a near tragedy would strike.

"We were going up to cruise altitude — 6,500 feet — speed 145 knots (165 mph) — when the control yoke started to shake," recalls Chief Warrant Officer Two Mike Nelson, a Minnesota Guard pilot. Nelson, as pilot, was also using the mission for a check flight with senior pilot Major Denny Lord.

The shaking quickly worsened. The oscillation was so bad that at one point the plane's nose was pitched almost straight down. The crew declared an emergency and requested a vector to the nearest airport. They then began a descent toward the LaCrosse, WI, airport, where a crash-rescue emergency team was standing by.

"If we hadn't been so close to LaCrosse, (8-10 minutes), we would have tried to make an off-airport landing on the ground," said Nelson.

Nelson flew the plane for just a few more minutes and then turned over the controls to Lord. With Lord in the lead they worked together to gain control.

"It took all our physical strength to hold onto the yoke and get some control," said Lord.

It was unclear to them what the specific problem was, but as Lord relates, "We could look out the back windows and see pieces of the tail section shredding apart."

They got out the emergency checklist and began to go over it, when, in a passing moment of uneasy levity, they shared a moment of anxious laughter realizing nothing on that checklist would tell them what to do if the tail section came off! They were on their own.

Also on the flight were two passengers, Brigadier General William A. Roosma and his aide, 1st Lieutenant Mark Sheehy. Roosma was then the assistant division commander of the Army's 7th infantry division, Ft. Ord, CA, enroute to Camp Ripley for a training visit.

Lord via headset did the best he could to reassure them, but it was obvious to all aboard that the plane was in real trouble.

The vibrations became so severe that radio transmission became impossible. "We could hear them (Minneapolis Center), but the vibrations were so violent, our transmissions were garbled," said Lord.

They struggled to progressively slow the plane and achieve minimum control — enough to feel a safe landing would be possible.

Finally, the LaCrosse runway was in sight, they brought the plane in for a successful landing, with an airport fire engine following them the whole way.

Upon investigation, it appeared what had happened to the plane was that a bolt had sheered in the left tail elevator allowing the trim tab to fly free — thus causing the loss of control.

Aircraft investigators also determined that the plane would have remained airborne for only another three to five minutes — before all control would have been lost.

Neither of these Guard aviators is a stranger to tense flying situations. Both served as helicopter pilots in Vietnam. In fact, their military careers began simultaneously in 1965. They joined the U.S. Army on the same day and their career paths have been the same ever since.

Flight school — Vietnam — the National Guard — together they have amassed 16,000 flying hours, 12,000 for Lord and 4,000 for Nelson.

Today, Lord, a Burnsville resident, works full-time for the Guard at the army Aviation Support Facility located at the St. Paul downtown airport. As supervisory flight instructor there, he is responsible for the training of all Minnesota National Guard aircrews — some 130 people.

Nelson, a part-time Guardsman, works as a criminal investigator for the Internal Revenue Service. He resides in Lino Lakes.

Risk and adventure are integral parts of the careers these men seek. But more important are the skills they have learned — especially in handling stress.

Both agreed that their immediate reactions during this particular incident were not of panic, but of how to fix the problem.

"We train for handling stress," commented Lord. He thinks that to do this requires a change in attitude and also strong mental training.

"This incident also shows what a fragile balance you deal with in aviation," commented Nelson. That balance of training, maintenance and weather were in their favor that day.

That routine flight took place on June 25, 1986. The airplane has since gone through intensive inspection and repair and now flys better than

LHS To Perform 'Don't Tell Mother'

"Maybe I can make things clear: I'm Deedee, this is Sarah, and Cinnamon's-in-the-kitchen-cleaning-the ceiling. But your mother thinks I'm Cinnamon, Sarah is the cleaning lady and Cinnamon is Sarah, see?"

This kind of perfect sense, as expressed by Deedee Malone, will be expressed during the Lincoln high school fall play "Don't Tell Mother" Friday and Saturday at 7:27 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Tickets for the production directed by Brett Carter are $2 for adults and $1 for students and will be available at the door.

Carter describes the action as follows:

"On the evening that timid librarian Cinnamon Schmidt (Karina Krepp) and her mother Sarah (Gina Olmstead) are due to entertain her shoe salesman fiance Hobart Berelzheimer (Dean Fugleberg) and his mother Magda (erin Shoberg) with a serene little family dinner, Cinnamon comes home from work in shock because she has just witnessed a daring daylight robbery — and is the only witness who can identify the crook.

"She confides her terror to chum Deedee Malone (Pete Kuyath), not daring to tell her mother — and then federal agent Joe Shimko (Sean Krepp) arrives, having gotten a tip from Rikki Tickey (Krista Trontvet), the gun moll of the criminal, that the bank robber, Orville Maddox (Mark Olson), is en route to bump off the witness.

"However, nothing ever goes right in a Monk Ferris comedy. Through a series of confusions, Joe ends up thinking Deedee is Cinnamon and Magda mistakes Orville for the caterer due to fix the dinner. Joe, Deedee and Sarah think Orville is Hobart the fiance. Magda thinks Sarah is the cleaning lady, that Deedee is Cinnamon, and that Cinnamon is her own mother Sarah — and poor Hobart arrives, posies in hand, just in time to be arrested by Joe, who thinks Hobart is the bank robber.

"Confused" It may get sillier when a monster vacuum cleaner keeps attacking anyone within range. The final moments, with all the good-guys trussed up and strung together like a daisy-chain while all the lights go out and the monster vacuum goes on, are probably the funniest moments ever put on a stage."

Farmer's Share Of Food Dollar Dips To 30 Cents

The American farmer's share of the consumer food dollar will likely hit an all-time low by the end of this year, making farmers worse off than during the years of the Great Depression, according to the Minnesota Farmers Union.

The farmer's share of the consumer dollar spent at a grocery store fell to 31 cents in 1985, one cent away from the 30 cents share during the depression — the lowest in the 72 years the record has been kept. The figure will probably fall below 30 cents this year since the farmer's share averaged just 28.5 cents in April and 29 cents in May, the MFU notes.

When consumers eat at restaurants the farmer's share is only 15 cents, making the overall average 25 cents.

Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) will again dramatize these facts by sponsoring a "Farmer's Share Lunch" during its annual convention, November 23 and 24 in St. Paul. The lunch will take place at noon, Monday, November 24 at the Prom Center.

"When we did this last year, the overall share of 27 cents and now it has fallen even lower," said MFU President Willis Eken. "Despite what some politicians are claiming, the farm economy has only gotten worse in the last year."

The 350 convention delegates will pay 49 cents for a meal consisting of Minnesota meat, vegetable, bread and dairy products. The actual farmer's share of the meal totals only 39 cents, but MFU is adding the extra dime to make another point. If consumers spent 10 cents more for three meals a day it would generate about $450 million per year in additional income for Minnesota farmers and would cost the consumer only about $100 more per year.

"The consumer dollar would then be reinvested many times over in the rural economy," Eken added, "and at the same time would reduce taxes now being used to subsidize large agricultural corporations."

Farm Prices For MN Farmers Lower Than One Year Ago

Minnesota agricultural statistics service reports that after reaching a record $63.70 per hundred weight in August, Minnesota hog prices have gradually declined and stood at $54.30 by mid-October. Nonetheless, they're still high when looking at the past three years, according to the Agricultural statistics service.

Corn prices dropped to their lowest level since February 1973 at $1.19 per bushel. Some areas of Minnesota reported corn below $1. Soybean prices continue very weak at $4.33 per bushel, for the lowest level since January 1976.

Generally, all farm prices were lower than a year ago as measured by the Index of Prices Received by Minnesota Farmers. The mid-October index was five per cent below a year ago.

Some years ago a prominent pastor prayed in his morning prayer, "O God, help us not to accept and be satisfied with THE GOOD," then paused to allow wonderment to settle on the perceptive and stimulus to awaken the drowsy. And then added "to the exclusion of THE BEST."

The pastor was addressing in his prayer an issue and reality that cramps growth. Too often we settle for the "good things of life" without realizing that there are "better things" and "best things" in life.

The "best things in life" are not necessarily FREE. They must often be purchased at the high cost of discipline and the exacting price of cultivated perception, plus a determined stickability.

Talent is a God-gift and free but must be trained if fulfillment is realized. Something so beautiful and free as a sunset must be purchased by the high price of TIME—devoted TIME to allow opportunity for appreciation. But TIME alone cannot produce appreciation of beauty unless one has cultivated a sense of gratitude to Him who is the Source of all BEST things.

New Tax Laws Not As Simple As Gov't. Says

Gone are the days of the 50 per cent tax bracket now that the tax reform act of 1986 has been passed. Also gone are the 15 separate brackets in which taxpayers calculate their tax. But, figuring out your tax return for the next few years is not going to be as simple as Uncle Sam would like you to believe, according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

By now, you have probably heard that there will only be two tax rates under the nex tax reform act. What you may not know is that those tax rates are really four and don't go into effect until 1988. Understanding these rates and when they go into effect is the key to understanding the tax reform act.

Your 1986 tax return will still be subject to the current tax law, including 15 brackets and all of the deductions you are accustomed to. But, 1987 will be the beginning of the end.

The writers of the tax reform act decided to make 1987 a transitional year between the old and the new laws. While the tax rates you will be using to calculate your taxes next year will drop slightly, many of the deductions will be eliminated. The result is that many taxpayers may only feel a slight decrease in their total tax, if any.

The 1987 tax rate schedule will have five brackets: 11 per cent, 15 per cent, 28 per cent, 35 per cent and 38.5 per cent. Married couples who have taxable income of more than $90,000 and single individuals who have taxable income of more than $54,000 will be calculating their taxes in the highest bracket. In 1986, they will be calculating them in a range of 42 per cent to 50 per cent. Married couples who have taxable income of less than $3,000 and single individuals who have taxable income of less than $1,800 will calculate their taxes in the lowest bracket, fairly close to where they are now. But, those in the middle income brackets will feel little, if any effect at all, because many will stay in the same tax brackets while losing many of their favorite deductions and exemptions.

One of the most positive effects of this legislation is its ability to remove more than six million working poor from the tax rolls. By increasing both the personal exemption and the standard deduction, those taxpayers in the lowest brackets will be able to eliminate their tax liability.

In 1988, the rate schedule will have two effective tax rates: 15 per cent and 28 per cent. But, there is more to it than meets the eye. Taxpayers in higher income brackets will have to pay an additional five per cent marginal tax on income that exceeds a certain level, and those in the highest income brackets will calculate their income taxes differently than those in the lower brackets.

The 15 per cent tax rate applies to all taxable income of married couples up to $29,750; to all taxable income of single individuals up to $17,850; and to all taxable income of heads of households up to $23,900.

The 28 per cent tax rate applies to all taxable income of married couples making more than $29,750 but less than $71,900; to all taxable income of single individuals making more than $17,850 but less than $43,150; and to all taxable income of heads of households making more than $23,900 but less than $61,650. Taxpayers in this bracket will pay 15 per cent on taxable income below these levels and then 28 per cent on the remaining taxable income. Taxpayers with adjusted gross income exceeding these limits will lose the benefit of the 15 per cent tax bracket and will pay an extra five per cent on their taxable income, placing them in the 33 per cent "marginal tax" bracket.

Once the taxable income of each of the three taxpaying groups reaches a certain level, it is taxed at a flat rate of 28 per cent, the fourth bracket. This applies to single individuals with taxable income above $89,560; married couples with taxable income above $149,250; and heads of households with taxable income above $123,790 exclusive of the rate adjustment due to personal exemptions.

Taxpayers with incomes between the top of the 28 per cent effective tax bracket and the starting point for the 28 per cent flat tax rate will be taxed at the 33 per cent marginal tax rate. This will apply to single individuals with taxable income between $43,150 and $89,560; to married couples with taxable income between $71,900 and $149,250; and to heads of households with taxable income between $61,650 and $123,790. The additional five per cent in taxes effectively eliminates the 15 per cent bracket for these taxpayers.

Let me give you an example. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have a taxable income of $100,000. On the first $29,750 of that taxable income they will pay 15 per cent in taxes ($4,462.50). On the taxable income above $29,750 up to $71,900, they will pay 28 per cent in taxes ($11,802). The remaining $28,100 in income will be taxed at 33 per cent ($9,273). Overall, they paid $25,537.50 in taxes which actually works out to 25.5 per cent. If the Smiths had reached a taxable income of $149,250, they would have paid a flat 28 per cent tax on all of it.

No one said tax reform would be easy! All of this is enough to make your head swim. But, CPAs advise that by carefully reviewing your own financial situation with professional assistance, you should be able to tread water, and eventually learn how to swim with the waves of the new tax reform law.

Tax Strategies Now Can Mean Tax Savings

If you're like many Americans, you're probably wondering how tax reform will affect you and whether it means more money in your pocket and less in Uncle Sam's. But just sitting back and waiting to see what happens won't help; according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs. Now is the time to initiate year-end tax strategies to help you make the most of your money.

Before you can determine how to plan for the potential impact of the tax reform bill, prepare a projection of your 1986 income and expenses. Determine what your taxable income and corresponding tax bracket will be in 1986 and attempt to project what your income and expenses should be in 1987. By accelerating deductions and deferring income, many taxpayers can take advantage of current and future tax breaks.

If your taxable income will be lower this year than your projections for 1987, or you find yourself in an Alternative Minimum Tax situation where income is taxed at a relatively low rate of only 20 per cent, it might pay to accelerate income into this year and defer certain deductions into next year.

For those of you who will have more taxable income this year and fewer deductions in 1987, your overall tax strategy should be to defer as much taxable income as possible into next year, since your personal income tax rates may be lower. You should also consider accelerating as many deductions as possible this year.

Deductions to concentrate on are state and local sales taxes, consumer interest payment deductions, medical expenses and miscellaneous expenses, since they will either be eliminated or more difficult to take after December 31, 1986.

Another deduction you should look at is charitable contributions. They can add up, especially for those of you who donate regularly to certain groups such as your church, civic organization or favorite charity. This deduction will still be fully allowed under the new tax bill, but only to those who itemize their deductions. Now is the time to take account of exactly how much you contribute to charitable causes.

Other deductions you should consider are state and local estimated taxes, real estate and personal property taxes. Consider making any payments by December 31 that are due in January. These could be worth more in 1986 than in 1987.

The second step in your year-end tax planning strategy is to assess your capital gains on your investments.

Beginning in January, 1987, realized long-term capital gains will be taxed at the same rate as the rest of your income. To take advantage of the current relatively lower tax rate, you should consider selling any investments you have held longer than six months that have proven to be particularly profitable.

Finally the area you should review as part of your year-end tax planning is retirement funding. The tax reform bill will affect the most popular plans: IRAs and 401(k)s.

Currently, anyone who is employed or has their own business is allowed to contribute as much as $2,000 a year, fully tax deductible, into an account of their own and as much as $250 into an account for a non-working spouse.

This will change under the new bill. Married couples who have an adjusted gross income exceeding $50,000 will no longer be allowed to take a deduction for an IRA if one or both are covered by an employer's pension plan. Single individuals with an adjusted gross income over $35,000 will also be excluded if they are covered by a pension. Only those who are not able to participate in an employer sponsored pension plan, or make a maximum of $40,000 as a married couple or a maximum of $25,000 as an individual, will retain the full deduction.

Those who find that they fall in-between the cut-off points for determining eligibility and are covered by a pension plan will find that their available deduction will be phased out.

Those who find themselves totally excluded from this deduction can still contribute to an IRA and benefit from the tax deferred income these accounts generate.

Another retirement savings plan that has received considerable attention under the tax reform measure is the 401(k). Beginning in 1987, it will also carry more restrictions for those who have found it to be an ideal way to put away extra savings for retirement.

Under the tax reform bill, the maximum contribution will be restricted to $7,000, down from $30,000. And, those who are eligible to contribute to IRAs will have to make a choice between the two programs which will offer a better tax deduction and a better retirement plan.

Three tips for retirement planning in 1986 are: take advantage of your eligibility to participate in any retirement plan for tax deductions this year; open a new plan that is still available to you under the tax reform act, and if retired, defer taxable distributions from your IRAs, when possible, to save tax dollars under the lower tax brackets in 1987.

Now is the most important time to plan your tax strategy for the next few years. Keep in mind that tax reform does not necessarily mean that your tax burden will be lowered. CPAs advise that with careful and informed tax planning, and the help of an expert, you can maximize your income under the new tax law.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

A Consumer Service from the Office of the Minnesota Attorney General

Health Insurance Benefits: Extending Your Coverage

Many of us, at one time or another, have had reason to be thankful for the benefits we have received through employer sponsored health insurance plans. Most of us are aware of the high medical costs that can ensue because of serious illness or accident and are grateful for that coverage. But, what if you became unemployed? What if you divorce, or even suffer an untimely demise? How would your dependents be assured of financial protection in the event of a costly health crisis?

Minnesota law provides a number of rights in these areas. In addition, recently enacted federal legislation, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (COBRA), expands these rights for group health insurance plans provided by employers who normally have at least 20 employees.

If you are covered through your employment by a group accident and health insurance plan, including HMO coverage, Minnesota Law and COBRA provide that, if your hours are reduced or you become unemployed, you will be eligible to continue that group coverage for eighteen months or until you become re-employed and eligible for health care coverage, whichever is sooner. In order to remain with the group coverage, you will have to pay your former employer the full monthly cost for the coverage — including any amount that was formerly paid by your employer. Within ten days of your employment being terminated, your employer must inform you of your right to continue coverage, the monthly amount you must pay to your employer to retain the coverage, and the manner and time by which you should make your payments to your employer. The employer's notice may be made orally or in writing which may be sent by first class mail to your last known address. These continuation rights may vary if your employer normally employs fewer than 20 employees or if you become unemployed because of the discontinuance or bankruptcy of your business or your disability or retirement.

At the end of eighteen months, or when you are otherwise no longer eligible to remain with the group coverage, you will be eligible to automatically convert to individual coverage, including coverage for your dependents. You will then be able to renew your individual coverage until you become eligible for another health care plan, until you turn sixty-five or become eligible for social security.

The law also provides specific protection to dependents of a person covered by a plan of accident and health insurance, including an HMO. Minnesota law and COBRA both provide that upon the death of a covered employee whose plan includes dependent coverage, the dependents of that person will be eligible to continue with the plan until either the surviving spouse remarries and becomes covered under another insurance plan, or until the date that the coverage would have terminated if the deceased person had lived, whichever is earlier. After 36 months, the insurance may be discontinued even if a remarriage does not make the surviving spouse eligible for another insurance plan.

In order to remain with the accident and health insurance plan, the dependents may have to pay the full cost of the protection. If the coverage is provided under a group policy or plan, any required premiums or amounts must be paid to the group policyholder or contractholder.

Finally, the law imposes certain requirements when there is a divorce invoving a person who has dependent coverage under an accident and health insurance plan, including an HMO. Both Minnesota law and COBRA provide that the dependents under a health protection plan must be able to continue the plan. The coverage must be continued until the spouse remarries and becomes covered under another insurance plan as a result of the remarriage or until the date the coverage would have otherwise terminated, whichever is earlier. After 36 months, the insurance may be discontinued even if the remarriage does not make the spouse eligible for another insurance plan. If the continuation benefits are discontinued because of remarriage or because of the expiration of the coverage for some other reason, the dependent spouse and children will be eligible to automatically convert to an indivudual health protection plan. The dependent spouse and children can continue coverage until the spouse becomes eligible for another plan, turns sixty-five or becomes eligible for social security.

For more specific information about your particular circumstances, you should consult your own attorney. For further information about the law or to register a complaint, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's office, 102 State Capital Building, St. Paul 55155, or call 296-6196.

Business Fraud: It Can Happen To You

Do the terms pirates and hustlers conjure up an image of thieves and liars out to take you for whatever they can? They should. It is estimated that in Minnesota alone, so-called "paper pirates" and "wats-line hustlers" bilk businesses and other organizations out of upwards of two million dollars annually through fraudulent and deceptive sales activities.

Many legitimate companies increasingly rely on the telephone and the mail to solicit new and repeat business. Unfortunately, some not so legitimate operators have the same access to your organization as the honest ones. Any organization that might purchase such things as office supplies, advertising novelties, light bulbs or maintenance supplies should be on the lookout for the sales tactics employed by these phony operators.

Organizations targeted for such solicitations include not only businesses, but also churches, civic and fraternal clubs, charitable organizations and even chambers of commerce. Anyone in a position of purchase or in a position to authorize or make payment for such supplies should be given some fundamental information and guidelines in order to avoid being victimized.

The most prevalent offers to be on guard against are commonly referred to as "boiler room schemes." These are typically made up of several slick talking salespeople, "wats-line hustlers" and "paper pirates," working out of an office in one of the sunbelt states and calling long distance to make their pitch. They offer office supplies of inferior quality, advertising novelties such as pens and key chains, vacation packages and other "free" prizes designed to take you for a ride, and advertising space that doesn't exist.

In one case that came to the attention of the Attorney General's Office a service station ordered several hundred dollars worth of ice scrapers imprinted with the station's name. The scrapers were of such shoddy quality that the owner was too embarrassed to give them away. In another case a company ordered 100 pens for nearly $300 with the promise it would receive as a "prize" a Clearwater Sport Fishing Boat with outboard motor "for only an additional $89 processing fee." It received the merchandise, all right: about $10 worth of cheap ballpoints and a small inflatable rubber raft with a wind-up electric motor. In some cases people have paid a substantial C.O.C. fee for their packages only to open them up to discover old newspaper.

One way the hustlers further their schemes is by calling unwary employees to "verify" the model number of the copy machine or to ask which person is responsible for ordering supplies. With that information the hustler can call the buyer and represent himself as being somehow affiliated with the regular supplier because of his "insider" information. He might use a line such as "the price of these supplies is going up and this will be your last chance to buy at the old price." He might also use that information to generate a phony invoice to fool an organization into paying for supplies if a buyer and correct model number are identified on the invoice.

There are a number of fairly simple guidelines to follow to avoid having your business or other organization victimized by such schemes. Above all, be aware that most such offers insist on C.O.D. terms and normally use the U.S. Post Office for delivery. Currently, by law, you are not allowed to examine C.O.D. materials prior to paying for them and if you stop payment on a check for a Post Office C.O.D. the Post Office will take a collection action against you. As such, the best protection your organization can have is to establish a no C.O.D. rule and insist on open account billing from any new supplier. Some additional guidelines are:

— If a phone solicitor claims to be somehow affiliated with your regular supplier verify that with your supplier.

— Ask for samples of specialty items before you buy.

—Establish effective internal controls regarding billing authorizations and verification of goods and services received before paying invoices.

— Don't allow information about your office equipment to be given out by telephone unless you are certain who the caller is.

— Don't be misled by offers or free gifts and valuable prizes. It is beyond reason to believe that valuable merchandise of free trips will be yours for placing a $2-300 order.

For information about business frauds or to file a complaint, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division at Room 124 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-3353; or, in Duluth at Room 708 Government Services Center, 320 W. 2nd St., Duluth, MN 55802, (218) 723-4891.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Harrassing Hunters . . . Do Rights Make It Right?

Should a citizen of the United States have the right to wave an orange flag and blow a police whistle outside the picnic shelter at Old Mill state park? It's public land and there is no law against blowing whistles or waving flags. Most Americans would say citizens have that right on public grounds.

What if that same citizen chose to wave an orange flag and blow a police whistle from a boat just outside your spread of six dozen decoys on Thief Lake wildlife management area? The lake is public water and we know of no laws against flags or whistles there. Should the same rights stand?

Consider this column written by Nat Hentoff and published in the Washington Post; our comments will follow the reprinted column:

Francelle Dorman, a part-time waitress, lives next to a state forest in Niantic, Conn. In the forest is a marshland where ducks and geese, among other waterfowl, come visiting in the fall and winter. For the past four years, hunters have also been among the visitors, and Francelle Dorman sees the hunters dragging dead birds along the road, leaving blood on the snow. At night, as well as during the day, there is the sound of guns.

On Jan. 30 of this year, she went out to the marsh and approached several of the hunters. Dorman says she did not raise her voice, but she did speak feelingly about what they were doing. Although not an animal-rights activist, she is fond of the Canadian geese and other wildlife whose appearance she welcomes each year, and whose numbers she sees diminish each year.

She told the hunters that they mutilate more waterfowl than they kill, abandoning them to lingering, awful deaths. When Dorman continued speaking her mind, one of the hunters told her she was breaking the law and if she did not desist, he would have her arrested.

Dorman refused to leave the marsh, claiming she had as much right to be there as the hunters did. A peace officer was summoned, Dorman's hands were twisted behind her back, and she was arrested.

Francelle had become the first person to be taken into custody for breaking a 1985 Connecticut statute, lobbied through the Legislature by the Sportsmans' Alliance. It provides criminal penalties ($500 or 90 days in jail) for interfering with or harassing anyone 'engaged in the lawful taking of wildlife or acts in preparation for such taking." While Francelle Dorman did not lay a hand or a stout branch on any of the hunters, she was, they charged, harrassing them by distracting them from going about their killing.

The defendant said she had not known about the law, and now that she did, she considered it a very foolish law. Dorman added that she was under the impression it was not illegal in this country to express one's opinion. Her lawyer at the time felt as strongly as she did that the law was unconstitutional.

On April 3, the case against Francelle Dorman was dismissed. The prosecutor said only that she had been arrested "prematurely." Maybe she had not addressed the hunters long enough; it was hard to tell since the law is so broad and vague. The dismissal left the constitutionality of the statute undecided, and so Francelle Dorman has brought suit in Federal District court asking both that the "harassment of hunters" law be declared unconstitutional and also that she receive compensatory and punitive damages to cover lawyers' fees, lost wages while attending court sessions, and emotional distress.

Her current lawyer, Kathleen Eldergill, has cited, among abundant celebrations of the First Amendment by the Supreme Court, a 1980 ruling that "If the marketplace of ideas is to remain free and open, governments must not be allowed to choose which issues are worth discussing or debating."

Meanwhile, with the season for shooting Canadian geese starting on Nov. 5, Francelle Dorman intends to go next door to the marsh again to try to persuade hunters that they might regard the geese as they do their dogs. They wouldn't like it one bit, she says, if someone shot their dogs.

The Connecticut statute giving hunters the special liberty of preventing others from speaking unkindly to them is not alone in the republic. Twelve other states have laws punishing people who "harrass" hunters. The most recent, approved by Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York, is an amendment to, of all things, the environmental conservation laws.

New York's statute is more narrowly written than Connecticut's, going through considerable trouble to specify that hunters not be struck, shoved, kicked or otherwise physically abused. But all citizens of New York are already protected from assault.

That's not all to the statute, however. You can be sent away for 10 days or fined $250 in New York for a "course of conduct" that serves to "seriously annoy" licensed takers of wildlife. The language is sufficiently ambiguous, says the New York Civil Liberties Union, that speaking sharply to a hunter could be such a course of conduct. Or, I would add, reading to him a chapter from "Bambi."

Gov. Cuomo likes to think of all New Yorkers as part of a "family." But it is a strange household in which certain members of the family, those with guns, are protected by law from criticism by the others.

That is the end of Hentoff's column. If things occurred as he recounts them — even with the sarcastic overtones and plays for emotionalism — it would seem as though the laws in question are ill-conceived and unnecessary. But Hentoff does not attempt to background the reasons for the laws being enacted initially.

There had been — and perhaps continues to be — overt activities by certain preservationist groups and strong-minded individuals to interfere with hunting by parties or individual hunters. These actions include disrupting hunting camps, following hunters with the purpose of alerting and frightening away game animals or birds, and even — in rare circumstances — attempting to physically restrain or assault hunters.

Hunters contended that the state sells them a license to hunt, that the activity is legally conducted, and that they have the right to pursue it without undue interference. An Iowa hunter, for instance, who paid a $100 out of state license fee to hunt deer in Minnesota, would not take too kindly to someone sitting under his tree stand at 6 a.m. practicing the tuba. Similarly, the goose hunters attempting to hunt in the marsh in Hentoff's account, weren't there to carry on conversation. Had Francelle Dorman's intent to make her opinions known to hunters been only that, she could have met them at their vehicles rather than in the marsh.

It may not be necessary to have laws prohibiting such behavior, but it is not the first time laws have been enacted to protect people's rights. Dorman is free to express her opinions in commonly acceptable social circumstances. Freedom is paramount, but rights must have their limitations. Columnist Hentoff probably wouldn't mind a reader being vocally critical of his writing, but would consider it inappropriate to have the tirade take place while he was worshipping with others in a church or synagogue, or having dinner with his family in a quiet restaurant. The same principle applies to the hunter harrassment statutes.

It is again the case of a person's right to swing his arm ending at the tip of another person's nose. Despite Hentoff's interpretation of what took place, the laws are not without reason. Laws are made to protect others against unreasonable people.

Borrowed Nonsense

A husband and wife were not speaking after a bitter argument. At bedtime he handed her a note stating, "Wake me at 6 a.m." When he awoke the next day at nine, he found a note on her pillow stating: "It's six. Get up, you bum!"

The Times — A Great Gift!

Tidbits From The Times

Excerpts from the November 19, 1936 Times, re-written by Sharon LaCoursiere.

Approximately 500 hunters from Pennington county sallied forth last weekend to seek the elusive buck. Among the first hunters to return with trophies were H.M. Olson, George Mostue, Carlie Johnson, Art Bredeson, Cliff Myrin, August Holmberg, A.J. Cloutier, James Newland, Henry Van Pelt and Willis Carlisle of Detroit Lakes, who hunted with his brother, W.L. Carlisle.

The largest bucks entered in the Kelly Hardware contest were those of Newland and Van Pelt at 225 pounds each, and Ray and Lloyd Dougherty of Grygla, 195 pounds each. The contest will continue until the close of the season.

Building projects completed or begun in 1936 represented a total amount of $250,000 in Thief River Falls. Included in new construction was the winter sports arena, with expenditure of $40,000. Other large building ventures were the new Oen Mercantile and the office and apartment building being erected by Thomas Waale and Dr. O.G. Lynde on LaBree avenue.

Other businesses improved or erected were remodeling of the Lyceum theatre into a store and apartment building, seed cleaning plant and garage erected by Fred Forsberg and Sons, garage and warehouse by the state highway department, addition to the B.E. Dahlquist building on Third street, Northern Trading company warehouse, dry cleaning building for the Narvarud cleaners, remodeling of the Aaseby garage, warehouse for the Thief River Falls Seed House, garage for O'Hara Fuel and Ice company, and remodeling of the William Gilbertson store on Main avenue.

New homes in the city were those of Gust Onseth, Tom Nesland, Lester Ringstrand, H.M. Grendahl, Swedish Evangelical Free church parsonage, Stanton R. Dahlen, William Frolland, A.F. Olson, Ray R. Harris, H.O. Tommerdahl, O.F. Halldin, T.C. Orme, A.B. Kriel, Dr. L.V. Johnson, F.A. Rinkel, Mrs. A. Lein, M.T. McFarland, three bungalows by Herbert Gulseth, Carl J. Lundgren, H.N. Elofson, Roy Barzen, John Lind, George Williamson and Alfred M. Johnson.

A Times editorial announced the setting into motion of the new policy of old age insurance as provided for in the Social Security Act. January 1, 1937, will see the beginning of the new payroll taxes, half paid by employer and half by employee.

Benefits of the plan were extolled — the compulsory setting aside of a provision for a person's old age and retirement. The Times found one big drawback in the lack of coverage for some employees and employers — those for whom employment was so sporadic that it could not be kept track of properly. They would be forced to pay a substantial part of costs for those receiving benefits. Farmers would be among those who would not benefit.

Expressing the hope that this weakness would be rectified, the Times concluded that, "....all in all, the plan has much to recommend it. Defects, as time and experience bring them to the surface, can be corrected. Certainly, as a result of forcing people to make reasonable provision for their old age, millions will face the declining years of their lives with that much to be desired spirit of independence that is so essential to happiness."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I believe that, unfortunately, neither Mayor Carlson of Thief River Falls, nor Don Stewart of Thief River's "Jobs Incorporated," really understood what they were doing when they approached the air force with an invitation to invade our area as a site for the proposed OTH-B radar system. This construction, and installation, will succeed only in thoroughly despoiling our land. The potential danger is enormous.

Once the military absorbs our land, in essence owns and controls it, this area could become a magnet for every dump the military needs. The land could be fenced off in the name of "classified military security," and become a cesspool for everything we fought against.

There would be NOTHING to stop the construction of a hazardous waste site — in the name of military security. There would be NOTHING to prevent the building of just that type of high-level nuclear waste repository we all fought so hard to stop, this also in the name of military security. We could well become the dumping ground for everything the military wants hidden — no matter what they may "promise" now.

Who, or what, can stop them once they are "in." And in place of good and productive farm land, both Thief River Falls and Warren will find themselves surrounded by military sewage.

During the powerline struggle in Southern Minnesota a few years ago — which began just as quietly as our struggle here — one farmer commented: "What this...really boils down to, I think, is a violation of the civil rights of rural people who are treated like a colony to be exploited and have no political power to do anything about it...They are using the law to make farmers political prisoners on their own land."

Don't let what happened to those people happen to us. Attend the hearing on Thursday, November 20, at 7 p.m. at the city auditorium.

Sincerely,
-s- Mary Gjerde

— Local auto dealers are all puffed up with the compliments they are receiving for the high quality of the show they staged last week.

— President Roosevelt's liberal supporters will view with alarm the news that one of his sons is to marry the daughter of the DuPont Liberty Leaguer.

— A fat man, we understand, is notable for his daily doesn't.

— The deer season opened without much of any snow, which was a break for the deer.

— Considering the fine record the University of North Dakota football team made this year, its supporters will be excused if they think N.D. stands for something besides Notre Dame.

— Speaking of paying election bets, the Republicans were the most liberal party after the returns came in.

— Washington, D.C., we understand, is so crowded with government functionaries that it was necessary to go to Baltimore to find room for the social security division now being set up.

— It's getting so you can't believe anything anymore. Now a Columbia university professor tells us an apple a day won't keep the doctor away.

— Even tho Thanksgiving day is only a week distant, community-minded folks don't welcome the news that turkeys are to be sold more cheaply this year.

— Red Lake Falls folks can't be very superstitious. They dedicated their new community building Friday the 13th.

— With President Roosevelt due to remain in office another four years, that Red Lake river project he approved late last summer for completion this fall may yet become a reality.

I am always skeptical about the role of the farm and related farm problems when they are part of the political debate of an election campaign. I am especially skeptical when the farm problems become wrapped up in a campaign for state elective offices.

First of all, I believe that, by and large, the problems affecting farming and life in our rural communities can be laid at the feet of the federal government, not the state government. It was the federal government that created the series of grain embargoes, including the one lifted by president Reagan in 1981, that have contributed most to our economic woes on the farm.

Similarly, it is only the federal government that can promote programs like the export enhancement program. And, it is only through such programs that we will have any hope of ever restoring our old world markets, as well as creating new ones.

Certainly, there are some things that the state government can do and, in Minnesota, we have been fortunate in having our state as one of the leaders in this area.

One of the things state government can do is with taxes. The taxes that most readily cause immediate problems for farmers are sales taxes on equipment and property taxes on land. The latter is particularly painful and difficult to pay on crop land that is not producing a cash crop, or is producing crops that don't provide any real net income to the farmers.

That's the problems with property taxes. They never take into account whether the property being taxed made a buck or lost a fortune. The property tax deadlines come twice a year, regardless of what has happened to the property being taxed.

Our state government appears to have acted in both of these areas. They eliminated or lowered the sales tax on new and used farm equipment, while at the same time providing changes in the calculation formulas for agricultural land property taxes. As always, however, there is more to be done.

I fully expect that the governor and the legislature will approach 1987 with a program that will significantly reduce the property taxes on farm land even more. In the gubernatorial race, both Cal Ludeman and Rudy Perpich have favored the state picking up the 23.5 mill local property tax levy now required to cover school costs.

Beyond little touches like that, there is not much state officials can do. Where we need the pressure is in the congressional races. Unfortunately, most of these races across the country are run in urban areas far from the problems of the American farm.

Russ Schwandt is a farmer, agribusinessman, former Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's, board member of the Seaway Port Authority of Duluth and President of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations and companies in the state's agriculture industry.

Perhaps the easiest way to convey the purpose served by a futures market is to go back in time and briefly trace the development of the grain futures markets. In the 1840s, farmers would bring their newly-harvested grain to Chicago in the hopes of finding buyers. Since a large number of farmers would be doing the same thing at about the same time of year, an oversupply of grain sellers and an undersupply of grain buyers resulted. Under this scenario, the buyers were able to make the lowest possible bid and still satisfy their short-term purchase needs. There was little storage space available, so the grain sellers were virtually forced to accept the low prices.

Eventually, grain stocks would run low and demand would exceed supply. As grain supplies were depleted, prices for the scarce commodities would soar.

It became increasingly apparent to both buyers and sellers of grain that an orderly, centralized marketplace was needed to minimize the wild price swings and establish quality and product uniformity standards for grains all year round. In the late 1840s the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT), a self-governing business association, was founded to fulfill just such a role.

From their humble beginnings to the present, the role of the futures markets has remained relatively unchanged. A futures contract is an agreement to make or take delivery of a specific commodity of standardized quality and quantity at a specified date in the future. The price is determined by competitive auction in a trading pit and is mutually agreed upon by the buyer and seller. To guarantee performance on the contracts, both parties deposit funds, known as performance margin, with the exchange's clearing corporation. The clearing corporation for the CBOT serves as an independent third party.

Futures markets perform a valuable economic function, providing a vehicle for managing price risk while contributing to the price discovery process. Anyone engaged in producing or purchasing commodities such as soybeans, corn and wheat faces the risk that prices will move adversely. Farmers know all too well that an adverse price price move can reduce or eliminate profits, preventing the implementation of business plans.

Futures markets enable individuals such as farmers, elevator operators and exporters, faced with the risk of adverse price movement in the cash market, to hedge by taking offsetting positions in the futures markets. Hedging involves the establishment of a futures position equal and opposite to the participant's cash market position. In this way, an adverse price move resulting in a loss on one position, be it the cash or futures position, can be offset by a corresponding profit on the other position because cash and futures prices have a tendency to move in the same direction. In addition to providing a price barometer, the futures markets exist so that farmers, grain elevators and commercial concerns can utilize hedging to reduce their price risks.

Public participation in futures markets allows hedgers to transfer unwanted price risk to speculators. Speculators are willing to assume this risk in the hopes of profiting from the accurate prediction of future commodity price movements. Speculators play an integral role in the market-place, providing the liquidity that enables the hedger — both large and small — to enter and exit the futures market with ease.

As centralized markets, futures exchanges bring together the most accurate available information and the best substantiated beliefs regarding the course of future commodity price movements. The trading floor of an exchange is the scene of an open auction in which prices are set competitively through open outcry. This open auction system enables the opinions and expectations of buyers and sellers to converge into the prices quoted on exchange trading floors. This system is called price discovery.

These prices represent the best current estimate of commodity values and, as such, furnish the agribusiness community with a valid barometer of price expectations that can be utilized in the development of future business plans.

TIMES Around The Region

WW I Veterans

Middle River — The Middle River American Legion auxiliary celebrated Veterans' day with a tea for four widows of World War I veterans, Elsie Christofferson, Clara Hanson, Hilda Orpen and Vienna Grondahl, and Gold Star Mother, Bertina Nelson. Junior auxiliary members presented a program and the luncheon featured a special cake. Three living World War I veterans, Emil Lundquist, Strathcona; W.C. Searle, Middle River; and Emil Ornquist, Thief River Falls, were unable to attend the Veterans' Tea.

On The Prowl

Bemidji — Several townships in the Bemidji area are having problems with dogs running loose, and are calling for animal control ordinances to eliminate the problem. It is recommended that the county provide animal control officer services in cooperation with the city of Bemidji and that the county should contract boarding services with a private provider and a private contract for disposing of animals. Northern township has passed an ordinance calling for enforcement and control of animals running at large and for "nuisance" animals. A nuisance animal is defined as one which "habitually or frequently barks or cries at night, frequents school grounds, parks or public beaches, chases vehicles, molests or annoys any person away from the property of his owner or custodian, or damages, defiles or destroys public or private property."

Ambulance Subsidy Cut

Fertile — Polk county commissioners delegated a cut of just over 14 per cent in the County Emergency Medical services' operating subsidy November 3. County EMS, a non-profit operation, provides advanced life support ambulance service to 14 area townships. Steve Belau, chief operating officer and paramedic, said about the decision, "This is an independent tax district and the county commissioners are taking our funds for other county budget items. Their methods are contrary to the public's best interests. It's a sad day when unseen elements of society can axe what the majority seems to want."

The Sharing Tree

Grygla — The Grygla Women of Today are sponsoring a toy drive together with the Grygla Hartz store. The public is invited to pick a numbered ornament from a tree displayed in the store and buy a gift for the child corresponding with the number. Age, sizes and description of the child are given on the back of the ornament. The Women of Today will wrap all gifts when they are brought to the store, to avoid duplication. Theme of this year's toy drive is, "the Sharing Tree."

Catch Those Speeders

Oklee — The Oklee city council was asked at their regular meeting to reinforce the 30 mph speed limit on highway 222 through town with more visible police protection. Council members agreed that the fast traffic through the area has been a dangerous situation this past year. The council passed a resolution to move the speed limit signs further south so that the traffic would be slower as it gets into the city.

Williams' Wolf

Williams — A wolf shot by Elmer Nelson in 1949 still stands as mascot of the Williams school. The new community center, which is the old Williams school, sports the same old wolf in a refurbished trophy case, along with several of the school's old trophies.

Fillip Of The Coin

Warren — Roy Engh became the new mayor of the city of Warren by a "fillip" of the coin November 7. He and Mayor Glenn Halvorson tied for the position in the election with 509 votes each, necessitating a coin toss for the final decision. City Attorney Drenckhan flipped the coin, but instead of merely turning up heads or tails, the contrary coin decided to take a tour around the city council chambers, rolling across the floor at a wobbly pace just to prolong the final result. After several agonizing seconds, it finally flopped down with tails up, making Mr. Engh the new mayor. Mayor Engh announced plans to organize efforts to have Warren named a Star City and appointed several new committeemen and an acting mayor.

Is It Worth It?

Karlstad — A request for a $2,500 appropriation for the Area Ag Information Center in Thief River Falls was questioned by the Kittson county board of commissioners at their regular meeting November 3. They stated that only one farmer from Kittson county had been served by the center so far. They have asked for a further report by their November 14 meeting.

Hansons Top Farmers

Red Lake Falls — Patrick and Paulette Hanson have been named Conservation Farmers of the Year, a special recognition for outstanding farmers, by the Red Lake County Soil and Water Conservation District. The Hansons live on a farm two miles east of Red Lake Falls on county road 1 and raise barley and corn as main crops on their 600-acre farm. The award to the Hansons consists of an aerial photo of their farm and a partially expense-paid trip to the state convention in December.

Easy Assignment

Red Lake Falls — All Red Lake Falls elementary school students and high school English classes were instructed to write a short essay on education as part of American Education week. The Red Lake Falls Gazette published several of the essays in the November 12 issue.

Plummer Feed

Plummer — The Plummer Lions club held their first annual buffalo feed November 7, serving 140 people who dared venture out in the first blizzard of the year. Bert W. Johnson of International Falls was the lucky winner of a .270 caliber bolt-action rifle.

US Trade Deficit Will Shrink With Declining Dollar

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

An awful lot hangs on the behavior of the monstrous U.S. trade deficit. Those of us who see the economy moving pretty well in the next year or so — expanding at close to a three per cent rate — can only be right if the trade deficit shrinks, and it will.

The critical thing we have going for us — both for the U.S. economy and for upbeat forecasters — is the favorable impact of a cheaper dollar, which makes our exports cheaper and our imports more expensive.

I believe that we have now turned the corner and that the trade deficit will recede from its present level of about $170 billion a year to perhaps $130 to $140 billion by the end of next year. That's still a whopping deficit. Yet, if it shrinks that much, it will mean that domestic producers will have to raise output by $30 to $40 billion to fill the gap. If the deficit fails to shrink, there goes the ball game for 1987.

Since the cheaper dollar is so critical to the trade turnaround — and therefore to a better economic outlook and a lessening of protectionist pressures — it's important to know how much the dollar really has eased against the currencies of our trading partners.

We know that from its peak early last year, the dollar has dropped most — about 40 per cent — against the yen and the German mark. But some observers argue that if you give full weight to the countries whose currencies have not strengthened against the dollar — Canada, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and so on, whose exports to us have been rising sharply — the dollar has hardly dropped at all. That view doesn't hold water.

Giving each country's currency the weight that represents its percentage of our imports last year, one finds that the dollar has dropped 20 per cent on the average from last year's highs. A 20 per cent cheaper dollar is bound to boost U.S. exports and curb our imports.

It does take time for these effects to take hold. That's why this year's trade deficit will still set new records. But for next year, the trade deficit will shrink, the dollar will become even cheaper and U.S. output will rise accordingly.

Rep. Stangeland Outlines 100th Congress Ideas

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has outlined his legislative agenda for the forthcoming 100th Congress, assuming his narrow reelection victory will be upheld by the state canvass board or in a recount.

Stangeland ranks the farm issue, environmental issues and the federal deficit as his three top priorities.

A senior member of the House agriculture committee, he agrees that the 1985 farm bill needs some "fine tuning" but that it also needs sufficient time to take effect before it is judged. He said he is hesitant to make any drastic changes quickly but will consider all well thought out corrections that create a more efficient and effective farm policy. He also intends to continue to push for a marketing loan for grains.

Disappointed in the recent Presidential veto of the 1986 clean water bill, the congressman is in a pivotal position as a ranking member of the water resources bus-committee to assist in early passage upon re-introduction of this bill. Stangeland is confident that not only will the clean water legislation be one of the first pieces of legislation introduced in the 100th Congress but it also will be one of the first to become law. Stangeland believes a veto override will occur if another Presidential veto is envoked.

As a sixth term Congressman, he said he will continue to work with his colleagues to reduce the federal deficit. He favors a freeze on federal expenditures, including the defense budget.

"It is the careful allocation of federal dollars combined with state and local dollars that can and will be the most effective means of addressing the public's concerns and needs," he said.

LOCAL MEA presented a "Friends Of Education" award to Gretchen Beito Wednesday in Thief River Falls during American Education week. The students are students of David Stromlund's class at Mark Twain.

Education Ass'n. Presents Its Second Award To Beito

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Thief River Falls education association presented a second "Friends of Education" award last Wednesday. Even though this award is given at the state and national level, a local award has not been made since 1976.

For her great contributions to education in Thief River Falls, Gretchen Beito was presented the "Friends of Education" award. Beito has contributed her knowledge of art to broadening the experiences of students in Thief River Falls, and her time to participating on many committees.

Beito said she started going to the schools eight years ago when her own daughter was in the fourth grade. She believes all children should find something they love, and she's there to offer her knowledge in art.

She is married to Gene Beito and has three children — David who is working on his master's of business administration at Columbia University in New York City, Kathryn, who works for the division of missions for the American Lutheran church in Minneapolis, and Laura, who is a senior at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. She is a former teacher in Jacksonville, MO, and Minneapolis where she grew up.

Since Beito began the program, the circle of people assisting with various art projects has increased to 13 and taken on a name. The Art Adventurers own about 30 prints, Beito said, which they take to schools to give students a broader exposure to art. The group visits grades 3, 4, and 5 of all of the public schools in Thief River Falls as well as one second grade and St. Bernard's and Our Saviour's academy.

Beito said the group got its start because Thief River Falls' public schools did not have an elementary art instructor. She said they approached the school board about visiting the schools and the board gave its approval.

The local Minnesota Education association, represented by Jodi Carter, Wednesday noted Beito's positive attitude toward education and the ideas she has generated, which has led to the betterment of education in Thief River Falls. They also recognized her participation on several committees.

More Answers To OTH-B Site Given

A calm and orderly crowd of nearly 225 people attended Thursday nights OTH-B hearing in Thief River Falls. Briefings by Col. James Lee and John Mitchell of the school of aerospace medicine at Brooks Air Force base, TX, took up the first hour of public meeting.

Before the floor opened to a structured question and comment period the air force gave its official position on the proposed Over-the-Horizon-Backscatter (OTH-B) radar sites which defined the scope and possible effects of the project.

Col. Lee said the OTH-B project extends the 30 minute warning that would come from line of sight radar already in place to four hours. He said the project would help ensure that no window of vulnerability would exist.

Benefits of the OTH-B include high tolerance to possible sources of interference, and little or no interference created by the project; no biological effects; and it is operational.

However, Col. Lee said, the design of the project strictly limits the area where it can be located at. He said that if he had a choice he would look for land totally unproductive, but that is not possible.

Because of the limitations to the project and the environmental impact site draft, the preferred locations for a receive site is Blanchard, ND, and Thief River Falls site. For the same reasons the preferred location for transmit sites are the Wheaton site and Amherst, SD, site.

Research from a large number of different sources indicate little or no biological effects from radio frequency radiation emitted by OTH-B, said John Mitchell of the school of aerospace medicine at Brooks Air

DAC Board Reinstates Armstrong As Director

Under a resolution adopted unanimously by the board of directors of the Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls Thursday, director Evan Armstrong was reinstated as director with full access to the center and full supervisory authority over employees. He is to have no direct supervision over participants for a 60-day period with a review by the board to take place at the end of that time.

With only one board member absent (Gladys Odegaard, secretary-treasurer), the board adopted the resolution and directed its attorney, Larry McDowell, to inform the state department of human services of the decision. The state had requested a response to its order — removing the director from the center — within 30 days.

Members of the board in attendance Thursday were LeRoy Larson, chairman, Paul Johnson, Louise Fisher, Anna Hanson and Ernest Derosier.

The board met from about 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the center and reviewed its investigative report prior to adopting the resolution. In his letter to the state department of human services, McDowell points out that the DAC board investigation regarding allegations in the affidavits filed by three employees of the center showed only two instances which could be considered problem areas. All other allegations were determined by the board to be without merit.

The two incidents involved one situation in which Armstrong was alleged to have verbally abused a client and one in which he was alleged to have sat on a client. The board could not determine in the first case that the director may not have spoken loudly to people generally in the area. In the second case the board could not discount the possibility that the director used restraint to protect the client from injuring himself or others.

All other allegations in the affidavits, McDowell's letter points out, were either unsupported by incident reports filed at the center at the time they were alleged to have taken place, or reports of incidents contained no reference to the abuse alleged in the affidavits.

McDowell's letter points out that the three employees of the center who filed the affidavits of abuse refused to talk to board representatives conducting the investigation or with an individual requested by the board to secure information from them. He also notes that the board's investigation involved interviewing about 10 former employees of the center, none of whom had observed the director abuse clients.

In addition to informing the state agency of the decision to reinstate the director, the board's attorney was instructed to write a letter to Armstrong to advise him of his immediate reinstatement.

McDowell said that the board has not been provided with information from the county or state agencies which show substantiation of the abuse allegations. If the state has such additional facts and information, he said, the board would like to have it provided. Based on its own investigation, however, it can't find sufficient justification for dismissal of the director.

According to McDowell, the DAC board has received only two contacts by letter from the state. The first advised the board to remove the director from contact with clients and remove his supervisory authority over employees. The second contained a number of suggested corrections which the state agency asked to be implemented by Novembe 30.

McDowell said the board voted to comply with the requested corrections but to ask for an extension of the November 30 deadline. He said the letter was dated October 29 but the envelope contained a November 14 postmark. The short notice, particularly in view of the Thanksgiving holiday, would make it difficult to comply with the deadline.

DAC Parent Group Asks Answers To Questions On Abuse

Parent group from the Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls has sent a letter to local legislators and members of the county welfare board asking answers to questions regarding recent happenings at the center.

The letter was mailed Friday to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls and county welfare board members Albert Koop, Roger Hoffman, Skip Swanson, Don Grabanski, Joyce Fox and Iris Furuseth.

Members of the parents group listed were Ernest Derosier, Lyle Hanson, George Gilbert, Myrtle Gilbert, Eleanor Ose, Ella Larson, Elta Larson, Janice Jones, Wallace Jones, Rhodella Tieman and Louise Fisher.

The letter states the following:

"We as parents and care providers of the Falls Day Activity center participants, would like to request your assistance in clarifying and resolving the existing situation at the Falls Day Activity center. We are sure you are aware of the allegations that have appeared in the newspapers, radio and television.

"We have been informed only by the DAC board, on three separate occasions, concerning the events of late. Based on the information we received from the DAC board's investigation, they have not been able to substantiate the allegations submitted in the abuse reports affidavits. Apparently the local and state investigative personel are aware of more information than we have been allowed.

"Based on the information we have been given, we can not find Mr. Armstrong guilty of anything. In all this publicity and confusion we seem to be forgetting the needs of the participants who the center is to serve. We also underestimate the participants' feelings and emotional turmoil they are being subjected to.

"We would like you to address the following questions:

(1) "What were the substantiated abuse reports? The parents of the DAC participants have not been informed by investigative committees if it is pertaining to our sons or daughters.

(2) "If it is the main concern of our local government to assure continuity of DAC programming, why did they elect to suspend funding to the DAC and how can this help?

(3) "Of what advantage was the point to discuss possible merger with the ODC at this time in the public view without allowing the DAC board to discuss the feelings of the parents first?

"Your immediate response will be greatly appreciated."

OTH-B Hearing In TRF Draws Large Crowd

John Mitchell
School of Aerospace Medicine

Col. James Lee
U.S. Air Force

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Not unlike previous meetings on the proposed OTH-B site near Thief River Falls, many of the same questions came up, but Col. James Lee and John Mitchell of the school of aerospace medicine at Brooks Air Force base, TX, attempted to answer many before they were asked.

A four page written document was presented at the door before the meeting began. The document listed 25 of the most repeated questions and provided answers.

Tom Kenville, Jobs Inc. special representative, noted that the written document marked the second time the Air Force had diverted from normal procedure to give written answers to specific questions. His appreciation for this effort was echoed by opposition members who were nonetheless critical of the OTH-B site.

Before the structured question and answer and comment periods began Col. Lee told the crowd of nearly 225 people gathered in the Thief River Falls city auditorium, that Thief River Falls and Blanchard, ND, sites were the preferred locations for the receive site. He said the Wheaton and Amherst, SD, sites were the preferred sites for the transmit sites. Location, he said of the sites was narrowed to these areas because of the environmental impact statement and the fact that the design of the project strictly limits where it can be built. He said he would prefer to have it located on land totally unproductive if possible, but for the project to complete its intended purpose it would have to be located in this area.

The final draft of the environmental impact statement will be released sometime around April, Col. Lee said. The date for the release of that document has been pushed back because the comment period has been extended twice. He said he did not expect the comment period to be extended a third time beyond December 8.

Few people spoke up in favor of the OTH-B site at this meeting, except

Koni Koropatnicki Wed To James Sagstuen September 20

Koni Koropatnicki and James Sagstuen were married September 20 at Bethany Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Eugene Floistad officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Koropatnicki of rural Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sagstuen of rural Newfolden.

Grace Hammer, friend of the couple, served as organist for the ceremony, playing "Bridal Chorus" as the processional. Don Lunke, cousin of the groom, sang selections of "Follow Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was decorated with mauve, pink and white streamers and bells, with pink bows marking the pews. On the altar was a bouquet of pink carnations.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a matte taffeta gown lavished with lace. Venise lace trimmed the close-fitting bodice, which was adorned with a high lace collar, sheer illusion net yoke and taffeta Juliet sleeves detailed with cut-outs revealing Venise lace. Venise lace trimmed the basque waistline. The skirt featured a double ruffled back flowing to a cathedral length train.

She wore a bridal derby hat covered in satin and Chantilly lace and trimmed with Venise lace medallions, sequins and seed pearls. A soft bridal pouf and fingertip veil were held in place with a large, white satin bow. She carried a lace-backed cascading bouquet of mauve azaleas, white roses and lilies, with ivy and satin ribbon streamers. Her personal attendant was Darcey Lewis.

Maid of honor was Kim Swanson, Thief River Falls, sister of the bride. Serving as bridesmaids were Kelly Olson, Thief River Falls, sister of the bride, and Karin Garthus, Warroad, friend of the bride. They wore pink Tina satin gowns with sweetheart necklines featuring short, puffed sleeves with rosette trim, and a full, gathered skirt topped with a back-bowed cummerbund. They wore their gifts from the bride, pearl necklaces and earrings. They carried round bouquets of mauve azaleas with white lilies.

Daidre King, friend of the couple from Warroad, was the flower girl, wearing a satin gown with chiffonet overlay with Point-d'esprit lace yoke and high ruffled neckline ties with white satin ribbon and short, puffed sleeves edged in lace. The hooped skirt was trimmed with a flounced ruffle.

Ring bearer was Jason Nelson, cousin of the bride, Goodridge. He wore a white tuxedo with mauve cummerbund and tie and carried a white satin ring pillow.

The groom was attired in white tails with matching bow tie and cummerbund and wore a boutonniere of a single white rose with mauve azaleas and babies' breath.

Serving as best man was the groom's brother, Gary Sagstuen, of Grand Forks, ND. Larry Larson and James Garthus, both friends of the couple from Warroad, were groomsmen. Ushering the guests were Jerry Humble, David Myers, brothers-in-law of the groom, both from Grand Forks, ND, and Rob Swanson and Tron Olson, brothers-in-law of the bride, both of rural Thief River Falls.

Gentlemen of the wedding party wore Miami Vice tuxedos in flamingo with shawl lapels in linen-look fabric, with matching accessories and white pleated pants. Their boutonnieres were a mauve aazaleas and white lily with greenery.

The mother of the bride wore burgundy taffeta in a tea-length gown with sweetheart neckline, short, full sleeves trimmed with lace, and dropped waistline. Her accessories were a pearl necklace and earrings. The mother of the groom wore a rose, street-length gown with high, banded lace collar, long sleeves, and a fitted bodice with lace overlay and A-line skirt. Their corsages were mauve azaleas, white lilies and babies' breath.

Honored guests were Celia Koropatnicki, grandmother of the bride; Jennifer Olson and Lindsey Swanson, nieces of the bride; and Kerrie Meyers, niece of the groom. Flowers were fashioned by LaVonne Forsberg, friend of the couple.

Following the wedding, a reception was given for 250 guests in the church parlors by the parents of the bride. Host couples were Larry and Beth Skallet and Lee and Julie Norman.

The white, three-tiered wedding cake was baked and decorated by Olive Wiskow, featuring pink and mauve roses and white sugar bells. Mardell Humble and Renae Myers, sisters of the groom, cut and served the wedding cake. Pouring was Phyllis Koropatnicki, the bride's aunt.

Michelle and Tammy Skallet, cousins of the bride, served punch; the groom's sister-in-law, Lynette Sagstuen, registered the guests; and Jodie Humble, the groom's niece, and Leah Kuzel, friend of the bride, arranged the gifts. Waitresses were Susie Olson, Ann Wright and Tricia Olson, friends of the bride.

The couple is at home at Woodcrest apartments in Warroad, where they are both employed at Marvin Windows. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, and the groom of Newfolden high school.

Cook's Choice

Beef Or Venison Jerky

- $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 pounds boneless meat, partially frozen
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ teaspoon onion powder
- 1 teaspoon Hickory smoke flavored salt
- 1 tablespoon liquid smoke

Trim and discard all the fat from the meat. Cut the meat with the grain ¼ inch thick. This makes it more chewy. Make the pieces 1 and one-half inches wide and as long as possible. Combine all the spices in a bowl and stir well to dissolve the spices. Add meat strips and mix well, coating all surfaces. The meat will absorb most liquid. Refrigerate for about 24 hours, stirring several times to make sure all meat is coated. Shake off excess liquid. Arrange meat close together on cake racks or oven racks. Set pans under meat to catch the drips and dry in a 150-200 degree oven about four hours. It turns brown and feels hard and dry to the touch when it is done. Pat off the oil and store in refrigerator.

Donna Parnow of Goodridge is to be thanked for sending us the above recipe. She says she usually doubles or triples the recipe, and leaves the oven door open a few inches to let out the steam. She said a food dehydrator works well too, if there is just a small batch, and this usually takes 8 to 12 hours to dry in the dehydrator. She also sent a recipe for Poor Man's Salami, which will be in next Monday's Times.

Readers are invited to share their favorite recipes in the Cook's Choice column. Mail recipes to Cook's Choice, Thief River Falls Times, Box 100, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All recipes will be published.

The INSIDE SCOOP

From Lincoln High

by GAYLE BORCHERT

The VICA club is another organization that many students belong to. VICA stands for Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. It is the largest organization of its type in the nation and has approximately 275,000 members nationwide.

Locally Mr. Tom Lawrence is the VICA advisor, and he has about 35 students involved. This club is specifically designed for students who are taking vocational classes and want to get involved in skill competition. All vocational students at the center school are included.

One of the most important features of VICA is that it provides both leadership and a learning experience. Students participate in leadership opportunities by electing officers and organizing events. In October the regional officers went the fall delegate assembly in Duluth where they elected state officers. Lorie Referson, a senior from Lincoln, was elected a state officer.

The learning experience provided by VICA comes by participating in the competition known as Skills Olympics. Each VICA member participates at the regional competition in February which is held here in Thief River Falls. The winners then advance to the state competition in March in the Twin Cities. Winners at the state level advance to national competition which this year will be held in Kansas City. Two years ago, two of our members advanced to the national level and placed quite high.

To help sponsor these students, VICA has fundraisers such as dances and selling candy bars. The members also try to get together every month and do something special. This month they are all going to a movie together.

Clayton Restad, math teacher at Lincoln, retired last week after teaching for 29 years. Also, Sue Lindemoen, secretary at Lincoln, had a baby boy. Congratulations to all.

Winter sports practices are in full swing. Winter sports include boys' and girls' basketball, boys' swimming, hockey and cheerleading.

On Wednesday, the sophomore class will be participating in a health survey. Thursday and Friday all students have school off due to Thanksgiving vacation.

OUR NEW STUDENT OF THE WEEK — ANGIE SYVERSON. Angie is a freshman at Lincoln and is the younger sister of Cynda Syverson. She moved here from Newfolden. She enjoys motorcycling, rollerskating, ice skating and dancing. She participated in speech club at Marshall County Central and is active in volleyball, pep band, choir and playing the drums in the concert band. She is also an FHA member.

Week's Activities

November 25 — Girl's basketball at Newfolden;

November 27-28 — Thanksgiving vacation.

November 29 — Hockey jamboree at East Grand Forks.

THE TOPIC WAS TAXIDERMY when these students from the Goodridge elementary school attended one of the many mini-courses offered during the school day Thursday in observance of American Education week. Patti Johnson, a teacher in the Goodridge schools, showed some of her efforts in taxidermy, including a weasel and a number of mounted deer antlers. Other mini-session courses included such topics as "Kids on the Block" puppets, a visit with a veterinarian, raising fox, cake decorating, learning about dairy, bike safety, snowmobile safety, karate, cheerleading, musical instrument demonstrations, raising rabbits and how to knit. Adults were given a different set of courses during an evening program.

More Answers To OTH-B Site Given At Meeting

Force base, TX. The data base for the OTH-B system is based on that research, assured Mitchell.

When the public entered the auditorium a prepared statement answering the top 25 questions received by the Air Force were available. Among those questions and answers, those that have not been discussed previously are as follows:

1) "Why can't the OTH-B job be done with AWACS aircraft or satellites? The number of AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System) aircraft that would be needed to provide a continuous 24 hour per day coverage of the large area which the OTH-B covers would be prohibitively expensive. A single sector of the OTH-B radar can scan over an area of 2 million square miles. The cost of that single sector is about the same as the cost of a single AWACS aircraft. The capability for wide area detection and tracking by satellite is not expected in the foreseeable future. The OTH-B radar system is the only near-term, cost-effective system that we can deploy at this time.

2) "would there be any restrictions on land use around the receive site? No, there would be no restrictions on either the recreational or farming use of the land outside of the boundary or exclusion fence. Hunting, to include the use of firearms, would not be restricted. Nor would there be any restriction, or interference with the use of high tech farming practices, e.g., laser beams, closed circuit television, or electronic monitoring devices. Because the use of arc welders could cause potential interference to the OTH-B receive system, the receive antenna sectors would not be located near any large-scale arc welding operations. For short term use of arc welders for farm repair near the receive antennas, the Air Force may ask for advance notice of such use.

3) "What about the use of aerial crop spraying? A restricted airspace at least one mile in front of the transmit antenna sectors and extending 5,000 feet above ground will be established with the FAA. Where aerial spraying is required for farmland directly in front of the sectors, the Air Force will work with the affected landowners to develop a mitigation plan which would permit necessary aerial spraying. By proper selection of radar transmit characteristics, together with minimum radar downtimes, aerial crop spraying could take place up to the fence boundary line.

4) "What will happen to the roads where the radar sites are located? Roads which pass directly through one of the antenna sectors will be closed; however, the government will construct new roads around the antenna sectors. Where some county roads are inadequate for construction traffic as well as year-around operational use, the government will upgrade these roads. Recognizing that the addition of new roads, or upgrading of roads may cause additional expenses for the county, the government will consider providing for the permanent maintenance of these roads as part of its mitigation plan.

5) "Is the air force serious about considering leasing the land? Yes, the government is willing to lease the land at both the transmit and receive site. If a landowner were interested in leasing his land, specific terms and conditions would be negotiated between the owner and the Corps of Engineers acting as agents for the Air Force. As an example, the owner could negotiate a long term 25 year lease covering the minimum expected operational and construction time with the annual lease payment, established at fair market lease value, to be reevaluated every five years. During the lease period, the lease payments would be paid directly to the owner, and the owner would continue to be responsible for tax payments or other such assessments on the land.

6) "The loss of tax revenue from such a large acreage could be significant. What can be done to offset this loss and keep other owner's taxes from increasing? The government recognizes the potential impact of this revenue loss. The options of leasing the land rather than direct purchase was approved in part of mitigate against this loss, since the owner of the land would continue paying the taxes. The impact on road maintenance costs was addressed under question (four) above and represents another mitigation action by the government. In addition, there are certain conditions where acquisition of property within a school district may make the school district eligible for an entitlement under section two of public law 81-874. Following selection of a study area and identification of the specific location for siting the antennas, the government will work with the affected area in determining assistance which would be available."

Education Ass'n. Gives Award To Gretchen Beito

Beito said she remembers about 10 years ago when she participated in her first committee. At the time, she said, she really didn't know what it was all about. As it turns out, the extracurricular committee she volunteered her time for was responsible for bringing sports for girls to the schools. At the time, Beito said, only $100 was being spent on girls' sports every year.

Beito has participated on several committees since then. She plans to continue working to improve education and encourages all parents to get involved at their child's school.

for Don Stewart, community development director and Jobs Inc. executive director in Thief River Falls, and Tom Kenville, special representative for Jobs Inc. However, neither proponents or opponents received much support from the attentive crowd.

Those making comments or asking questions Thursday night included Mr. and Mrs. Don Dyrdal, Mr. and Mrs. John Omdahl, Vern Spangler, Scott Olson, Merle Lundeen, Mrs. Harvey Jagol, Jay Blake, Al Hermanson and Daniel Berg, representative for the Minnesota Pollution control agency.

Objections raised during the comment period, the last session before the formal hearing ended, included objections to the use of prime farmland for this project and other similar projects.

Scott B. Olson, president, Pennington county Farmer's union, read a resolution in opposition to the location of the OTH-B radar site passed by the local Farmer's Union organization. The organization opposes the radar project primarily because it takes farmland out of production.

Merle Lundeen, representative for the National Farmer's Organization, said a resolution in opposition to the project was adopted at the state NFO convention. Lundeen said the organization and its members were opposed to taking prime farmland out of production and using it for purposes other than agricultural. Lundeen said he also expected the same resolution to be passed at the national convention.

Mark Sugden, rural Thief River Falls, representing the local Agassiz Audubon society, said his organization opposed the location of the radar site because of its proximate location near a wildlife refuge and because the proposed 65 foot tall antenna receiver would surely affect birds and migration patterns. The tall structure, he said, would easily be the site of a massive loss of birds.

Several private citizens and members of the newly formed Concerned citizens for protection of a rural environment also made comments and asked questions at the meeting. Vern Spangler representing Concerned citizens for protection of a rural environment, restated their opposition to the site.

Throughout the meeting recurrent questions raised included a lease and purchase issue and whether assistance to make up the difference in lost taxes will be forthcoming. While opponents recognized that the Air Force was willing to lease or purchase they were concerned the Air Force would use their power of eminent domain against those unwilling to sell or lease. At a time when land values are depressed there is the potential that farmers who paid nearly $1,000 for land now valued at $200 to $300, will go bankrupt because of the vast difference. Col. Lee said he could only deal at arm's length as in any other business transaction, and although he understood their problem, he could not promise any special treatment.

Opponents recognized the Air Force answer concerning tax relief, but pointed out that the relief was only a possibility. If the Air Force makes the assumption that tax relief is possible they should be willing to make sure that is is in fact possible, echoed many opponents at the meeting.

Don Stewart, community development director and executive director for Jobs Inc. in Thief River Falls read from a prepared statement. In explaining their official position Stewart said, "Early in our involvement we asked many of the same questions that have been raised by concerned citizens since the first hearing on the draft environmental impact statement was held in Grand Forks in September.

"Obviously, because of the nature of our organization, we cannot afford to be involved in a project that would be detrimental to the safety or well-being of the citizens of our area. We believe that such issues have been adequately addressed and that this receiver facility, which is largely a passive installation, represents no threat to public safety."

Dear Readers,

In thinking about reasons to be thankful, such as abundant food, education, security — the fact that many human problems remain to be solved is also reason to be thankful. How would each generation grow in maturity, wisdom, and compassion if it were not for the problems left unsolved, or created, by the previous generation? Let us be thankful both for our blessings and our burdens, which help us to grow in the image of our Creator.

Sincerely,

Belmont Funeral Home

CATARACT SURGERY

The treatment of cataracts has changed drastically in the last few years. Not long ago, cataract surgery included a long hospital stay, with the patient lying very still on their back to prevent damage to the delicate wound. After surgery, thick glasses were needed to restore vision.

With improvements in equipment and technique, most cataract surgery is now done on an outpatient basis. This means it is not necessary to stay overnight in the hospital. The patient comes into the hospital in the morning, is given a mild sedative, and a numbing injection is given so that no pain is felt during the surgery. Within an hour after surgery the patient is back in street clothes and heading home. There are few restrictions after surgery, and most patients return to their normal routine within a few days.

Another improvement is the intraocular implant lens. This is a very small plastic lens which is permanently placed inside the eye at the time of surgery. The implant lenses come in different powers, to correct for a person's prior nearsightedness or farsightedness, and free the patient from wearing the very thick glasses that used to be worn after cataract surgery.

Surgical improvements continue. Today's cataract surgery patient can expect a much more satisfying experience, with a rapid return to a normal lifestyle and a very good likelihood of recovering excellent vision.

How Much Will Thanksgiving Day Meals Cost Families

Americans will be able to sit down to a traditional home-cooked Thanksgiving day meal for roughly $2.84 per serving, according to the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

The dinner, including turkey, sweet potatoes, peas, rolls, cranberries and pumpkin pie, will cost slightly more this year due to higher costs for turkey, cranberries and pumpkin pie filling.

Based on a study by the American Farm Bureau, conducted in Minnesota and seven other markets, dinner for 10 will cost $28.74 for those who prepare and serve it at home.

"That amount covers the cost of the entire meal, with a lot of leftovers for most families," said Jean Fellows, chairman of the Minnesota Farm Bureau women's committee.

The cost of the meal was determined following a farm bureau survey of markets in Minnesota, New York, Texas, California, Georgia, Illinois, Colorado and Washington, D.C.

In those markets, the average price for a 16.5 pound self-basting tom turkey was 89 cents per pound, 10 to 20 cents higher than last year.

The higher cost for turkey is the result of increased consumer demand. Turkey supplies are actually up 10 per cent from last year, which would normally lead to lower prices, but demand is running ahead of supplies. Consumers, however, will benefit from competitive pricing among retail stores.

Other products that rose in price were fresh cranberries, at an average price of $1.04 per 12 ounces, 25 cents higher than last year. Pumpkin pie mix rose 37 cents, now selling for an average price of $1.36.

Many of the products on this list are selling now for the same as they did last year, and in a few cases the costs went down — including costs for milk and rolls.

The higher prices for the holiday meal are in contrast to the lower prices farmers are receiving for the farm products overall. The index of prices received for all farm products fell 5.5 per cent from 1985-1986, reflecting lower prices for wheat, milk products, cotton, rice and many grain products.

"We've come a long way from the colonial days — when 98 per cent of Americans were farmers — to a scant two per cent now. The turkey has changed from the smaller wild bird with mostly dark meat to today's larger bird with mostly white meat. The foods today are fresh and in ample supply year-round. Consumers today spend less than 15 per cent of their disposable income on food. Sometimes we take it all for granted and lose the real meaning of Thanksgiving," he said Fellows.

Your Thanksgiving dinner. A 20-pound turkey, stuffing, mashed potatoes, scalloped corn, pumpkin pie — and 42,674 gallons of water.

A holiday dinner is a prime example of the huge amounts of water we use indirectly each time we sit down to eat. Food production uses vast amounts of water — for irrigating beans and corn as well as for growing feed for turkeys and grain for bread.

A hamburger, fries and a soft drink use 1,500 gallons of water through the various stages of production. And a holiday dinner for eight represents a use of 42,674 gallons of water — enough to completely fill a 30 x 50 foot swimming pool.

Here are the basic components of this "42,000-gallon holiday dinner": Twenty-pound turkey, 16,300; stuffing, 6,004; potatoes, 72; scalloped corn, 1,824; green beans, 1,000; carrots, 1,000; Waldorf salad, 580; fresh fruit salad, 2,000; bread, 300; margarine (incl. cooking), 2,212; ice cream, 1,142, milk for 4, 1,000, and wine for 4, 8,000.

One more thought: What are you willing to pay for a gallon of water? South Dakota had a buyer in 1982 willing to pay two-tenths of a cent per gallon. Bottled water in the store costs about 60 cents per gallon. Whatever per-gallon price you choose, multiply it by 42,674 to find out the value of the water needed to produce a Thanksgiving dinner for eight. Whatever number you choose, it'll make the price of turkey look pretty cheap.

When you sit down to a holiday dinner this year, give a moment's thought to the water that made it possible. We depend on water. We use a great deal of it. And we need to prepare for the time when the cost of water begins to reflect its true value — whatever that value is determined to be. When that time comes, we will all be affected.

Thanksgiving Meditation

For most people Thanksgiving is more than an observance which ushers in a holiday season which runs rapidly into Christmas and New Year's day. It is a time to pause, if only for an hour or a few brief minutes, to contemplate our relationships with others and our surroundings and lot in life.

This season's thoughts on Thanksgiving are provided by Mary C. Turck and distributed by the non-profit Land Stewardship Project in Stillwater. The project is built around the concept that farmers and landowners have a moral obligation to the land and that society as a whole shares that obligation. Turck writes as follows:

Thanksgiving is a tough time for preachers in rural communities. Harvesting is done, or should be done. But the joy of bringing in the crop has been diminished — for some by soggy fields and rain, for others by the unhappy knowledge of being another year older and deeper in debt, and for all too many by the bittersweet anguish of the last harvest on their family's farm.

I think that giving thanks this year requires a lot of faith, and a kind of double vision for those of us who love the land. My own "double vision" lets me look near-sightedly at the year just past and the day I am in, while I also look far-sightedly at the future, with faith in the Creator that this earth will survive.

I am near-sightedly thankful for my family and our farm. Growing up on that farm on the Crow River was one of the greatest gifts and blessings of my life. While I now live in the city, I am thankful for the farmers in my family — for welcoming me "home," for understanding my need to wander along the river, and for letting me still feel connected to the land.

Using my longer range of vision, I am grateful that the farmers in my family care about preserving our land, and struggle to balance production and preservation. I deeply believe that they — and other caring farmers — are cooperating with the Creator in caring for the good earth which belongs to all of us and to generations yet unborn.

While I cannot forget the pain of those who hunger in this country and around the world, I try to use my longer range of vision to give thanks for the vision and commitment of thousands working to end hunger. And in near-sightedly giving thanks for my own abundant food, I also give thanks for the strength to join in the fight against world hunger.

Perhaps that is one of the keys to this Thanksgiving. Like many farmers, I cannot point to great financial or personal successes in my work this past year. But — like my brothers and sisters on the farm — I can give thanks for another year spent in worthwhile work. And even if I cannot see the results I will trust in God to use my work for the good of the earth and its people.

No Easy Way Out

Like the floor painter who is so involved in his work that he paints himself into a corner, several agencies involved with the Falls Day Activity center find themselves in positions from where there is no easy way out. For the most part, that is the fault of the system and not the individuals involved.

In brief summary, client abuse was alleged against the director of the center, county and state investigations were conducted which substantiated the allegations, the state ordered the DAC board to remove the director from client contact and gave the DAC board 30 days to respond to its order.

To that extent, the system functioned as intended to provide protection for vulnerable people. But subsequent activity, or lack thereof, has shown some flaws in the system and created a virtual showdown which can scarcely be avoided.

The standoff is precipitated by the fact that the local DAC board isn't satisfied with the amount of information it has received from the county and state and therefore compelled to make major and long-term decisions based on lack of knowledge. That is a bad position to act from, and the board should be given the benefit of the doubt for being reluctant to do so.

There is no doubt that the easy way out for the board would have been to accept the state's order at face value, dismiss its director, not make any waves with the power structure and live happily ever after. Such a decision could have been justified on the basis of following along with higher authority (interpreted to mean those who have the funding control and the licensing power).

But to do that would have meant ignoring one of the fundamental principles of a free society — the right of the accused to a proper defense. County and state officials may argue that an investigation, during which the director was questioned and permitted to comment, constitutes such a defense opportunity. The board, denied the findings of that investigation due to claims of client confidentiality, disagrees. And this is where one of the flaws in the system becomes apparent.

The only way for the accused to have access to due process — his right to defense against his accusers — is for the local board to defy the state order, suffer the consequences of loss of license and therefore loss of program, and then appeal. It amounts to paying the penalty for being guilty in order to have the opportunity to make a defense of innocence. That isn't the way our nation's laws should be designed to function.

Nothing is being said here — or by the DAC board — about the validity of the allegations or the quality or extent of the county and state investigation. The point is that a person has been accused of an offense that could severely affect his career and livelihood and he has no avenue of defense without jeopardizing an important area program.

Time will tell how the board's decision to defy the state order and reinstate the director will upset the system or lead to the director's "day in court". If all concerned are truly interested in the welfare of the clients at the DAC — as they profess to be — perhaps something can be arranged to allow continuity of program while things are reaching a conclusion. Unfortunately, we wouldn't bet on that happening.

And there are a couple of other things in the wind that are a little disturbing as side issues to the basic situation of abuse and individual rights.

For one, the county board of commissioners seemed uncommonly eager to withhold funding which it is contracted to provide to the DAC. We can see no justification for such an action at the time it was taken. The board contracted for specified services through 1986, those services were being fully provided, and only a couple of months remained on the contract for this year. Why the rush to pull the plug?

We would compare the board's action to that of a new car buyer taking out a loan from the bank and then deciding to withhold monthly payments because a teller is accused of embezzling funds. How do you think that would stand up in court? Contracts involve obligations that should not be taken lightly.

Also, the request that the DAC merge its operations with the local occupational development center (IDC) — coming when it does — can scarcely be considered coincidental. It is opportunism at its worst, and smacks of the town playboy waiting on the doorstep for the young widow to return from her husband's funeral.

Where does all this leave everyone involved? Mostly backed into a corner in a defensive posture. The county and state are defensive of their investigation and order. The DAC board is defensive of its center director and program. The accusers are defensive of their accusations. The county board is defensive of its funding decision and request for merger. The director is defensive of his job and reputation. The department of human services is defensive of its licensing authority. Parents of DAC clients are defensive of their children and a program for them.

How do we see it? We see the problem in a layer of regulatory bureaucracy which slips in somewhere between the people and the law and, despite its good intentions, keeps justice from being done. And that's unfortunate.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q. I was married to a World War II veteran for 40 years. After his death I learned he had been married before and had never divorced his first wife. Will this bar me from a widow's pension?

A. No. If you had no knowledge of the legal impediment, the Veterans administration may deem the marriage to be valid. This type of case requires special consideration and may delay a final decision.

Q. Are common-law marriages recognized by the Veterans Administration?

A. The VA can recognize a common-law marriage only if it was legal under a state's law at the time it occurred.

Q. Who is eligible for treatment at Veterans administration vet centers?

A. Veterans who served on active duty during the Vietnam era may be provided counseling to assist the veteran in readjusting to civilian life. Application for counseling may be made at any time.

Q. How does a veteran qualify for the annual clothing allowance payment from the Veterans administration?

A. Any veteran who is entitled to receive compensation for a service-connected disability for which he or she wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance, including a wheelchair, may qualify. The VA must determine that the appliances wears out or tears clothing.

Q. If a person who is eligible for survivors and dependents educational assistance benefits marries, how is eligibility affected?

A. The Veterans administration says the marriage of an eligible child will be no barrier. The remarriage of a surviving spouse will terminate entitlement unless the remarriage is ended by death or divorce.

Letters to the Editor

It seems that certain individuals from East Grand Forks have a better insight on the events occurring in Thief River Falls and a better knowledge of the people involved in these events than the people actually living in our community.

I'm referring to the letter written by a Miss Jean Walker of East Grand Forks and printed in the Wednesday, Nov. 19 issue of the Thief River Falls Times. It seems that Miss Walker knows Evan Armstrong, the director of the Falls DAC; Dave Olin, the county attorney; and of course the Falls DAC board of directors members so well that she has been able to make the conclusions which she made in her letter to the Times concerning the investigation of the director of the Falls DAC.

Well, Miss Walker, there's not much I could say concerning my father that would be considered unbiased or impartial, but as far as county attorney Dave Olin and the Board of Directors of the Falls DAC there's plenty I can say that most of the people of our community would agree upon.

As far as County Attorney Dave Olin is concerned, it is my information that Mr. Olin has been the Pennington county attorney for 12 years. He has been a part-time teacher of law at Northland community college for over four years. Along with his involvement in numerous community organizations, he is also a husband and father. Do you really believe a person with such achievements acquired his status by, as you would say, sweeping things under the rug? I find that hard to believe.

And to Miss Walker's question of what kind of board is running the Falls Day Activity Center: Well, Miss Walker, it's a board made up of citizens of the community who have one genuine goal and desire — to help and better the lives of the individuals who attend the Falls DAC. They're not doctors and lawyers and people with advanced degrees but they are loving and caring people who come from all walks of life. The majority possess the most important qualification: the experience of being parents of mentally handicapped individuals themselves; the same individuals whose rights you imply the board violated.

So tell me, Miss Walker, do you have a more logical choice of people who would be more concerned with the welfare of these people than the parents themselves. I think not. So in the future it's my opinion that you should research your information better before writing such a letter.

As far as the rest of the situation goes, I'm not as upset about rumors as I am about letters to the editor. I only wish people would be intelligent enough to know the difference between rumors and fact, and if not, to only spread rumors that deal with things not as serious or important as this issue.

Sincerely,
-s-Troy Evan Armstrong

Small Business Center Offers More Services

Small Business development center in Thief River Falls now has a subscription to "Commerce Business Daily" which is available to existing or potential businesses for their use. Free copies are available to anyone who stops in and picks them up at the SBDC office located in the AVTI in Thief River Falls. In addition, the SBCD has a library of government procurement publications which are also free.

Through the Minnesota SBC's main office in Chaska, the Minnesota procurement network has recently implemented a unique computer software system to assist small business owners interested in federal procurement. This is a data base system developed to match companies with buying opportunities published in the CBD and to federal purchasing agencies. The computer searches the CBD for an opportunity that fits a business using their federal supply code, and then prints the announcement on a self-mailer which is mailed postage free on a weekly basis to a subscriber.

An additional service called Cada-Match provides a list of federal agencies that buy products and-or services. The Cada-Match provides a list of federal agencies that buy products and-or services. This gives the subscriber a well organized list of the various agencies, addresses, telephone numbers and necessary forms need for submitting bidder's mailing list applications and making contact with the agency.

An added feature to the data base, called the "bidders mailing list," will generate for a business standard bidder application forms. A business that is on the mailing list will automatically receive a bid package on a rotating basis when one is appropriate to a business.

There are small fees charged for the computerized procurement service and the Cada Match.

For more information about government procurement and other services to businesses contact Jan Hoff at the Thief River Falls Small Business development center. Phone number locally is 681-5424 or call toll free- 1-800-222-AVTI.

Senior Meals To Be Offered At Heritage Center

"Meals will be prepared on-site at the Heritage community center in Thief River Falls effective January 1," according to Judy TeBeest, Lutheran Social service senior nutrition program assistant director.

Program director Elaine White said, "The aroma of home cooked food and the opportunity for seniors to assist with meal preparation were major factors considered in the decision to prepare food at the center."

Nutrition program dietitian Monica Douglas and White met with officers of the Pennington county council on aging recently to study the merits of on-site or catered meals.

"It was a difficult decision to make," White indicated, "as LSS is very pleased withe quality of meals served by Northwestern hospital, our current caterer. Hospital staff members have been very cooperative and had indicated a desire to continue catering foor to the new senior center.

"The hospital has very good food, and we are going to have to hire excellent cooks to enable us to provide the same quality food," White said.

The kitchen at the community center was developed to accomodate the preparation and serving of nutrition program meals. Funds for equipment purchases were provided by the Northwest Regional Development commission area agency on aging and foundation grants.

The nutrition program is funded with federal and state dollars, community income and participant donations. Lutheran Social service receives funds from the Northwest area agency on aging regional development commission to operate the program in the northwest area of the state. Federal funds are awarded as part of the older Americans act.

"The seniors are very excited and anxious to move into their new facility," White said. Two or three part-time food service staff will be hired shortly by Lutheran Social service senior nutrition program staff. Meals will be served at noon Monday through Friday at the new facility January 1, following the same registration procedures as at the hospital.

Senior citizens contribute confidentially to the cost of the meal based on their ability to pay. The LSS senior nutrition program project council established a suggested fee of $1.50; however, no one is denied service due to an inability to pay. A typical meal includes meat, potatoes, vegetables and-or salad, bread and butter, milk and dessert.

Volunteers are needed to assist with the meal and related activities at the site. "Without volunteer assistance the program would fold," White said. "Studies show that seniors want to and can provide their volunteer support to decrease some program costs."

Anyone interested in more information should contact site manager Sue Erickson at 681-2194, Judy TeBeest at 681-8347, or Morris Howick, Pennington county council chairman, at 681-2891.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

When Laura was in first grade, she brought us a note from her teacher saying that if she would give it good care, she could have a tree seedling from the Soil Conservation service. Her Dad spaded out a circle of sod for the little stick, and Laura gently watered and watched over the seedling all that summer. She checked its progress often: Her teacher, Mrs. Gigstad, had told her that she would like a picture of her with the tree when she graduated from high school. We took a snapshot of six-year-old Laura that shows that the tree did not reach as high as knee socks she was wearing.

When Laura graduated to second grade, her relationship with her first grade teacher did not end. Every now and then Mrs. Gigstad has noted Laura's achievements and growth. Laura's first grade teacher has been one of her cheerleaders.

Twelve years and 12 school grades have passed, so this spring we will take that second picture for Mrs. Gigstad. It will be fun to compare pictures — the flowering crab tree dwarfs Laura now.

One of the good things about living in a small town is that teachers know the students and studetns know the teachers. Teachers here have a stake in their students' futures: they know and care what happens to their pupils as they mature and become adults.

Last year when my husband attended his high school reunion at Gonvick, most of his 27 class-mates were there too. After everyone had had a chance to get re-acquainted, Ruth caused a sensation by passing out corrected and graded English themes written by my husband and his friends over 30 years ago. She said she had kept them in her files all these years because these students, her first pupils, were special to her. Since that first class she has taught thousands at Bemidji State University. It is one thing to keep papers many years, but quite another to be able to return them to their owners years later.

These kinds of things could happen in large city schools, perhaps, but it would surely be more difficult to "keep track" of former pupils. Some parents living in cities recognize this as important, for I am told that the fastest growing type of schools in America what are called neighborhood independent schools. These are small, private schools under 100 pupils. Often they are located in store fronts of our largest cities.

Some parents are choosing to take their children out of large, free, comprehensive high schools and enroll their children in these alternative schools. Why? One reason is the very advantage we in rural America take for granted: in the small schools teachers know the students and students know the teachers and the students know each other.

People knowing people makes a difference.

Thanksgiving Meditation

For most people Thanksgiving is more than an observance which ushers in a holiday season which runs rapidly into Christmas and New Year's day. It is a time to pause, if only for an hour or a few brief minutes, to contemplate our relationships with others and our surroundings and lot in life.

This season's thoughts on Thanksgiving are provided by Mary C. Turck and distributed by the non-profit Land Stewardship Project in Stillwater. The project is built around the concept that farmers and landowners have a moral obligation to the land and that society as a whole shares that obligation. Turck writes as follows:

Thanksgiving is a tough time for preachers in rural communities. Harvesting is done, or should be done. But the joy of bringing in the crop has been diminished — for some by soggy fields and rain, for others by the unhappy knowledge of being another year older and deeper in debt, and for all too many by the bittersweet anguish of the last harvest on their family's farm.

I think that giving thanks this year requires a lot of faith, and a kind of double vision for those of us who love the land. My own "double vision" lets me look near-sightedly at the year just past and the day I am in, while I also look far-sightedly at the future, with faith in the Creator that this earth will survive.

I am near-sightedly thankful for my family and our farm. Growing up on that farm on the Crow River was one of the greatest gifts and blessings of my life. While I now live in the city, I am thankful for the farmers in my family — for welcoming me "home," for understanding my need to wander along the river, and for letting me still feel connected to the land.

Using my longer range of vision, I am grateful that the farmers in my family care about preserving our land, and struggle to balance production and preservation. I deeply believe that they — and other caring farmers — are cooperating with the Creator in caring for the good earth which belongs to all of us and to generations yet unborn.

While I cannot forget the pain of those who hunger in this country and around the world, I try to use my longer range of vision to give thanks for the vision and commitment of thousands working to end hunger. And in near-sightedly giving thanks for my own abundant food, I also give thanks for the strength to join in the fight against world hunger.

Perhaps that is one of the keys to this Thanksgiving. Like many farmers, I cannot point to great financial or personal successes in my work this past year. But — like my brothers and sisters on the farm — I can give thanks for another year spent in worthwhile work. And even if I cannot see the results I will trust in God to use my work for the good of the earth and its people.

No Easy Way Out

Like the floor painter who is so involved in his work that he paints himself into a corner, several agencies involved with the Falls Day Activity center find themselves in positions from where there is no easy way out. For the most part, that is the fault of the system and not the individuals involved.

In brief summary, client abuse was alleged against the director of the center, county and state investigations were conducted which substantiated the allegations, the state ordered the DAC board to remove the director from client contact and gave the DAC board 30 days to respond to its order.

To that extent, the system functioned as intended to provide protection for vulnerable people. But subsequent activity, or lack thereof, has shown some flaws in the system and created a virtual showdown which can scarcely be avoided.

The standoff is precipitated by the fact that the local DAC board isn't satisfied with the amount of information it has received from the county and state and therefore compelled to make major and long-term decisions based on lack of knowledge. That is a bad position to act from, and the board should be given the benefit of the doubt for being reluctant to do so.

There is no doubt that the easy way out for the board would have been to accept the state's order at face value, dismiss its director, not make any waves with the power structure and live happily ever after. Such a decision could have been justified on the basis of following along with higher authority (interpreted to mean those who have the funding control and the licensing power).

But to do that would have meant ignoring one of the fundamental principles of a free society — the right of the accused to a proper defense. County and state officials may argue that an investigation, during which the director was questioned and permitted to comment, constitutes such a defense opportunity. The board, denied the findings of that investigation due to claims of client confidentiality, disagrees. And this is where one of the flaws in the system becomes apparent.

The only way for the accused to have access to due process — his right to defense against his accusers — is for the local board to defy the state order, suffer the consequences of loss of license and therefore loss of program, and then appeal. It amounts to paying the penalty for being guilty in order to have the opportunity to make a defense of innocence. That isn't the way our nation's laws should be designed to function.

Nothing is being said here — or by the DAC board — about the validity of the allegations or the quality or extent of the county and state investigation. The point is that a person has been accused of an offense that could severely affect his career and livelihood and he has no avenue of defense without jeopardizing an important area program.

Time will tell how the board's decision to defy the state order and reinstate the director will upset the system or lead to the director's "day in court". If all concerned are truly interested in the welfare of the clients at the DAC — as they profess to be — perhaps something can be arranged to allow continuity of program while things are reaching a conclusion. Unfortunately, we wouldn't bet on that happening.

And there are a couple of other things in the wind that are a little disturbing as side issues to the basic situation of abuse and individual rights.

For one, the county board of commissioners seemed uncommonly eager to withhold funding which it is contracted to provide to the DAC. We can see no justification for such an action at the time it was taken. The board contracted for specified services through 1986, those services were being fully provided, and only a couple of months remained on the contract for this year. Why the rush to pull the plug?

We would compare the board's action to that of a new car buyer taking out a loan from the bank and then deciding to withhold monthly payments because a teller is accused of embezzling funds. How do you think that would stand up in court? Contracts involve obligations that should not be taken lightly.

Also, the request that the DAC merge its operations with the local occupational development center (IDC) — coming when it does — can scarcely be considered coincidental. It is opportunism at its worst, and smacks of the town playboy waiting on the doorstep for the young widow to return from her husband's funeral.

Where does all this leave everyone involved? Mostly backed into a corner in a defensive posture. The county and state are defensive of their investigation and order. The DAC board is defensive of its center director and program. The accusers are defensive of their accusations. The county board is defensive of its funding decision and request for merger. The director is defensive of his job and reputation. The department of human services is defensive of its licensing authority. Parents of DAC clients are defensive of their children and a program for them.

How do we see it? We see the problem in a layer of regulatory bureaucracy which slips in somewhere between the people and the law and, despite its good intentions, keeps justice from being done. And that's unfortunate.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q. I was married to a World War II veteran for 40 years. After his death I learned he had been married before and had never divorced his first wife. Will this bar me from a widow's pension?

A. No. If you had no knowledge of the legal impediment, the Veterans administration may deem the marriage to be valid. This type of case requires special consideration and may delay a final decision.

Q. Are common-law marriages recognized by the Veterans Administration?

A. The VA can recognize a common-law marriage only if it was legal under a state's law at the time it occurred.

Q. Who is eligible for treatment at Veterans administration vet centers?

A. Veterans who served on active duty during the Vietnam era may be provided counseling to assist the veteran in readjusting to civilian life. Application for counseling may be made at any time.

Q. How does a veteran qualify for the annual clothing allowance payment from the Veterans administration?

A. Any veteran who is entitled to receive compensation for a service-connected disability for which he or she wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance, including a wheelchair, may qualify. The VA must determine that the appliances wears out or tears clothing.

Q. If a person who is eligible for survivors and dependents educational assistance benefits marries, how is eligibility affected?

A. The Veterans administration says the marriage of an eligible child will be no barrier. The remarriage of a surviving spouse will terminate entitlement unless the remarriage is ended by death or divorce.

Letters to the Editor

It seems that certain individuals from East Grand Forks have a better insight on the events occurring in Thief River Falls and a better knowledge of the people involved in these events than the people actually living in our community.

I'm referring to the letter written by a Miss Jean Walker of East Grand Forks and printed in the Wednesday, Nov. 19 issue of the Thief River Falls Times. It seems that Miss Walker knows Evan Armstrong, the director of the Falls DAC; Dave Olin, the county attorney; and of course the Falls DAC board of directors members so well that she has been able to make the conclusions which she made in her letter to the Times concerning the investigation of the director of the Falls DAC.

Well, Miss Walker, there's not much I could say concerning my father that would be considered unbiased or impartial, but as far as county attorney Dave Olin and the Board of Directors of the Falls DAC there's plenty I can say that most of the people of our community would agree upon.

As far as County Attorney Dave Olin is concerned, it is my information that Mr. Olin has been the Pennington county attorney for 12 years. He has been a part-time teacher of law at Northland community college for over four years. Along with his involvement in numerous community organizations, he is also a husband and father. Do you really believe a person with such achievements acquired his status by, as you would say, sweeping things under the rug? I find that hard to believe.

And to Miss Walker's question of what kind of board is running the Falls Day Activity Center: Well, Miss Walker, it's a board made up of citizens of the community who have one genuine goal and desire — to help and better the lives of the individuals who attend the Falls DAC. They're not doctors and lawyers and people with advanced degrees but they are loving and caring people who come from all walks of life. The majority possess the most important qualification: the experience of being parents of mentally handicapped individuals themselves; the same individuals whose rights you imply the board violated.

So tell me, Miss Walker, do you have a more logical choice of people who would be more concerned with the welfare of these people than the parents themselves. I think not. So in the future it's my opinion that you should research your information better before writing such a letter.

As far as the rest of the situation goes, I'm not as upset about rumors as I am about letters to the editor. I only wish people would be intelligent enough to know the difference between rumors and fact, and if not, to only spread rumors that deal with things not as serious or important as this issue.

Sincerely,
-s- Troy Evan Armstrong

Small Business Center Offers More Services

Small Business development center in Thief River Falls now has a subscription to "Commerce Business Daily" which is available to existing or potential businesses for their use. Free copies are available to anyone who stops in and picks them up at the SBDC office located in the AVTI in Thief River Falls. In addition, the SBCD has a library of government procurement publications which are also free.

Through the Minnesota SBC's main office in Chaska, the Minnesota procurement network has recently implemented a unique computer software system to assist small business owners interested in federal procurement. This is a data base system developed to match companies with buying opportunities published in the CBD and to federal purchasing agencies. The computer searches the CBD for an opportunity that fits a business using their federal supply code, and then prints the announcement on a self-mailer which is mailed postage free on a weekly basis to a subscriber.

An additional service called Cada-Match provides a list of federal agencies that buy products and-or services. The Cada-Match provides a list of federal agencies that buy products and-or services. This gives the subscriber a well organized list of the various agencies, addresses, telephone numbers and necessary forms need for submitting bidder's mailing list applications and making contact with the agency.

An added feature to the data base, called the "bidders mailing list," will generate for a business standard bidder application forms. A business that is on the mailing list will automatically receive a bid package on a rotating basis when one is appropriate to a business.

There are small fees charged for the computerized procurement service and the Cada Match.

For more information about government procurement and other services to businesses contact Jan Hoff at the Thief River Falls Small Business development center. Phone number locally is 681-5424 or call toll free- 1-800-222-AVTI.

Senior Meals To Be Offered At Heritage Center

"Meals will be prepared on-site at the Heritage community center in Thief River Falls effective January 1," according to Judy TeBeest, Lutheran Social service senior nutrition program assistant director.

Program director Elaine White said, "The aroma of home cooked food and the opportunity for seniors to assist with meal prepartation were major factors considered in the decision to prepare food at the center."

Nutrition program dietitian Monica Douglas and White met with officers of the Pennington county council on aging recently to study the merits of on-site or catered meals.

"It was a difficult decision to make," White indicated, "as LSS is very pleased withe quality of meals served by Northwestern hospital, our current caterer. Hospital staff members have been very cooperative and had indicated a desire to continue catering foor to the new senior center.

"The hospital has very good food, and we are going to have to hire excellent cooks to enable us to provide the same quality food," White said.

The kitchen at the community center was developed to accomodate the preparation and serving of nutrition program meals. Funds for equipment purchases were provided by the Northwest Regional Development commission area agency on aging and foundation grants.

The nutrition program is funded with federal and state dollars, community income and participant donations. Lutheran Social service receives funds from the Northwest area agency on aging regional development commission to operate the program in the northwest area of the state. Federal funds are awarded as part of the older Americans act.

"The seniors are very excited and anxious to move into their new facility," White said. Two or three part-time food service staff will be hired shortly by Lutheran Social service senior nutrition program staff. Meals will be served at noon Monday through Friday at the new facility January 1, following the same registration procedures as at the hospital.

Senior citizens contribute confidentially to the cost of the meal based on their ability to pay. The LSS senior nutrition program project council established a suggested fee of $1.50; however, no one is denied service due to an inability to pay. A typical meal includes meat, potatoes, vegetables and-or salad, bread and butter, milk and dessert.

Volunteers are needed to assist with the meal and related activities at the site. "Without volunteer assistance the program would fold," White said. "Studies show that seniors want to and can provide their volunteer support to decrease some program costs."

Anyone interested in more information should contact site manager Sue Erickson at 681-2194, Judy TeBeest at 681-8347, or Morris Howick, Pennington county council chairman, at 681-2691.

MANY EAGER HANDS reached out to check the fur on the fox pelt being held by Terry Anderson during this mini-session at the Goodridge school Thursday. A number of sessions with various subjects were presented as part of the observance of American Education week. Anderson showed several types of traps used, discussed methods of setting them and safety involved, and showed a videotape of skinning and caring for the pelts.

SNOWMOBILE SAFETY was one of the mini-courses offered for students at the Goodridge school Thursday as part of the American Education week program. Dean Wiskow (left), a junior and Roger Coan, a senior, presented the program for several classes in the school shop.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

When Laura was in first grade, she brought us a note from her teacher saying that if she would give it good care, she could have a tree seedling from the Soil Conservation service. Her Dad spaded out a circle of sod for the little stick, and Laura gently watered and watched over the seedling all that summer. She checked its progress often: Her teacher, Mrs. Gigstad, had told her that she would like a picture of her with the tree when she graduated from high school. We took a snapshot of six-year-old Laura that shows that the tree did not reach as high as knee socks she was wearing.

When Laura graduated to second grade, her relationship with her first grade teacher did not end. Every now and then Mrs. Gigstad has noted Laura's achievements and growth. Laura's first grade teacher has been one of her cheerleaders.

Twelve years and 12 school grades have passed, so this spring we will take that second picture for Mrs. Gigstad. It will be fun to compare pictures — the flowering crab tree dwarfs Laura now.

One of the good things about living in a small town is that teachers know the students and studeins know the teachers. Teachers here have a stake in their students' futures: they know and care what happens to their pupils as they mature and become adults.

Last year when my husband attended his high school reunion at Gonvick, most of his 27 class-mates were there too. After everyone had had a chance to get re-acquainted, Ruth caused a sensation by passing out corrected and graded English themes written by my husband and his friends over 30 years ago. She said she had kept them in her files all these years because these students, her first pupils, were special to her. Since that first class she has taught thousands at Bemidji State University. It is one thing to keep papers many years, but quite another to be able to return them to their owners years later.

These kinds of things could happen in large city schools, perhaps, but it would surely be more difficult to "keep track" of former pupils. Some parents living in cities recognize this as important, for I am told that the fastest growing type of schools in America what are called neighborhood independent schools. These are small, private schools under 100 pupils. Often they are located in store fronts of our largest cities.

Some parents are choosing to take their children out of large, free, comprehensive high schools and enroll their children in these alternative schools. Why? One reason is the very advantage we in rural America take for granted: in the small schools teachers know the students and students know the teachers and the students know each other.

People knowing people makes a difference.

Warroad Is Rated Preseason Section 8 Hockey Favorite

It would be a four-team, nail-biting 1986-87 Section 8 high school hockey season if the 19 Section 8 head coaches are current in their annual preseason poll conducted by Section 8 secretary Frank Fee.

Warroad, last year's regular season champion, would edge Bemidji, last season's Section 8 tournament winner, if the poll holds true this winter. The Warriors had the most first place votes (9), while Bemidji and Roseau divided the other 10 first place picks. Crookston, although not receiving any first place votes, was picked in the top four on almost every coaches' ballot.

Coaches were asked to select who they thought would finish 1-through-8, and could vote for their own team. Points were given for the votes received, eight for first place, seven for second, six for third, etc.

Warroad finished with nine first place votes and 128 points, followed by Bemidji with six first place votes and 127 points, then Roseau with four first place votes and 122 points in an extremely tight three-way race for the top spot. Crookston finished with 99 points, followed by Fergus Falls with 55, Moorhead 54, Thief River Falls 51, East Grand Forks 33, Alexandria 8, Detroit Lakes 4, Brainerd 2 and Lake of the Woods 1. Bagley, Crosby-Ironton, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, Hallock, Indus, Little Falls and Red Lake Falls did not receive any votes.

Annual preseason Section 8 hockey jamboree, switched from Thief River Falls to East Grand Forks this year following a vote by the coaches, will be held Saturday. Scrimmages will feature two 11-minute periods. The match-ups include:

11 a.m. — East Grand Forks junior varsity vs. Crookston junior varsity; 12:10 p.m. — Crosby-Ironton vs. Lake of the Woods; 1:20 p.m. — Red Lake Falls vs. Bagley; 2:30 p.m. — East Grand Forks Sacred Heart vs. Little Falls; 3:40 p.m. — Hallock vs. Detroit Lakes; 4:50 p.m. — Alexandria vs. Thief River Falls; 6 p.m. — Crookston vs. Brainerd; 7:10 p.m. — Roseau vs. Fergus Falls; 8:20 p.m. — Bemidji vs. Warroad; 9:30 p.m. — Moorhead vs. East Grand Forks.

Fee points out that individually, Section 8 probably won't have the number of NHL draft or NCAA Division I-caliber of players that have been graduating from the local high school ranks in recent years. There are no first team All-Section 8 players back this winter. David Marvin and Shane McFarlane of Warroad, plus Scott Novak of Thief River Falls were second-team picks last year.

Leading Section 8 scorers back from the 1985-86 season include McFarlane (22 goals, 26 assists, 48 points); Dan Alto, Alexandria (23-24-47); Rod Neiswanger, Detroit Lakes (19-25-44); Nathan French, Crookston (21-21-42); Jon Helgeson, Roseau (21-19-40); Marvin (15-25-40); and Greg Knox, Warroad (16-23-39).

Top goalies returning include Dave Hedstrom, Fergus Falls (21 games, 2.1 goals-against average); Corey Chwialkowski, Bemidji (9, 2.4); Todd Kreibich, Crookston (18, 2.8); Shayne Anderson, Thief River Falls (9, 3.5); Pat Lucek, Indus (21, 3.6); and Steve Hanowski, Little Falls (21, 3.9).

There are eight new head coaches in Section 8 this year: Terry Cullen, Fergus Falls; Ross Dahl, Detroit Lakes; John Barger, Brainerd; Jerry Drewes, Lake of the Woods; Fran Fairbanks, Bagley; Joe Dragich, Crosby-Ironton; Doug Hiney, Sacred Heart; and Bill McDonald, Hallock.

A brief look, compiled by Fee, of each Section 8 team this winter:

Warroad — Lost only one game last year, and that came in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals vs. Moorhead. Lost only two starters to graduation, including Scott Foster, who played every game for last two years in goal. Also lost outstanding defenseman Dan Lambert, who went back to Canada. But Tom King, last year's Section 8 coach of the year, welcomes back players like McFarlane, Marvin (15 goals, 25 assists), Greg Knox (16-23) and Larry Olimb (10-21). Swedish exchange student Jerry Persson is expected to help up front, and Bantam sensation Vince Huerd will be a big addition after he recovers from a broken wrist that will sideline him six weeks.

Bemidji — Section 8 champion the past two years. Lumberjacks lost some very good hockey players, but coach Bryan Grand still has 11 letter winners back, with plenty of size and experience. Top performers include Rob Sauer (16-15), Gary Mathews (13-12), Scott Eichstadt (15-8) and the Roberts twins, Rod (5-13) and Randy (3-4).

Roseau — Numbers certainly no problem for coach Gary Hokanson at Roseau, where 50 reported this season. The only question mark would be in goal since the Rams lost two of them to graduation last year. Among the 15 letter winners back are Helgeson, Tim Lefor (14-6), Peter Helgeson (9-8), David Rosenkrans (8-8) and Steve Ross (2-11) — the team's top five scorers a year ago.

Crookston — Pirates lost only five from last year's squad that finished .500. Coach Jon Bittner has four of his top five scorers back, led by French, speedster Paul Schwab (18-15) and Jeff Perreault (7-21). Mike Andringa leads the defense and Kreibich is back after sparkling as a sophomore starter last winter.

Fergus Falls — A crying towel would certainly be in order for coach Tim Cullen. The Otters scored 112 goals last year, and graduation took players who accounted for 97 of them. Hedstrom is back in goal and Rob Starkey is back for his third year on defense, but Fergus Falls will miss the goal-scoring of Blaine Rude, Jeff Mehl, Paul Quam and Dave Lillquist.

Red Lake Falls — Head coach Bucky Hajostek lost 70 per cent of his goal production to graduation and is low on numbers. The Eagles will have to rely on Kris Fontaine (7-5), Karl Kankel (6-4), Mark Gervais (6-3) and goalie Steve Majeres, who carried a 6.5 goals against average in 15 games last year.

Moorhead — Coaches and fans will have to look twice at who they are playing as Terry Cullen, identical twin brother of Fergus Falls coach Tim, takes the reins of the Spuds after coaching in Virginia for the past eight seasons. Lost some great scorers like Chip Ole and Tom Schmiabukuro and goalie Shawn Sarbacker, but has seven back who played last year, including Tim Meyer (13-8), Jamie Hagness (7-7), David Prokop (4-4) and Bryce Shercliffe (4-9).

Thief River Falls — Wendell Grand has two of his top three scorers back, including exciting and superb skater Scott Novak (10-15) and Blair Lund (10-11), plus big defensemen Dave Johnson (5-5) and Billy Dicken (3-5). Shayne Anderson played in nine games as a sophomore goalie. As always, Prowlers will be a force with help from JV and Bantams.

East Grand Forks — Green Wave and coach Tony Palmiscno have only four seniors on this year's squad, but do have nine lettermen back. Lost goal scorers like Chad Grassel (27) Jim Corbid (14) and Dan King (11), and both goalies. Last year's super soph, Don Riendeau (13-21), is back with Jeff Ransdell (11-11), and David Bies should lead at defense.

Alexandria — Mike Donahue will have some quality people back plus great athlete and goal tender Eric Halvorson. Have to find defenseman and depth to go with Alto, Craig Mische (12-20) and Jason Buffington (5-10).

Detroit Lakes — New head coach Ross Dahl (last two year's head coach at Princeton and before that assisted at Mankato State) will have back some good scorers and goalies. Would have top three scorers, but Wally Anderson (18-21) moved to Alaska. Neiswanger and Monte McDougall (19-13) lead the returners and Greg Zabel is back in goal.

Brainerd — John Barger, in his first year at Brainerd after coaching for the last five years at Jamestown, ND loses some outstanding players like Sandy Smith (27-23) and Dave Ross (11-17) and goalie Jamie LaDouceur. Jason Best is back (20-13), along with Jim Brooks and Mike Musty, both 5-goal scorers last year.

Lake of the Woods — Jerry Drewes is back as coach. Coached the Bears 1978-83 and was coach of the year in 1983. Loses top scorer Mike Swentik (23-13), but has the Lorbiecki's back — Matt (9-7), Mike (3-9) and David (5-5) — as well as son John Drewes (0-9). John Gillie is gone in goal; Mike Hanson played in three games last year. Nine Bantam's coming up.

Bagley — Former Bemidji player Frank Fairbanks is the new coach for the Flyers and this should be the year for the Flyers as this group has gradually improved each year. Lost top scorer Brian Larson (2-12) and also Daren Erickson (8-5), but has everybody else back. Brett Dukek is gone in goal, but Dale Bromaghin played last two years in some games is back.

Crosby-Ironton — Football coach Joe Dragich is newly appointed hockey coach for Rangers. Joe was head coach at New Prague for the 1984-85 season. C-I has entered into first year of a co-op agreement with Aitkin and could add a possible 10 to the roster to help with depth. Lost top scorer Brent Gutzman (19-12), but Tim Henrichs (13-10) and Tony Sanford (8-13) return, as do both goalies.

Sacred Heart — New coach Doug Hiney is back in Section 8. He was formerly head coach for Mt. St. Benedict and an assistant at Crookston Central. Eagles have about 20 out, but includes a number of youngsters. Have Dwayne DeGagne (15-8) and Chris Lalonde (10-9) to lead up front and goalie Jim Sandbeck who played very well in 16 games last year.

Hallock — Bill McDonald, a 1981 graduate of Roseau, is the new hockey coach for the Bears. Face a difficult rebuilding job. Lost 86 of their 108 goal scorers from last year, including, Mike Hunter (29-16), Todd Davis (22-20) and Dave Stewart (11-19). Back: Mike Johnson (9-10), Wade Gjervold (1-14), Kevin Klein (5-9) and Jonathan Lindahl (5-8. Shawn Stewart is back in goal

Indus — Coach Gary Purpur lost his top scorer Doug Hasbargen (33-33) and David Amundsen (12-16), but everyone else returns, Kent Benike (17-24), Stacy Rasmussen (10-16) and Tony Palm (11-5). Look out for a young Imes kid, brother of forward Greg. Lucek is back after another great year in goal.

Little Falls — John Wagner has 15 kids back, but lost three of top four scorers. Marty Erickson is back (9-5) and Craig Zack (5-7) will have to lead the Flyers who have Steve Hanowski back in goal. Hanowski has seen more rubber in his career than Goodyear, but last year in 21 games had a 3.9 g.a. and an 87 per cent save figure.

TRF Girls Open Against Nordics

Four girls who were either full or part-time starters return from last year's 15-8 team, but Thief River Falls will nevertheless have a distinctly different look during the 1986-87 high school basketball season, according to head coach Tom Schafer.

That's because the one missing ingredient is Michelle Puetz, a 6-0 center-forward who graduated last spring with five school records to her credit. She helped the Prowlers set 13 team or individual records last winter when she averaged 19 points and 11 rebounds per game, finishing as the Prowlers' second-leading all-time scorer with over 900 career points. Michelle Olson graduated the year before with a school-record 1,062 points.

"We'll miss Puetz' dominance at both ends of the court," acknowledged Schafer. "We've been able to set up in a 2-3 zone the last three years and wait for rebounds. This year we won't have a height advantage, so we are using more pressure on the point and wing positions, and will mix up the defenses often to keep their (opponents) offense off balance."

But Schafer figures the Prowlers should still be able to rebound and fast break behind 6-0 senior center Laura Belto, 5-10 senior forward Lisa Lillevold, 5-3 senior guard Brenda Russell and 5-8 junior guard Kelly Cornell.

Cindy Kruta, a 5-4 junior guard, will join those four returning starters in the opening line-up Tuesday night when the Prowlers will use a three-guard offense in their 1986-87 opener against Marshall County Central at Newfolden.

Dana Miller, a 5-10 junior center-forward, will be the top sub, according to Schafer.

Rest of the squad includes junior

Pioneers Improve Numbers

Best season in Northland Community College football history is confirmed in the Pioneers' 1986 post-season statistical summary provided by head coach Rick Nelson.

Northland went 5-3 during the regular season this fall for the school's first winning record ever, and in the process came up with a share of the Northwest Division title to earn a post-season Minnesota Community College Conference playoff berth for the first time.

The year ended with a 28-13 loss to Vermilion in the first round playoff semifinals. The Ironmen won the MCCC state title a week later with a victory over North Hennepin.

Record-wise and statistic-wise 1986 was a huge improvement over 1985 when Northland had its second-successive 1-7 finish under Nelson. The Pioneers doubled their point-production this fall with 145 points after scoring just 72 the year before, and they cut the opposition's total to 167 points after giving up 213 last year.

There were similar statistical improvements elsewhere. Northland's net yardage total rose from 1,509 to 2,524; the Pioneers' rushing yardage improved from a mere 650 to 1,399; and the passing yardage increased from 859 to 1,118.

On the other side of the ball, Northland's opponents saw their total yardage figure drop from 2,449 to 2,300 and their rushing total dropped from 1,652 to 1,391. That meant opponents had to pass more to move the ball against the Pioneers, which did result in an increase in passing yardage from 797 to 1,005 this fall.

It was, acknowledged Nelson, a very satisfying year. "We set five goals at the beginning of the season," he said, "and we accomplished three of them."

The goals included 1) a winning season; 2) a division title; 3) a playoff berth; 4) a playoff victory; and 5) a state championship.

The improvement in the Northland program is related directly to the caliber of players on the Pioneers' 1986 roster, explained Nelson. "The quality of the kids we had this year was a big part of it," he said.

There were also some changes made by Nelson and assistant coaches Paul Williams, Steve Bengston and Kevin Schuman in the way Northland played the game that helped turn the record around, Nelson said. "we made some big changes in our offensive and defensive philosophy," he noted, pointing to the use of the multiple-set wing-T offense and the linebacker-oriented 4-4 defense the Pioneers used this fall.

Those things worked because the players had the skills to make them effective, including 6-4, 255-pound sophomore defensive tackle Anthony McCullough. The Canton, OH native is being called the best athlete to ever play at Northland. Jeff Johnson, a 6-1, 240-pound sophomore from Thief River Falls, teammed with McCullough to give the Pioneers an outstanding set of defensive tackles. And they were backed by top-notch linebackers like Mike Stennes, a 6-1, 210-pounder from Erskine, and Steve Wiskow, a 6-0, 195-pounder from Thief River Falls.

Offensively, the Pioneers had a pair of strong runningbacks in freshmen Steve Ristau, a 5-10, 195-pounder from East Grand Forks, and Deon Schmidt, a 6-0, 195-pounder from Fargo North, who gave Northland a solid inside-outside running attack. Their individual statistics might not have been overly impressive, but Ristau (564) and Schmidt (406) combined for over 900 yards on the round.

Northland also had the best set of wide receivers in either the Northwest or Northeast Division in sophomores Scott Groven, a 5-9, 175-pounder from Goodridge, and Dean Brandon, 1 5-9, 165-pounder from Thief River Falls. Groven caught 28 passes from 586 yards and Brandon caught 27 passes for 357 yards.

Those figures would have been undoubtedly been higher had quarterback Troy Ellingson, a strong-armed sophomore-to-be from Adas, ND, returned to pick up where he left off as a freshman starter the year before. But Ellingson decided in August not to return to Northland, throwing the quarterbacking duties on the shoulders of Scott Willoughby, a 6-1, 170-pounder from Erskine.

Although not a picture-perfect thrower in the mold of Ellingson, Willoughby nevertheless got the job done through his all-around athletic ability. Even though he completed only 37 per cent of his passes (64-for-172) and threw 21 interceptions, Willoughby still passed for over 1,000 yards and came up with a number of big plays this fall. One of the biggest was a school-record 98-yard touchdown to Groven against the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

There was also a school-record nine pass interceptions this fall by Chad Ekeberg, a 5-11, 180-pound sophomore from McIntosh, who had a record five of those in one game — vs. Vermilion.

Northland's winning record, and the caliber of players on the roster produced a burst in interest from both prospective recruits and college coaches at the NCAA Division II and Division III levels. A number of Northland players are being sought by four-year schools, and Nelson has found it much easier to sell his program to current high school seniors.

"Hopefully we're headed in the right direction," Nelson said. "I think we laid a good foundation this year. He can tell (high school) kids they can come here, play some good football knowing they'll have a legitimate chance of being competitive, and get a good education."

Northland's 1986 season started with a 14-13 non-conference win over the Moorhead State University junior varsity and a 20-0 MCCC opening shutout over Mesabi. Three straight losses had the Pioneers on the ropes for a while as they fell to Itasca 16-13, Vermilion 40-20 and Hibbing 29-6, but they rebounded to sweep Northwest Division rivals Fergus Falls 26-14, UMC 23-20 and Brainerd 10-7 to share the divisional title with the Spartans and move into the playoffs.

A little success last year has apparently put the Thief River Falls boys on the spot this year as the 1986-87 high school basketball season approaches.

Looking at the North Sub-Region 8AA race, Detroit Lakes coach John Erickson told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record that Thief River Falls "has to be considered the favorite, along with Moorhead."

Erickson also said that Bemidji will be a stronger team this year, and added that Fergus Falls, while it lost a number of players from its state tournament team, will be a "very good basketball team" in 1986-87.

Detroit Lakes, the fifth North Sub-Region 8AA member, was 13-8 last year, but returns only four letter winners and one starter off that team.

Thief River Falls went 13-9 last winter, the Prowlers' first winning season since 1979-80, and return three starters off that squad — Chris Bjorgaard, Chris Nelson and Griff Newland.

It won't take the Prowlers long to find out how they stack up against the North Sub-Region 8AA field since they run into Moorhead in the second game of the 1986-87 schedule — Friday, December 12, at Moorhead. They open Friday, December 5, at home against Kennedy.

Thief River Falls' 1986-87 winter sports season starts Tuesday when the Lincoln High School girls meet Marshall County Central in a basketball game at Newfolden. Saturday, the Lincoln hockey team will participate in the Section 8 jamboree at East Grand Forks, while the Northland Community College men and women will start their basketball schedules with a doubleheader against alumni teams.

Role of favorite is something new for the Thief River Falls boys. The program has gone through some touch times in recent years, but has shown signs of steady progress. It's a compliment, and a credit to the players, coaches and Backcourt Club boosters that someone outside the community looks at Thief River Falls as a legitimate title challenger. Time will tell whether the Prowlers attain that championship level, but it's apparent they've been able to shed the image of a perennial loser.

Jamboree Draws Players, Fans

Annual Section 8 high school preseason hockey jamboree, a mainstay at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena for many years, was lost to East Grand Forks this season, but the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association pulled off another coup Saturday when TRFAHA sponsored the first Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association District 16 Pee-Wee and Bantam hockey jamboree.

Players, coaches and fans from Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Roseau and Bemidji were kept busy throughout the day as they shuttled between the Sports Arena and Old Arena. Warroad, because of a prior commitment, was the only District 16 community not represented at the event for Pee-Wee (ages 11-12) and Bantam (13-14) A teams.

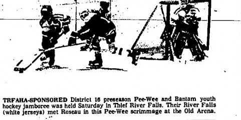
Teams were matched in scrimmage sessions that generally lasted 30 minutes. The Pee-Wee games were played at the Old Arena and the Bantam games were played at the Sports Arena.

Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee team played to 2-2 ties against both Crookston and Roseau in its first two starts, lost to Bemidji 6-1 but rebounded to shut out East Grand Forks 6-0.

Thief River Falls VFW Bantam team beat Crookston 6-1 and surprised Roseau 5-1 in its first two starts, lost a 2-0 decision to Bemidji, then finished with a 5-2 conquest of East Grand Forks.

TRFAHA traveling teams will open their 1986-87 regular season schedules this weekend. Games Saturday will find all four teams hosting Fargo South opponents. Bantam A game will be played at 10 a.m. at the Sports Arena; Bantam B game will be played at 11:30 a.m. at the Old Arena; Pee-Wee A game will be played at 4:30 p.m. at the Sports Arena; and the Pee-Wee B game will be played at 4:30 p.m. at the Old Arena.

Thief River Falls Bantam A team will also host Crookston Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Sports Arena, while the Bantam B team drives to Grand Forks for a 2:45 p.m. game at the Eagles Arena and the Pee-Wee teams visit Bemidji — the B game at 1 p.m. and the A game at 2:30 p.m., both at the City Arena.



TRFAHA-SPONSORED District 16 preseason Pee-Wee and Bantam youth hockey jamboree was held Saturday in Thief River Falls. Their River Falls (white jerseys) met Roseau in this Pee-Wee scrimmage at the Old Arena.

FIRST MAHA District 16 preseason Pee-Wee and Bantam youth hockey jamboree was held Saturday in Thief River Falls. The Bantams (ages 13-14) played in the Sports Arena, while the Pee-Wees (ages 11-12) played in the Old Arena. This action took place during the Thief River Falls-Bemidji Bantam match-up as the white-shirted Thief River Falls squad challenged the Bemidji goalie.

Cards Set Football Records

There were some record-breaking performances turned in this fall as Plummer completed a 3-5 high school football season.

Wade Grinde, a 6-4, 175-pound junior quarterback, had a banner season as he completed 97 of 190 pass attempts (51 per cent) for 1,155 yards and 14 touchdowns. Grinde also connected on 10 two-point conversion passes. He was intercepted four times. Those numbers represented school records for completions, yards, touchdown passes, conversion passes and interceptions.

With Grinde throwing, 6-4, 205-pound Shane Freyholtz set a school record with 35 pass receptions this fall, good for 326 yards and two touchdowns.

Others latching on to the Grinde passes were pint-sized Joe Peters, a 5-5, 145-pound junior, and Craig Brantl, a 5-7, 125-pound sophomore. They caught 24 and 20 passes, respectively. Peters' 327 yards in pass receptions led the Cardinals — one more than Freyholtz netted. Brantl caught 281 yards worth of passes.

Another passing record that went into the books this fall was the five touchdown passes caught by John Fisher, a 5-7, 140-pound runningback. Brantl caught four touchdown passes.

Fisher, who caught 15 passes for 198 yards, also set a school record with 13 touchdowns rushing and passing this year. He carried the ball 115 times for a team-high 553 yards.

Freyholtz also put his name into the record books on defense with 11 quarterback sacks.

Plummer's defensive leader, though was Neil Huotari, a 5-10, 165-pound senior lineman, who was credited with 90 tackles, 38 assists, five fumble recoveries and three pass interceptions.

Huotari, Fisher and Freyholtz earned North Tri-County All-Conference honors for their efforts.

Plummer opened the 1986 season by beating Laporte 28-24, Clearbrook 18-12 and Redlake 42-8 before losing five straight games to Fisher-Climax 26-20, Oklee 28-26, Gonvick-Trail 28-8, Gary 50-43 and Central Valley High School in North Dakota 37-34, a game played at the University of North Dakota's Memorial Stadium.

Graduation losses will take two big pieces out of the Plummer line-up in Huotari and Fisher, but head coach Gary Brantl has reason to be optimistic, at least offensively, with the likes of Grinde, Freyholtz, Peters and son Craig coming back next fall to once again fill the air with footballs.

High Deer Population Forces Extension Of '86 Deer Season

Deer populations that are 20 per cent over population goals have forced an extension of the deer hunting season for December 6 and 7 in northwestern Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) announced.

"We are extending the deer season in some permit areas of Zone 4 because extremely poor hunting conditions earlier have left far more deer than can make it though a potentially touch winter. The hunting season take was down 30 per cent from what we expected," said Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Section head.

This hunting extension applies only to Zone 4A and 4B hunters who already have been issued antlerless permits in areas 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407 and 408. Although permit holders for 402, 407 and 408 are eligible for the extended season, these three permit areas will be open only north of county state aid highway 39 and state highway 113 that are located in Norman County. Enough deer were taken in the southern portions of these permit areas during the regular hunting season, according to Holmes.

Deer of either sex may be taken by hunters but hunters must have their license and antlerless permit they were issued previously and they can hunt only in the permit area for which they have an antlerless permit. They may not hunt bucks in any other permit area. Bonus licenses are valid.

"We're taking this action to reduce the potential for deer starvation or crop depredation by lowering the herd size to established population goals," Holmes said, "and not to replace lost hunting opportunities caused by inclement weather."

"We also considered a season extension in the northern part of Zone 2 but rejected the idea after analyzing deer registration information showing that in spite of a reduced harvest, the herd is within established population goals," Holmes added.

Wildlife managers reviewed deer registration totals at registration stations in northwestern Minnesota to determine deer harvests before deciding on an extended season as part of its management program. The permit areas in Zone 4 not specifically mentioned are not open.

About 10,700 antlerless permits were issued for the permit areas in Zone 4 that are eligible to hunt north of Norman County state aid highway 39, between the towns of Syre and Perley, and state highway 113.

Hunters who filled their tag during the regular season may still party hunt as long as they have a license punched for Zone 4A or 4B and an antlerless permit for one of these permit areas.

Holmes urged hunters to be well-prepared for severe weather conditions that may occur due to the timing of this hunt and to observe all rules of firearms safety. All others who are hunting or trapping in these areas on Saturday, December 6 and Sunday, December 7, must also comply with the red-blaze orange law.

TRF Girls Play In Jamboree At Crookston Gym

Fisher out-scored Thief River Falls 21-19 in a preseason high school girls basketball jamboree session at Crookston.

Brenda Russell led the Prowlers with 10 points during the jamboree, which featured two eight-minute quarter sessions.

Thief River Falls boys will be involved in jamboree competition Monday, December 2, at Kennedy. The Prowlers will first drive to Grand Rapids Friday for a scrimmage, and stop in Bagley on the way home Saturday for another scrimmage encounter.

Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announced that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the months of July, September and October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.

Forestry In Minnesota

by Vincent Buck, Warroad

In the old files at the Warroad headquarters is a memo from Ranger Willems to Patrolman Murray dated August, 1924 criticizing him for spending a night in Canada and also for charging as high as 40 cents for a meal. Murray's letter of explanation states that he was on patrol in the northern part of his district that day and had walked from Wannaska to the Canadian boundary, a distance of 30 miles, and being too tired to walk back had continued on the Sprague, Manitoba and spent the night there.

The area continued to function with a district ranger in charge and seasonal patrolmen in the subdistricts until the early 1930's. Wayne Henderson was then appointed to a permanent position with headquarters at Clear River. Wm. Schmechel became patrolman at River and George Berglund was made patrolman-at-large with headquarters at Warroad.

With the resignation of George Berglund in 1935, Bill Schmechel was moved to Warroad as Patrolman-at-large and Ralph Thompson appointed to the patrolman's position at River.

Leonard O'Donnell, who had worked on a seasonal basis at Norris since 1936 was appointed to the patrolman's position at Clear River in 1939. At this time Norris was made a district headquarters with Wayne Henderson in charge.

In the meantime two state forests had been created in the area. The Beltrami Island State Forest was established in 1933 and the Northwest Angle State Forest in 1935.

With the creation of emergency work projects such as CCC and WPA in 1932, the area received a boost in the construction of buildings, roads and other improvements. A CCC camp was located at Norris Camp and one at Clear River. Lookout towers and ranger stations were connected by a network of 80 miles of telephone lines.

Bemis Hill campground was built on land which was the original homestead of Mike Holm, former Secretary of State. The area was cleared and a toboggan slide constructed. Improvements included a well-built shelter, a well and picnic tables, fireplaces and latrines.

During this period the resettlement program was carried out. This consisted of moving the settlers from the sub-marginal farm lands within the Beltrami Island State Forest onto lands traded to them by the U.S. Government. At one time the part of the Beltrami Island Forest in Area 6 had a population of over 1,200.

This included the small towns and settlements of Clear River, Hiwood, Winner and Penturen. In 1966 there were two settlers remaining in this area — Loren White in Sec. 3-161-35 and Archie Peters in Sec. 5-161-35. The lands acquired by the U.S. Government under the resettlement program were leased to the state of Minnesota on a 50-year term to be managed for wildlife and forestry. These lands are known as land utilization project, or lup lands.

Early history of Area 6, or Area 12, as it is now known, is a story of a continuous fight against uncontrolled burning. Fires in the thickly settled parts of what is now the Beltrami Island State Forest were quite common prior to the resettlement program. In 1926 a large fire burned west of where Norris Camp is now located. No records are available, but apparently the loss of timber was not great. However, as a result of the fire over 200 acres of dense jackpine reproduction was established. These stands are now in a thrifty condition.

TRF Girls Start Year At MCC

Stephanie Benson, plus sophomores Kari Torkelson, Val Noel and Tammy Belto.

Junior varsity and freshman team performers include sophomores Kerry Helle, Carna Sanders, Tracy Lusignan, Cindy Schele, Stephanie Clow, Tammy Alberg, Lorray Pittman and Julie Novak; plus freshmen Rhonda Rothschadl, Monica Haapoja, Kaye Dondelinger, Cheri Bjorgaard, Dawn Schob, Jane Johnson, Alice Dunning and Neena Arnold.

Russell set two assist records last year when she had 136 for the season and 13 in a single game vs Plummer. She averaged eight points and six assists per game.

Cornell averaged eight points per game, while Belto averaged seven points and eight rebounds per game.

Those scoring averages will have to climb to make up for the 19 points that Puetz averaged, helping the Prowlers set a team-record 1,293 points for the year. They also had a record 868 rebounds, reaching the North Sub-Region 8AA finals before losing to Bemidji 50-37. They were 17-4 the year before.

"We've been able to jump out with good records recently, but that might not be the case this year," warned Schafer. "Whether we do or not is not so important as being able to improve with each game, and being able to play at our peak at tournament time. This is the toughest schedule we have ever had. The Class A team should all be improved. The Class AA teams all lost dominant players, but even though the quality of the past two-three years might not be there, it should be a close race in ability. We have no easy opponents anywhere on the schedule."

But he's not selling his team short. "We have a fine group of hard workers and top athletes who do not like to lose, and they won't quit," says Schafer. "That will be a big plus for us if the going does get tough."

Lancaster — One person required hospitalization and four escaped serious injury the afternoon of November 18 when a two-vehicle accident occurred on highway 59 two and one-half miles south of Lancaster. Orielle Norland was the driver of a 1983 Buick, with his wife, Eleanor, and Olga Paulson as passengers. He collided with a 1986 Ford Bronco driven by Vera Loer on an ice-covered highway. Mabel Moran, a passenger in the Bronco, was admitted to the Karlstad memorial hospital. Elenor Norland and Olga Paulson were treated and released at the Karlstad hospital. The Norland vehicle was totaled and the Loer vehicle sustained damages of $2,000.

Happy Teachers

Baudette — The American Legion sent two cases of apples to the teachers at Lake of the Woods school to celebrate American Education week.

Outstanding Youth

Warren — Laurie Rud will represent the Warren high school at the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar at Hamline university in St. Paul. She is the daughter of Larry and Faith Rud of Warren.

REACHING THE GOAL of $8,200 for donation to the United Way of Thief River Falls was noted at Northwest Medical services by (left to right) Candy Joppru and Elaine Borsheim, co-chairmen, Tom Wang, Chairman of the hospital United Way committee, and Keith Steva, chairman of the United Way board. The contribution was an increase of seven per cent over last year. Wang expressed his appreciation and thanks to medical center employees and volunteers, noting that the increase was especially gratifying since there are fewer employees than last year and a large number are part-time personnel. He also stated that hospital staff members often see and know many of the individuals who receive help through various United Way supported agencies. Assisting Wang, Joppru and Borsheim in the campaign at the medical center were secretary Val Mattison and volunteers Art Heinze, Crystal Liden, Deb Rewerts, Mavis Besserud, Shirley Swanson, Leona Bugge, Bonnie Wagner, Henry Holte, Cammy Lindland, Laurie Hoard, Phyllis Gaven, Sandy Orr, Doyle Olson, Vicki Heckman, Tracy Lee, Kathy Bousu, Paul Bortnem, LuAnne Berning, Camille DuChamp, Sherry Solheim, Pat Hetland and Sandy Knutson.

Star City Status

Warren — The Warren Chamber of Commerce approved formation of a committee to work with the city council on obtaining Star City status for the city. Working toward achieving this goal was approved at the best attended Chamber meeting ever, which included a presentation on Star City status by new mayor, Roy Engh.

Keep Them Working

Red Lake Falls — Homark company (formerly DMH Corp.) of Red Lake Falls has announced its plans to operate throughout the winter months, employing 33 people. The plant has closed during the winter months for the past years, as demand for manufactured housing falls dramatically during that time. Reasons given for the new program are plans for an upbeat sales program and a pioneering production plan.

Seminar Selection

Red Lake Falls — Jonathon Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Weiss of Red Lake Falls, will be the Lafayette high school selected nominee for the Hugh O'Brian Youth Seminar to be held at Hamline university in St. Paul June 12 through 14. Weiss was selected by a committee of school staff and local Jaycees, who co-sponsor the participant each year. The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation goals are to help motivate, train and reward future leaders, preparing them for leadership positions in their schools and developing talents that will serve them in the future.

70 Years Of It?

Red Lake Falls — A veteran deer hunter, 87-year-old Bill Malwitz, again got his buck the first weekend of hunting, despite very poor hunting conditions this year. He has hunted deer since the age of 17 or 18, and can remember when the hunters used cow bells to track the deer. This year's buck weighed 270 pounds field-dressed, and was shot from about 300 yards with a .270 Winchester.

Good Old Fashioned Way

Roseau — Clayton Skolen of rural Roseau is logging with his team of Percherons in Hayes Lake State park. The logging is being done with the permission of the Department of Natural Resources Forestry Division, who wanted to protect the environment as much as possible and still remove some of the Norway Pines to allow others to continue to grow. Skolen figures he will remove about 100 cords of wood in all. Hayes Lake State park is one of the new Minnesota state parks, having been officially established in 1967. The park is located 22 miles southeast of Roseau on the north fork of the Roseau river.

Bigger And Better

Kennedy — The Kennedy post office has moved into a new home, opening for business November 15. LeRoy Swenson, Kennedy postmaster, said the new building is a lot warmer and more convenient for customers, with more space and key-operated postal boxes. A grand opening will be held at a later date. The old post office building will be returned to its owner, Vern Lysford of Thief River Falls.

Pollution Control Changes

Roseau — The Roseau school board discussed the need to monitor buried underground fuel tanks at the school bus garage site at their regular meeting November 4. The superintendent of schools and a consulting firm hired to look into the situation have recommended replacing the tanks, providing a system of monitoring fuel usage and drilling test wells near the fuel tanks to monitor possible leaks, all in an effort to conform to state pollution control standards. The school board took no action on the proposal, but will look into bids for the work that needs to be done.

Holiday Arts & Crafts Show

Roseau — Thirty arts and crafts people will display their wares at the Holiday Arts and Crafts show at the Roseau city auditorium November 28 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and November 29 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Free admission and coffee are advertised.

Anhydrous Anxiety

Warroad — The Warroad city council heard plans to move the Warroad anhydrous ammonia operation after concern was expressed about the present location in light of the recent plant accident fatality in Roseau.

Severe Burns

Perham — Two Perham men received first and second degree burns over 50 per cent of their body when a flash of steam from a trash burner hit them while they were removing a motor from the burner. Quadrant plant manager Gene Steinbach and assistant manager Stanley Marotz were rushed to St. Luke's burn center in Fargo, ND, for treatment. Quadrant is a steam generating plant owned by Ottertail Power which recycles area refuse for steam power for Land O'Lakes and Tuffy's pet food plant in Perham.

Come Stroll With Me

Warroad — The Warroad Historical society will hold "A Walk Through Granny's Kitchen" December 7 at the Warroad Depot. Holiday music and Christmas goodies are planned, with a display of early culinary delicacies along with recipes and tools necessary to make them. Area residents are being asked to share their skills in baking at the annual Christmas Tea.

Condition Improving

Warroad — Rod Pomplun, the man who suffered head injuries while erecting a deer stand near Warroad, is reported showing some improvement but still in the intensive care unit of United hospital. He is responding to some commands, can open his eyes, and smile a bit. His address is United Hospital, I.C. Room 536, Grand Forks, ND, 58201.

No Dough To Go

Hallock — The Kittson county board of commissioners decided against making a contribution to the Area Ag Information center in Thief River Falls at the regular meeting last week, after hearing a report by Extension director Mary Jenkins. The reason given for refusing the requested $2,500 to the center was that the board feels that services offered by the center are available through other agencies. They stated that reconsideration will be given to a contribution at such time as a need is determined to exist.

Special Readers' Supplement of THE TIMES Thief River Falls

Yes, Virginia, There Is A Santa Claus

One of the most famous newspaper editorials of all time has to do with Christmas. It first appeared September 21, 1897, in the pages of a leading newspaper of the day, the New York Sun.

Virginia O'Hanlon, eight years old, was torn between the doubts placed in her mind by playmates and her own sincere belief that each Christmas a jolly old man came to help spread joy through the world. To settle the matter, she posed the question to the editor of the Sun.

Francis Pharcellus Church replied as follows:

"Is there a Santa Claus?

"We take pleasure in answering at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of the Sun:

Sun:

"Dear editor:

"I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says 'If you see it in the Sun, it's so.' Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

Virginia O'Hanlon, 115 West 95th Street

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable their existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished."

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your Papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, not even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside the curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else more real and abiding."

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Dundee Cake

Beautiful Scottish delicacy for Christmas dessert.

1 cup raisins
½ cup currants
2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
3 eggs
½ cup milk
¼ cup citron or orange rind of 1 small orange
¼ cup chopped almonds

Use a round 9 inch springform pan, well-greased and line with waxed paper. Chop raisins, wash currants and dry. Mix as for other cakes, stirring after additions only until well mixed. Do not beat. Fold in raisins, currants, citron and chopped almonds. Arrange some split almonds over top. Bake 1 hour and 15 minutes at 325 degrees.

Holiday Merriment With Kissing Ring

Form wire into a circle. Bend three wires to each to form a half-circle. Attach these half circles to the top of the wire circle, equally spaced. (An old lampshade frame saved from year to year would work well.)

Wrap dried moss or straw around the wires to make a firmer and easier base on which to attach evergreens.

Tie a candle to the center of the inverted bowl. Hang mistletoe around the candle.

Make a ribbon loop at the top to hang the "Kissing Ring" and place a bright red bow at the top.

From Saturnalia To Christmas

Since no date is given in the Bible as to the time of Christ's birth in the early days of Christianity Christmas as we know it did not exist. Around the end of December the old Roman festival of Saturnalia was celebrated in gay revelry. The days had been growing shorter and shorter but now they were growing longer. It was a time of rejoicing because of spring's certain approach. Hence the Church decided to transform the pagan festival rather than try to abolish it. The ancient practices were incorporated into Christianity and given Christian significance. The Roman Christians were persecuted and even put to death for observing Christes Masse (Mass of Christ).

The Emperor Diocletian in the year 303 ordered churches to be burned where Christmas was being celebrated. Later Emperor Constantine allowed the festivals to be celebrated. The celebration of Christmas soon became an established custom.

A Time To (En)Joy

During the holidays, our lifestyle becomes quite a bit more hectic, and a lot more festive. There's so much fun and togetherness to prepare for, this being a season of celebration, a time when friends and loved ones join one another in a spirit of joy and giving.

Entertaining is at its best during the holidays, from formal Christmas balls and elegant office parties, to Christmas Eve tree trimmings and cozy gatherings by the hearth for hot cider and gingerbread men.

Many an hour is spent in the kitchen as eager hosts and hostesses prepare some of the season's best-loved treats for their guests.

Often, preparing for those special events is reason in itself for a festive get-together. Friends bake together in one another's kitchens, sharing recipes and cookie cutters for their favorite holiday sweets, while others gather to make ornaments before a tree trimming party.

Families travel from near and far, arriving at a favorite aunt's or grandma's house with their arms full of presents a few days early, just to help prepare for the holiday feast.

Children are at the center of much of the gaiety that is enjoyed during the holidays. Whether it's standing in line in the local department store so that the kids can sit on Santa's knee or taking them to a performance of the Nutcracker ballet, giving them a thrill seems to be what this season is all about.

With all of the parties and festivities to look forward to, either getting together with old friends or meeting new ones, everyone wants to look their best. Whether it's a formal office party of hundreds or a romantic Christmas Eve for two, this is the time for a bit more glamour.

A new hairstyle or fragrance could be just the thing to put you in a festive mood. You might even try to diet a bit before this season of merriment begins, so that not only will you look and feel great in your holiday best, but you won't have to worry too much after the holidays about the few pounds that we all tend to gain at this time.

If you're wondering just how, through all of the hustle and bustle of shopping for gifts, taking the kids to see Santa, spending late nights wrapping and baking, and planning your own parties as well as going to everyone else's, you'll possibly manage to look your best, the trick is to pace yourself.

Try to get shopping done ahead of time and gifts wrapped and ready to place beneath the tree, as the days just before Christmas seem to pass all too quickly.

Fruitcakes and mincemeat pies may be prepared well in advance, as they are at their best when begun a month or two ahead of time, and the dough for many of your favorite Christmas cookies can be prepared and then frozen for a few weeks, thus saving time when you are ready to bake.

Another holiday time-saver would be to have greeting cards written and ready to go ahead of time so that, when the holidays approach, you can just drop them in the mail and spend your time enjoying family and friends.

After an especially hectic day, perhaps one where you've been rushing about cleaning the house and preparing food for a party of your own that evening, take time out for yourself.

Relax in a warm bubble bath, listen to soft music, and pamper yourself a little bit so that you'll be able to totally enjoy the evening's festivities, because, in this season of togetherness and merrymaking, sharing joy is what it's all about.

Thoughtful Gifts For Seniors To Enjoy All Year

Our silverhaired friends who have become residents at nursing homes would especially welcome Christmas attention. While the rest of the world is enjoying the usual Christmas shopping, cooking, etc. these friends are merely doing what they do each day and often feel left out of the family Christmas fun.

Some gifts for these friends might include:

An adult version of a babybunting, a zipup blanket bag with a hood in which to keep cozy warm.

Warm, pilelined slippers with nonskid soles and bed socks.

A tote bag to hang on a wheelchair or walker, with ties sewn on the corners for easy fastening.

For someone who's lost his or her voice or who just likes to doodle a "magic slate."

A newsy, rambling letter.

To make sitting in bed more comfortable than a stack of pillows or a padded backrest.

A writing case you've made from a nice box and equipped with a clipboard top, stocked with stamps, stationery, address labels, ballpoint pens, pencils, an inexpensive magnifying glass, a small looseleaf notebook pad with friends and relatives addresses written in large print.

For cancelled checks and notes an accordion file envelope.

Lunch at a restaurant.

A trip to see the Christmas lights.

Toffee Butter Crunch

Chocolate-covered, buttery, crunch is oh, so good.

1 cup butter
1 and one-third cup sugar
3 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon white corn syrup
½ cup almonds
4½ ounce milk chocolate bar
1 inch paraffin

Foil line a 9x13 inch pan — grease foil. Melt butter, add sugar, water, corn syrup and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, to hard crack (300 degrees). Stir in nuts. Spread in pan; cool thoroughly. Turn out on waxed paper. Melt chocolate bar with wax and spread over bottom of candy. Sprinkle with finely chopped walnuts or pecans if desired. Makes 2 pounds.

Pain-Free Shopping For The Gents

The holiday season is traditionally a time of good cheer and family gatherings. Many fond memories and happy moments are created when giving, and receiving, gifts.

But some men, when buying gifts for women, experience problems that can ruin the holiday spirit. Large crowds, big, busy department stores and little knowledge of the latest fashions are just some of the problems men run into when buying gifts for women.

Shop early in small retail stores. Most retail experts agree that adherence to a few simple rules can reduce or even dismiss shopping anxieties. Shoppers are advised to shop early to assure better selection.

Men should also shop in smaller retail stores, where expert help and personal attention is available.

It's also important to ask the salesperson pertinent questions about the item and to determine if it can be returned or exchanged.

Men shopping for holiday gifts should remember favorite colors and dress, blouse and pants sizes. Knowledge of the latest fashions helps when buying the ideal gift.

Sweaters, furs, dresses are traditional gifts. "Big traditional holiday gifts include sweaters, furs and dresses," said Sarah Olson, vice president, merchandise manager for a national chain of women's apparel stores. "Specifically, large blouses with wrap-around belts and angora-silk blend beaded sweaters make excellent gift ideas."

Popular colors this season include cream, black, gold, silver and the iridescent, or metallic shades. Shirts and pants with a shiny quality will also be popular holiday items.

Accessories, like earrings and bracelets, put the finishing touches on an exciting new holiday outfit.

So with just a little planning, a man can reduce shopping anxieties and buy gifts that will create fond holiday memories for years to come.

'Tis the season to be festive and bright, as you share in the holiday joys with good friends and loved ones.

Tradition Of Joy—Christmas Gifts

The tradition of giving presents at Christmas began as a celebration of joy on that first Christmas Eve long ago. Gold, frankincense and myrrh were the gifts brought by the three kings who journeyed from afar on that starry night to gaze in wonder upon the tiny babe who was to save humanity. It was then that the spirit of giving was born, a spirit which, centuries later, continues to live and grow in each of us.

Today, as ever before, the holiday season inspires kindness and generosity, for at no other time of the year is the air so full of the magic of giving. Shop windows are filled with miniature fairylands of elves merrily mirroring our own joyful bustling as we hurry about, arms full of red-ribboned packages, in search of just the right gifts.

Our hearts thrill with anticipation at the joy of surprising loved ones with a gift from beneath the shimmering tree.

The rustling of wrappings and bows on Christmas morning heightens the excitement as the children unwrap the toys that Santa has left piled beneath the tree and overflowing from brightly colored stockings.

But don't miss the glow in grandma's eyes as she unwraps the new nightgown that you've chosen just for her, or your next door neighbor's happy surprise at finding the gaily wrapped gingerbread men you've left on the doorstep.

It seems that even if the days of waiting up for Santa have long passed, each and every one of us, whatever our age may be, is filled with a child's glee and laughter as we open our own special gifts.

Probably one of the most beautiful things about giving gifts at Christmas is that it brings people together.

Merriment abounds as families gather to feast on plum pudding and roast turkey, and old friends join hands as they share a toast or kiss beneath the mistletoe.

Bringing a holiday present is the perfect reason for visiting friends and relatives that you may not have seen for a long time.

Whether it's something that you know they've always wanted, or a batch of freshly baked holiday treats, it's just the chance to let them know how special they are to you.

What makes Christmas giving all the more special is that, so often, it reaches beyond our immediate circle of friends and family, bringing love and hope to those who are less fortunate than ourselves.

Small children learn the joy of giving as they bring canned foods and small gifts to schools and churches, helping to make up Christmas baskets for children in orphanages and hospitals.

Often, during the holiday season, church groups will sing carols or perform plays in homes for the elderly. In this way, they bring laughter and companionship to those for who a bright smile and a hug are the most precious gifts of all.

When a gift is given with love, whether it's a hug and a candy cane, or something we've saved and searched for, it will be the right gift because of the happiness that it is sure to bring. And that happiness will, in itself ensure, that the tradition and spirit of Christmas giving will live on in our hearts forever.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Beginnings Of The Christmas Wreath

One legend of the Christmas wreath has it that when Christ was crowned with the thorns of the holly branches, the white berries turned to blood red. The use of holly wreaths at Christmas time became popular because of this legend. A lighted candle soon was placed in the wreath's center as a reminder of the new Light of the World.

And Here's How Santa Came To Be

The first Santa Claus picture was printed in the 1863 Harper's Weekly and a book of Christmas poems. Thomas Nast, a 23 year old German immigrant, was to become Santa's most famous artist. Santa used to be protrayed as the Dutch Santa of Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History" but he now became the Santa of "The Night Before Christmas." Now Santa was fat and jolly, decked out in a red suit with a wide leather belt, boots, and of course a fluffy white beard. It was interesting also that Santa's designer, Nast, also went on to become famous as the designer of the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

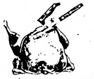
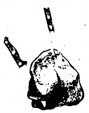
The big holiday question: Who carves the turkey?

If the approach of the holiday season and visions of carving the turkey in front of people sends you into an anxiety attack, here are a few hints on just how to do it:



Let the turkey rest on a wooden carving board for about 20 minutes before carving. Meanwhile, remove the stuffing. Steady the turkey with your carving fork and pull the leg away from the body.

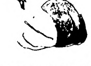
Manuever the tip of the boning knife into the socket and cut off the leg.



You'll need your carving knife to carve the breast. Make an incision across the body from wingbone to wishbone.

Separate the drumstick from the thigh by slicing through the joint. Carve the meat from each piece, if desired.

Now locate the wing joint with the tip of your knife. Slice through the skin until you hit bone. Pull the wing down and cut it off at the joint. Separate the wing portions at the joint.



Use long, smooth strokes rather than a sawing motion. Steady the bird with your fork and start slicing above the leg socket. Begin to carve thin, even slices down to the incision. Start each new slice a little higher, continuing until you reach the breastbone. The angle of your knife will change slightly until you are slicing almost parallel to the breastbone.

Select Christmas Toys Carefully

Santa Claus is coming soon. And that means that Dad and Mother are out doing the shopping for the toys that old St. Nick will leave under the tree for the youngsters of the family.

Toys — all the way from a rubber ball to a shiny new bike are a part of growing up. The child without a toy or two — or two dozen — at Christmas is a forelorn tot indeed.

The chances are that your youngsters will open their gifts Christmas morning and have a large time getting acquainted with their new toys. But in all too many households across the nation the toys themselves will dim the happy Christmas season by causing accidents and injuries.

The American Medical Association offers some simple tips for selecting toys that will help insure a completely happy Christmas:

— Beware of small toys that can be swallowed, flammable toys, and toys with rough or sharp edges.

—All electric toys should be safe. Look for the safety approval label on the cord and on the toy itself.

— avoid toys made of lead or colored with leadbased paints. You're unlikely to encounter these today, as the dangers of lead poisoning are well known. But it's wise to be safe.

— Baby's toys should be too large to put in the mouth, washable, lightweight and non-brittle.

— Eye injuries are a particular hazard from Christmas toys. Sling shots, air rifles, archery sets and even the spring-action toy pistols that propel sticks capped with rubber cups have caused eye injuries.

The air rifle, or B-B gun, is still a threat, even though its use is forbidden in many communities. If you give your child an air rifle, impress upon him the danger of the richochet. Many air rifle injuries come from the small shot bounding off a fence post or the side of a house. A target backed with a bag of sand or straw is a must for air rifle marksmen.

Christmas tree ornaments, particularly the strings of small lights, are potential hazards. Some of the brands of tree lights are flimsily wired and can be fire hazards. Old and frayed light strings are dangerous. Discard them.

Handle ornaments and lights with care. Keep the extra bulbs and the discarded bulbs out of the reach of the tots.

Make The Holidays Happy For Pets

CHRISTMAS

Fall — and its promise of approaching holiday festivities — can be one of the nicest times of the year. You can make it even more so by planning for your pet's comfort and happiness — as well as your own.

Perhaps the best advice for fall is to animal-proof your home. At New York City's Animal Medical Center, Chief of Medicine S. Garvey confirms this need. "Each holiday season, we see someone's pet that has fallen victim to the human holiday season. People sometimes forget that their pets can't always stomach our Thanksgiving or Christmas feast. The best holiday treats for pets are pet treats, not human food."

Here's a holiday checklist with reminders for a safe and happy holiday season for both man and beast:

—After parties, immediately remove old cigarettes from ashtrays. Many animals are attracted to these spent cigarettes, and risk nicotine poisoning.

—Keep holiday decorations high enough so your pet can't reach them. Crushed glass balls can give nasty cuts. Keep animals away from ornament hooks and cats away from tinsel.

—Tape extension cords to floor or baseboard to reduce your pet's temptation to play with them.

—Never allow burning candles to be within a pet's reach.

—Dispose of bones in a pet-proof container. Keep garbage out of reach.

—Keep your pet away from toxic plants, as many Yuletide favorites, such as poinsettias and mistletoe, are poisonous.

Your family's special-member — your pet — can join in the holiday fun. Just remember to keep your pet's safety in mind — as you would your own.

Ensure Successful Entertaining

The party was a smashing success: The food was devoured, the last ounce of wine drunk, and all the guests had a marvelous time! The holiday season is a wonderful time to gather family and friends, to bring out all the treasured heirloom decorations, and to renew cherished traditions long forgotten.

However, at the root of every successful party are several basic rules: Be organized, arrange simple menus and be totally prepared! Experts suggest the following checklist for a holiday success:

— Make lists! Just as lists are essential when organizing your workday, they are critical to the success of every party. Guest lists, shopping lists and things-to-do lists help eliminate important oversights and frazzled pre-party nerves.

— Don't overload your schedule by planning an over-ambitious menu. If you have a normally busy routine, don't attempt to serve complicated or first-time recipes; you will only overextend yourself and add more stress to your planning.

Leave plenty of time for last-minute preparations by planning as many do-ahead dishes as possible. And, since holiday parties are a time for sharing, encourage your guests to bring along their favorite dish.

— If your budget for holiday celebrations won't allow champagne, add a touch of festive elegance by serving imported sparkling wine. Perfect for every party or at-home gathering, sparkling wine is the ideal complement to formal or informal dinner menus.

You can serve it with inexpensive hors d'oeuvres and entrees, or turn your gathering into a truly dazzling party accompanied only by sparkling wine served in a variety of ways.

Stockings Full Of Golden Oranges

An orange in the Christmas stocking toe is a custom still practiced today. Not too many years ago, before coast to coast produce shipment, Christmas time was about the only time the family had oranges and they were an extra special, rare treat.

An orange in the stocking seems to have come from an old legend telling that St. Nicholas wanted to give dowry money to two poor, maiden sisters. In order to secretly help them, he tossed bags of gold down the chimney. The sister's stockings were hanging by the fireplace to dry and the gold fell into the stockings. Shiny, golden oranges of today's stockings are thought of by some to commemorate this legend.

Royal Golden Apples For Christmastime

To the Greeks, oranges were the "golden apples of the Hesperides." In China 4,000 years ago, they were restricted to the emperor and his coterie and, in Europe during the seventeenth century, royal orangeries flourished. It has taken here in the New World more than 100 years of cultivation for the orange to develop to perfection. It is now shipped all over the world — including back to the Orient.

As the weather is becoming cooler, the citrus season begins. In time for the holidays. . . blessedly low-calorie. . .the succulent varieties appear one after the other.

Select wisely and enjoy all of nature's bounty:

Hamlin orange is a small, sweet-flavored fruit with few if any seeds. An excellent juice orange, the Hamlin also enhances main-dish recipes.

Navel orange is large-to-extra-large with a deep yellow, pebbly, medium thick peel. Seedless, it peels and sections easily.

Tangelo, that marvelous hybrid of tangerine and grapefruit, arrives in time for the holidays.

Dancy Tangerine, is small, deep orange in color, with a smooth skin, loose peel and few seeds. The Dancy has a rich, sweet flavor with a spicy aroma.

Mineola, sometimes called the "Honeybell" because of its shape, has a deliciously rich, tart flavor.

Marsh White or Pink Grapefruit is medium to large with a smooth, thin peel. Almost seedless, it has excellent flavor and plenty of juice.

For all types of citrus, choose fruit that's heavy for its size. It should feel firm, yet resilient and "give" when pressed. Also, choose a shiny skin as opposed to a rough skin which may indicate dry fruit.

To protect the nutritional quality and flavor of all citrus, keep them in a cool area. A temperature between 45 and 48 degrees Fahrenheit is recommended. When properly stored, citrus will keep for many weeks.

When you find citrus with a greenish tinge, don't pass them by. They are fully mature, juicy and ready-to-eat. The "regreening" occurs when nights are too warm — cool nights produce the cheerful bright-orange tint you usually see. If nights become warm, the mature orange-colored citrus sometimes turns green again. Clever but confusing.

Putting Christmas Priorities In Place

Is the tree big enough?

Does the tree have enough decorations?

Did I get as many Christmas presents for Sissy and I did for Bubba?

Will the turkey be big enough for everyone to have a good share?

Did I remember to send everyone a Christmas card that I should have?

Will there be plenty of Christmas cookies to go around?

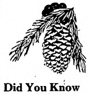
Is there enough Christmas wrapping paper?

Did I mail the package in time for it to reach its destination before Christmas?

Will Barbara think her present isn't as expensive as Bobby's?

How are we going to have time to go to all the parties of friends and employers?

And then — one pauses and suddenly remembers what Christmas is really all about: Am I truly thankful for the gift of Jesus? Have I really given Him my best? Is this what peace is all about?



Did You Know About Mistletoe?

What parasite became a lovely part of Christmas tradition? The mistletoe, of course. Since mistletoe grows way up high in trees and never touches the ground, one early Christian source compares it to a link between heaven and earth. The one Christmas custom involving mistletoe that has survived down through the years to the present time is kissing beneath the mistletoe.

Tree Trimming Rite Of Holiday Cheer

The tradition of trimming the Christmas tree is age-old, as are the festivities which surround it. Each section of the country or, for that matter, each individual family, has its own tradition when it comes to this rite of holiday cheer.

A tree-trimming party is perhaps the most enjoyable — and the easiest — way to dress a tree, and the more people you have to hang ornaments the better.

Each person adds his or her own personal touch, and the results can be extremely creative.

Add good food and drink and you have the perfect three-trimming party. Food can mean a full course dinner, a buffet, hors d'oeuvre, or an array of desserts.

A wide selection of hot and cold hors d'oeuvre is a good idea because they are, in most cases, easier to prepare, serve and maneuver when you are decorating a tree.

A tray of desserts arranged nicely with holly and Christmas bulbs is equally nice for a party given later in the evening. A menu of Christmas cookies, candy, mincemeat, eggnog, fruitcake and a large bowl of wassail will add to the holiday festivities

Practical Presents To Enjoy All Year

You can prove how trendy you are by giving the newest fragrance of the year, but isn't it better to prove how much you care by giving something truly worthwhile and useful?

Here are some Christmas gift ideas for mother or Aunt Jane that could turn out to be their most appreciated presents:

1. An exercise book designed to help average people stay in reasonably good shape, not turn into 100-pound models.
2. A gift certificate for a facial, massage or whole day of beauty — depending on your pocketbook.
3. An easy-to-use home blood pressure-pulse meter. Norelco digital models have been hospital tested for accuracy, and the newest small tabletop unit with large LCD readout makes a very affordable gift.
4. Membership in a health club, or the local "Y."
5. Exercise equipment; with everything from inexpensive wrist weights to computerized home gyms available, you're sure to find something in your price range.
6. A gift basket of fresh fruits and/or cheeses.

Holiday Trees Are For The Birds

Craig Tufts

This season I'm making a special holiday tree for the birds. I'm bypassing the usual evergreen decorated with strings of cranberries or popcorn or stale cookies.

Those traditional "bird trees" do look festive and inviting, but, to tell you the truth, I've never noticed birds eating the decorations. Have you?

That's why, this year, I'm going out on a limb or two to experiment with a real bird banquet. You might like to follow suit.

Instead of festooning an evergreen, I'm adorning the bare branches of a deciduous tree. You could decorate either a tree growing in your yard or a cut one placed where birds are most apt to notice it.

Choose a sturdy, sparsely-branched five to 10-foot tree. Gather several kinds of berry-bearing clippings. Using small-gauge copper wire, attach the clippings toward the ends of the tree branches, making it look as if the clippings belong there.

Berry-bearing plants (both native and non-native) vary from area to area. Home in Virginia, I'm selecting mine with one eye on design and color scheme, the other on bird-feeding. Here's my choice:

The color red is, of course, a must in any holiday decorating, and I'm using several red-berried plants: Mountain ashes and staghorn sumac, for instance, then some deciduous hollies (especially possum haw or winterberry), plus multi-flora rose springs. (I dip the freshly cut tip of all sprigs in molten paraffin to keep the fruit from drying out too fast.)

I'm not entirely throwing tradition out the window. My tree includes several cones: Pine and spruce cones filled with a suet-peanut butter mixture for chicadees, nuthatches and maybe a titmouse or two.

Once the red berries are gone, the big cones (plus four or five inches of stem) can be dipped in suet-peanut butter mixture and hung by wire, like single tree ornaments.

A holiday tree isn't complete without a string of something twined through some branches. But instead of popcorn, I'm hanging short strings of high-sugar-content, pitted dates, food for bluebirds and mockingbirds. I'm also wiring a few small containers of raisins to the tree trunk.

With our bird tree complete, my family can really celebrate the holidays, watching from the window to see which birds eat what from the feeder tree we built for them.

Christmas Trees Are New Tradition

It is said that the first English Christmas tree appeared at a court party for children in 1821. It was a number of years, however, before common people adopted the Christmas tree. A garland of greenery was still hung like a double-looped May garland. The garland was decorated with candles, a ring of red apples, and ornaments. Suspended from the center was a bunch of mistletoe with long ribbons attached from which sometimes small gifts were tied. This was called the Kissing Bough.

The Christmas Tree American Custom

The Christmas tree became a Christmas tradition in America before it arrived in England. George the Third's Hessian soldiers decorated Christmas trees during the American Revolution. Earlier, still, German settlers in Pennsylvania decorated Christmas trees with colored paper, sweets and lights. The tree became an English Christmas custom only after the German Prince Albert married Queen Victoria.

Magical Powers Began Tradition Of Evergreens

The use of decorations made from evergreens was originally a pagan custom in the Roman festival of Saturnalia. The evergreens were thought of as a symbol of immortality and worshipped since they were always green and thought to possess magical powers. The early church forbade the use of evergreens but since it was a deep-rooted tradition the ban was ignored. Evergreens have been used at Christmas time ever since.

Merry Christmas Salad

This salad is festive in red and green, and also never fails to set nicely. Serve with Christmas dinner.

1 package lime jello
14 ounces crushed pineapple
12 ounces cream cheese
¾ cup chopped celery
¾ cup chopped nuts
½ cup shopped maraschino cherries
½ pint whipped cream

Dissolve jello in pineapple juice and water to make 1 cup. Refrigerate until partly set. Mix in nuts, celery, pineapple, cherries and cheese. Fold in whipped cream. Place into mold and refrigerate.

Merry Christmas

Sponge Candy

Fun to make; fun to eat.
1 cup sugar
1 cup dark syrup
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon soda
Melted dipping chocolate or chocolate chips.

Combine sugar, syrup, and vinegar; cook to hard crack stage, without stirring. Remove from heat; add soda. Mix well; pour into lightly buttered jelly roll pan. Cool quickly, do not stir at all. Break into little pieces. Dip into chocolate.

Christmas Stockings Hung With Care

When your family hangs its stockings by the chimney with care this Christmas, you are honoring a holiday custom that goes back a lot further than the greeting cards we send or the tree we decorate.

Legend has it that this holiday custom was inadvertently started by a Greek bishop named Nicholas as he gallantly came to the aid of a poor young maiden facing a bleak future.

Back in the days of the late fourth century, a young woman without a dowry, especially if she were plain, was unmarriageable, and relegated not only to a life of spinsterhood, but servitude, for there was no other way for her to support herself.

Nicholas took pity on this one particularly unfortunate young maiden in his parish whose father and mother had several daughters and no money to ensure any of them a better future.

Nicholas himself had come from a wealthy family before he became a member of the Church, and it was his pleasure to be generous to people in need, always anonymously.

So, one particular dark and cold December day as he passed by this humble family's home, he tossed a small package of three gold pieces inside through an open window. Supposedly, the coins happened to land in one of the stockings hung over the fireplace to dry, and that's how a custom was born that survives 1,500 years later.

Before Nicholas died, his generosity — of which this was just one example — had already become legendary throughout Europe. After he died, he would be sainted, and it is this same St. Nicholas who would become Father Christmas, jolly old St. Nick, and eventually Santa Claus.

It should be noted that the original Nicholas was reputedly a tall, thin and somber gentleman. He wore a black cleric's robe and not a fur-trimmed red velvet suit.

The familiar image of Santa Claus that we recognize today is largely a product of the last 100 years, following the publishing of the poem by Clement Moore, "A Visit From St. Nicholas."

The generosity of St. Nicholas is still celebrated in many parts of Europe, but December 6th is his special feast day. On that day, gifts of candy and fruit are traditionally given to all good children: Supposedly, naughty little boys and girls find coal in their stockings.

In America, the stocking is also used as a cornucopia of goodies, but is has always been associated with December 25th. Not just children, but every member of the family — even the dog and cat — is likely to have his or her own stocking hung on the mantel. What a stocking may contain is limited only by size and imagination.

Though very few young ladies are likely to find gold pieces in their Christmas stocking today, some have been known to find a diamond ring there instead of a dowry. Very few lumps of coal are reported, either, though candy still is popular.

Among other thoughtful, welcome little treasures that make excellent stocking stuffers are pens, note paper and address books: A very good idea, too, when you consider the thank you notes that will soon be written, and the address book that will need updating as we hear from old friends far and wide.

Easy Package Pretty-Ups

Make fancy bows from edgings and laces that you keep in your sewing box. Tuck in a poinsettia, pine cone or holly sprig, or a bauble or two.

Paper lace doilies make neat package decorations.

A tiny sprig of evergreen, a shaft of dried grasses, or a cluster of berries enhance bows and plain-colored packages.

Begin The Year With A Clean Slate

The customary way to begin the new year was to unload all the old year's bad things onto some sort of scapegoat. All wickedness in parts of Scotland used to be transferred to a cat or dog which was driven from the house. The scapegoat by some Hungarians was the dummy, Jack Straw. Everyone who saw this effigy carried around the village thought of all their bad deeds disappearing as the figure was burned.

Christmas Wreaths

Cute little goodies to serve with punch while decorating the tree.
1 (2¼ oz.) can deviled ham
¾ teaspoon onion

Combine and spread on 12 Melba toast rounds.
3 ounces soft cream cheese
1 tablespoon commercial sour cream
1 teaspoon mustard

Combine and spread over ham. Garnish decoratively with bits of parsley, pimento and green pepper.

Hot Fruit Punch Noel

4 cups apple cider
2 cups cranberry juice
1 cup orange juice
12 ounces of apricot nectar

Slice lemon and place cloves in slices. Add to above mixture and simmer 15-20 minutes. Garnish with sugar lumps tossed with cinnamon.

Festive Decorating On A Budget

It's Christmas once again, and your relatives and friends will be arriving shortly for the annual holiday celebrations.

The problem is that you have used up your entire Christmas budget by buying gifts for one and all. Yet, you want your home to reflect that wonderful Christmas spirit. How to do it with a minimum investment of time and money?

The following are tips which will help bring the sights, sounds and smells of Christmas into your home to create a truly happy holiday feeling.

— For fragrance, light candles scented with bay, pine or cinnamon.

— Fill a crystal bowl or wicker basket with Christmas tree balls.

— Fill a bowl with red apples and surround with pine boughs.

— Decorate the mantel with pine boughs and Christmas tree balls.

— Hang holly on the mirrors.

— Cut greenery from the back yard to use inside for swags, wreaths and centerpieces.

— Hang tiny lights on the outdoor trees, evergreen and deciduous.

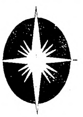
— Light your guests' way to dinner with luminaries, paper bags filled with sand, with lighted candles stuck in sand.

— Hang a bell on the cat. Tie a bow on the dog.

— Tie colorful ribbons and jingle bells on doorknobs.

— Ask each child to write a Christmas poem and recite on Christmas Eve.

— Keep a Christmas Journal each year. Record gifts given, relatives who visited, how holiday was celebrated. Include photos.



Ice Box Dessert

Easy to make ahead for Christmas dinner.

Take 1 cup graham cracker crumbs for each person. Mix in chopped walnuts, marshmallows, raisins or dates as wanted and moisten with enough cream to make a loaf. Let stand in ice box for at least 24 hours and presto — you have the best dessert ever if served with whipped cream.

Don't Try To Diet— Just Maintain

"Eat, drink and be merry" — but don't try to lose weight during the holidays.

"Trying to diet over the most intense period of entertaining sets us up for failure. It's much more important to enjoy ourselves and just try to maintain our weight. We can resume those weight-loss diets — with greater success — after the holidays."

That's the advice of Dr. Judith Stern, a professor of nutrition at the University of California-Davis and consultant to Campbell's Soups.

According to Dr. Stern, one of the keys to maintaining weight levels during the holidays is avoiding temptation. "If I serve a holiday dinner at home, I make the most tempting foods last. If I decide to bake something like brownies that I can nibble on, I make a pie.

"Everyone will know if you sneak a piece of pie — but you could eat several brownies or cookies and no one would know the difference!"

Dr. Stern tries to be good to her guests, too. "Guests appreciate not being stuffed before a meal. Hors d'oeuvres should be light — dips and vegetables are fine. Besides, when guests overeat before the meal, they can't enjoy the good food you've really worked hard to prepare."

Dr. Stern believes it is important to pace your guests' meal — don't rush them. "Nothing is worse than beginning to clear the table before everyone is finished. Once you've served your guests, sit down and relax with them.

"I like serving something that requires time to eat — like a bowl of hot soup or an artichoke — because it helps set a leisurely pace for the meal."

Another way holiday hosts can show consideration for their guests is to allow them to serve themselves. That way they can regulate how much they want to eat.

"Also, don't push seconds on your friends! If a guest wants more of any certain food, let him know that you'd love him to have it and that there is plenty left.

"But don't be like the stereotypical 'mother,' heaping guests' plates with seconds and thirds and then looking hurt if they say that they are full," Dr. Stern says.

To avoid temptation and earn the reputation of being a great hostess, pack up leftovers from holiday meals and send them home with guests.

"Another trick I use is sealing the leftovers in single portions and freezing them. That way they're not in the refrigerator to tempt me," Dr. Stern says.

"Of course, the easiest way to avoid the temptation of leftovers is to go to someone else's home for your holiday meals," Dr. Stern adds.

And what about presents of food from well-meaning friends and co-workers?

"If you work, don't bring it home," Dr. Stern warns. "Share it with everyone at the office. Taste the gift, of course, but don't eat it all yourself.

"If a friend or neighbor stops by with holiday goodies, freeze them until you feel your weight is 'right' or for use when you host an impromptu gathering at your home," Dr. Stern says.

If you want to give a gift of candy to a friend, she suggests that you be moderate. "I'm a chocoholic and I enjoy getting a small box of very fine chocolates — four pieces is really plent — or better still, some beautiful fruit," Dr. Stern says.

"Gifts like these will be even more appreciated because almost everyone is concerned about gaining weight over the holiday season.

"My husband and I have stopped serving heavy cakes and pastries for dessert when we entertain," Dr. Stern says. "Instead, we buy fresh fruit — which is really a treat during the holidays — and serve it alone or with yogurt.

"Sometimes I melt semi-sweet chocolate and partially dip a few pieces of pineapple and strawberry in it for a garnish to my fruit platter. It's really in how you present it, and fruit can be a spectacular and nutritious end to any meal."

So, enjoy yourself during the holidays this year. Focus on maintaining your current weight and be proud of yourself if you don't gain extra pounds. You'll be in a much better frame of mind if your New Year's resolution is to lose weight!

Brazil Christmas

Brazil's Christmas is observed in the summertime. Mass is celebrated at midnight on Christmas Eve in the courtyard of the churches where altars have been set up and Christmas decorations have been hung.

Small pancakes dripping with honey are one of the special holiday treats eaten outside in a festive atmosphere.

Blossoming Twigs Bring Good Luck

The beloved Christmas carol, "Silent Night," was written on Christmas Eve, 1818, in Oberndorf, Austria, by Joseph Mohr, and set to music by Franz Gruber. This, the world's most widely sung carol, has been translated into more than 90 languages.

Many Austrian families place apple twigs in a vase of water on December 4, Saint Barbara's Day. By Christmas Eve, if the twigs have blossomed, it means the family will have good fortune. The more blossoms there are, the greater the good luck is supposed to be.

Christmas borrows Easter traditions

When you think of decorative eggs, Easter probably comes to mind. Well, think again! Hand decorated eggs are moving beyond springtime Easter baskets to evergreen boughs on December 25th.

Christmas eggs give you a brand new way to add homespun creativity to your holiday festivities. Best of all, this project is fun and easy enough to involve the entire family.

To begin your egg craft, set aside several fresh, white eggs. Using a sharp pin, poke a small hole in the narrow end of the egg, and a slightly larger hole in the opposite end.

Holding the egg over a bowl, blow through the smaller hole until the eggshell is completely empty. (To avoid waste, use these eggs for baking Christmas treats!)

Next, rinse the eggshells with water to remove their natural protective coating. Since water is bound to seep into the shell through the small holes, let the egg drain upright in a small container for an hour or so.

The fun really begins with color! Once you've decided on the design or character you want to create, it's easy to change your eggshell from white to virtually any shade imaginable.

Simply mix a hot concentrated dye solution using your choice of colorful Rit Dyes. (Combine ½ cup liquid dye in two quarts hot water; or one package powder dye dissolved first in one pint hot water.)

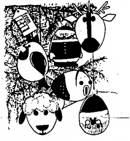
For example, a Christmas bird might look especially striking in Cardinal Red Rit, a reindeer look dashing in Chestnut Brown, and Santa look suitably jolly with a Rose Pink complexion. Give your imagination free reign and brighten your tree with a rainbow of colorful egg accents.

Keep your egg submerged in the dye bath until it is slightly darker than you desire (the color will become slightly lighter as it dries), rinse in cool water, and place on paper toweling to dry.

When the dyed egg has dried completely, it's time to add the finishing touches. Glue on details made from bits of felt for noses and wings, sparkling sequins for eyes and fish scales, trimmings from your sewing basket for hair and smiles, paper scraps for hats and Christmas packages, and cotton balls for sheep fleece and the top of Santa's hat.

Top your egg off with a loop of thread or yarn, secured underneath a glued-on strip of felt. Then, let your Christmas menagerie dangle delightfully from every branch of the tree.

For more imaginative dyeing ideas, send for free literature from Rit Dye, RIT/2NC, P.O. Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.



DESIGN A MENAGERIE of creative Christmas ornaments by dyeing eggs with colorful Rit Dye.

Yule Log Dates To Medieval England

One of the main certainties at the medieval English castle was the lighting of the Yule Log. The Yule Log dates back to the time of the Saxons and Goths who burned a log at their winter solstice festival.

The Yule Log was often a great trunk of a large tree ceremoniously hauled in with the youngest member of the party astride the log as the Yule sprite. A piece of wood carefully saved from last year's log was now used to light the new Yule log. It was thought this would ensure the household's furtune during the coming year.

Play Clay Fun For The Family

Remember the magic the holidays held when you were growing up? The crinkle of wrapping paper, the twinkling lights, the whispered secrets and surprises, the nose-tingling scents from the kitchen — all helped to build up the anticipation.

Revive that special magic by sharing the holiday preparations with a child. You'll find the youthful enthusiasm contagious! Here's an idea for a holiday activity anyone will enjoy:

— Make your own holiday ornaments, like the ones shown here, using Play Clay, an inexpensive, easy-to-make clay. Here's how:

BASIC PLAY CLAY RECIPE

- 2 cups baking soda (one 1-lb. package)
- 1 cup cornstarch
- 1¼ cups cold water

(1) Mix together baking soda and cornstarch in a saucepan. Add water and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly. When mixture is the consistency of moist mashed potatoes, turn out on a plate and cover with a damp cloth.

(2) When Play Clay is cool enough to handle, knead it like dough until it's smooth. This makes about 2 cups of Play Clay. (You can store any unused portions in a tightly sealed plastic bag in the refrigerator.)

To make shaped ornaments:

(Block, Teddy bear, jack-in-the-box, doll, rocking horse, soldier, and horn.)

— Roll out the Play Clay, between two sheets of waxed paper, to about ¼, to one-third inch thickness.

— Use a small sharp knife to cut out the basic shape. If you need help, trace the ornaments in the photo or trace shapes from a children's book onto tracing paper to use as a guide.

Place the traced pattern on the clay and, using a pin or needle, poke holes along the outline and details. Remove paper and cut out the shape.

— Three-dimensional details like the Teddy bear's cheeks and nose, the letter on the block, and the doll's bow are cut separately. To attach them to the basic shape or join other pieces of clay, moisten one piece with water and gently press together.

— Insert a piece of paper clip or wire into the clay at the top of each ornament for hanging.

— Add any details — mouth, eyes, fingers, hair — with a toothpick, sharpened pencil, or orange stick. Children will enjoy working with different tools such as a toothbrush or garlic press to create interesting surfaces.

To make cookie cutter ornaments (like the star):

— Use cookie cutters to cut out shapes from the rolled out Play Clay. Poke a hole for hanging at the top of the ornaments with a pencil point or toothpick.

To dry:

— Place the Play Clay ornaments on a plate, cookie sheet or other flat surface to dry overnight. Thick designs may need more time.

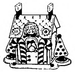
To shorten the drying time, heat shapes in a 350 degree F. preheated oven for approximately 15 minutes. If they are not hard enough, continue to heat, five minutes at a time. If any design details become loose, they can be glued on with craft glue after drying is complete.

To paint and finish:

— When dry, paint with acrylic paints, poster paints, water colors or felt-tip pens.

— Apply a coat of polyurethane, varnish or clear nail polish to protect your designs for years to come.

Sharing the holidays with a child just might make this the best holiday ever. And who knows? You might even rediscover the child in yourself!



Fun and Easy Tree Decorations

Place cookie cutters on stiff paper or cardboard and trace around these shapes. Cut out the center of the shape so that you have a frame. Paste colored paper or plastic on the back of the frame. Make a loop at the top and tie to the tree or greenery.

Candy Cane Cookies

The smaller you can make these, the cuter they are; and they taste yummy too.

1 cup shortening
1 cup powdered sugar
1 egg
1½ teaspoons almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt

Put red food color into half of the dough. Roll into strips and lay side-by-side, then twist to form canes. Bake at 350 degrees until lightly browned.

Taffy

Have a family taffy pull to relax after the holidays.

1 cup sugar
½ cup water
¼ cup white syrup
⅛ teaspoon salt

Heat slowly until sugar dissolves, then boil, stirring constantly, until hard ball forms in ice water. Add vanilla and pull when cool enough to handle.

Thumb Print Cookies

Pretty little cookies to brighten up your serving tray at Christmas.

½ cup shortening
¼ cup brown sugar
1 egg yolk
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt

Roll into 1 inch balls, dip in slightly beaten egg whites and then chopped nuts. Bake 8 minutes. Press thumb into top and place half a cherry or jam or a nut into hole. Bake 8 minutes more.

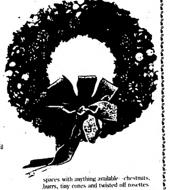
HOLIDAY CRAFT IDEA:
Making your own pine cone wreath



MATERIALS

- Two 16 or 18 inch wire wreath frames.
- 50 long, slender (white) pine cones to form base, and approximately 100 regular (yellow) pine cones.
- Chestnuts, burrs, tiny pine cones, twisted off rosettes of spruce cones, artificial fruit for filling in and/or accent.
- Wire for tying wreaths together and for hanging.
- Thermogrip® glue gun and glue sticks.
- 1½ yards of wide velvet ribbon for bow (optional).
- Clear acrylic spray (lacquer).

PROCEDURE

1. Soak about 50 long, slender pine cones (the type that can be easily found in wooded areas during the fall) in water until they close.
2. Once closed, insert them like wheel spokes, alternating direction, through the wire spaces in one wreath frame.
3. Attach the two largest wires of the two frames together, back to back. If they match well, glue the wires together. If not, wire them.
4. Glue shorter, thicker pine cones (found in abundance in wooded areas during fall months) in three circular rows to the pairs of wires in the empty top frame.
5. Attach artificial fruit, if desired, leaving space for a ribbon bow. Fill in empty spaces with anything available—chestnuts, burrs, tiny cones and twisted off rosettes of spruce cones.
6. Attach a loop of wire or heavy cord for hanging and spray with several coats of clear lacquer to enhance color and preserve.
7. If you have any difficulty tying a satisfactory velvet bow, use the glue gun to spot-glue the loops of the bow. Then, wire in place.

Italian Christmas Legend Of Befana

In Italy, it is not Santa Claus who brings the gifts to good children but rather it is Le Befana.

According to an ancient legend the Italians tell of the Wise Men stopping to ask an old woman directions as to where to find the Baby Jesus. Le Befana was so full of awe as she saw their magnificence that she just couldn't speak. The Wise Men invited her to go with them to worship the newborn King, but she could only shake her head no.

It was not until the Wise Men had gone that she suddenly found her tongue and hurried out to catch them, but she never could catch up.

At each place she stopped along the way she left a little gift, hoping that one day she would find the Christ Child.

Consider A Puppy For Grandma

If you've fou· ı a gift for just about everyone on ; ar shopping list save that very special older companion or grandparent, perhaps a gift that will remind them how much you care year-round would fit the bill.

A pet can offer an older person a wealth of warmth and companionship that lasts long after the holiday decorations have been put away.

Lasting Benefits

According to the Pet Information Bureau, friendship and love from pets help reduce stress and alleviate loneliness. In fact, a recent study indicated that heart attack patients who owned pets actually lived longer than their non-pet owning counterparts.

Older couples whose children have already grown and left the house, will discover that a pet can help fill the void created by the "empty nest."

A pet can be talked to, confided in and cared for, and elderly people who live alone will certainly enjoy the unquestioning attention and affection a loving pet can provide.

Before selecting a pet for Christmas, there are several important questions that should be answered.

First, the size of a person's home should guide you in choosing the type of animal that will live most comfortably in that environment.

Second, carefully consider the older person's lifestyle, so that a pet will be a welcome and suitable addition to their regular routine.

For example, physically active seniors will enjoy the excitement and enthusiasm that a puppy can bring into a home.

In fact, Grandpa is sure to welcome a companion on walks or duing light exercise routines. And, he'll love showing off his new pet and the amusing tricks and antics it has learned to perform on visits with friends and family.

If the older person on your gift list enjoys a challenge, perhaps a bird that can be taught to speak would make an excellent choice.

Birds require less care and attention than dogs, but are equally as enjoyable to watch and spend time with. Bird species range from those that sing like canaries to those with large vocabulary capabilities like macaws.

Fishkeeping is a popular hobby that most of us have dabbled with at one time or another, and post-retirement is an ideal time to renew that interest.

Watching fish swim in an aquarium has been shown to lower blood pressure and help people feel more relaxed. And, for people who are on-the-go, fish require very little time commitment.

How About a Gift Certificate?

Because the holidays can be so hectic, it's a good idea to wait and introduce a pet to its new environment after the hustle and bustle are over. A gift certificate for pets and pet supplies is the perfect way to enjoy the excitement of giving a pet at Christmas, while providing the older person with a chance to select the pet he or she will really want.

In Holland It's Sinterklaas Eve

In Holland there is an interesting custom of giving Sinterklaas' gifts. The gifts are wrapped in such a way as to disguise their contents. The gift is also accompanied by a pertinent, witty verse designed to amuse or embarrass the receiver. The one who gives the gift and the one who writes the verse is unknown. After the special supper on Sinterklaas Eve, the basket of verses and gifts are passed around, the gifts are opened and the verses read amid much laughter and blushes.

Sky's The Limit

If taste is paramount, and money no object, then the holidays offer limitless opportunities for thoughtful giving. From caviar to luxury cruises, the modern Maecenas can bask expansively in the pleasure of sharing something special with someone close.

One might, for example share the gift of a cruise for two to the Caribbean aboard Cunard-NAC's Sagafjord. Sailing from Ft. Lauderdale April 17, the 14-day cruise stops at St. Thomas, Tortola, St. Maarten, Monserrat, Guadeloupe, Montego Bay, Grand Cayman, Playa del Carmen and Cozumel. Rates range from $2,770 to $6,130.

Closer to home, an unusually appropriate luxury gift at holiday time would be a wicker picnic basket containing a kilo tin of imported Russian beluga caviar along with several bottles of Stolichnaya vodkas, the only authentic Russian vodka available in the U.S., and available for about $11.50 a 750 ml.

Slightly higher, a kilo of beluga caviar runs $900 or more, with a half-pound tin available for around $200.

While Stolichnaya and caviar is a traditional luxury gift, a new twist to this classic would be a basket filled with bottles of Stolichnaya's Pertsovka, a pepper vodka, along with the fixings for some special cocktails — for example, tomato juice for the "Perfect Bloody Mary" and dry vermouth and jalapeno peppers for a "Cajun Martini."

Giving the spirits at Christmas time has long been a tradition, both here and around the world. Probably one of the most luxurious of such liquor gifts for the holiday season would be a 750 ml. Bottle of Ballantine's 30-year-old Scotch whisky, the world's most expensive Scotch at around $100 a bottle, and a conversation stopper wherever served.

Other conversation stoppers could include equisitely crafted Italian leather goods, like his and her crocodile billfolds, the "status accessory" of the year, selling for around $150 each.

Travelers also will appreciate the style statement and sophistication of hand-crafted Italian-made leather luggage. At about $850 for a matched three-piece set, this is truly a luxury gift.

And for the home, there's the ultimate high-tech audio-video system from Sharp, featuring a contemporary, sleek glossy black design, 26-inch flat, square screen TV-monitor that can rest on the floor or on a glossy black and chrome stand. The system also includes a separate electronic turner, hi-fi VCR and speakers.

Available at a suggested $2,299 retail, the stereo model also offers "surround sound" capability by connecting additional speakers for true concert hall effect.

"The Twelve Days Of Christmas"

The carol, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" is about all that is left of the old tradition when Christmas was celebrated during the 12 days between December 25 and Epiphany, January 6.

This carol originally was a singing game played at Twelfth Night parties. All the gifts were to be repeated in order without mistake. If a guest made a blunder, he had to pay a penalty.

Some versions include such gifts as a goose was that grey, five Limerick oysters, a papingo-eye (peacock) and an Arabian baboon. The four calling birds are the same traditional four colly (black) birds.

Twice Cooked Divinity

I'll give credit to Better Homes and Gardens for this recipe, but it's the easiest one I've ever made, and always turns out.

Stir 2 cups sugar into ½ cup white corn syrup, ½ cup water and dash salt. Dissolve and boil to 240 degrees. Slowly pour one-third of the mixture over 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly with mixer. Cook remaining syrup (two-thirds) to 265 degrees. Beat into the egg white mixture and beat and beat until stiff. Cool 15 to 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. When mixture holds its shape, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased waxed paper and let set.

½ cup water
½ cup milk

Beat eggs slightly. Sift flour and salt into bowl. Add water and milk and beat. Grease muffin tins and preheat them in 425 degree oven. Planting The Spirit

It used to be that pictures were the only way to make the holiday season last beyond the few days allotted for the festivities. This year, there is another way to preserve the spirit of the season by having it live on through a living, breathing gift — a houseplant.

Plants are colorful and decorative, and add a warm touch to any room. A particularly appropriate plant to give at this time of year would be the Christmas cactus, with its striking bright green leaves and timely rosy red blossoms. Or, for something a little more exotic, an African violet, the number one favorite flowering plant on anyone's list, would be a good idea.

Proper Maintenance

Maintaining these and any other plants beyond the holidays can be made easier this year, thanks to a new indoor gardening tool, "Ortho's Complete Guide to Successful Houseplants."

This elegant new hardcover book contains all the information that the aspiring gardener or aficionado could possibly need to lovingly care for and nurture indoor plants.

With 320-pages of stunning color photographs, this comprehensive volume covers such basic topics as seed starting, watering and light requirements to more advanced subjects like plant propagation, conservatories and greenhouses.

In the section on light requirements, for example, the novice gardener will learn that a Christmas cactus, if positioned near a bright, cool window, will bloom again at Easter.

The newcomer to plant care will also be pleased to discover that African violets, contrary to common belief, are in fact easy to grow. Plenty of bright indirect light and evenly moist soil will ensure that this lovely plant stays in constant bloom.

Expert and novice gardeners alike will be particularly interested to learn about the many ways they can enhance the beauty of their home by decorating with plants.

Helpful decorating tips offered in the Ortho book include how to obscure an architectural defect with a tree such as a ficus or how to use plants like Chinese evergreens as effective room dividers.

"Ortho's Complete Guide to Successful Houseplants" also offers an extensive list of over 300 houseplants with detailed descriptions on all their growing requirements, while another section contains a comprehensive guide to houseplant problems and their solutions.

A Gift that Grows

So, whether that special someone on your Christmas list is a "green of thumb" or not, a lush plant accompanied by "Ortho's Complete Guide to Successful Houseplants" is a gift that will help the holiday spirit grow all year long.

Cards Are Newer Christmas Custom

Christmas card giving is a relatively new custom. The London artist John Calcott Horsely was commissioned to create a card in the year 1843 — for the Englishman Sir Henry Cole. Sir Henry had found it a more and more difficult chore to keep up with his personal notes to his many friends at Christmas time.

Horsely's colored card had three panels. The card's two side panels extolled the virtues of clothing the needy and feeding the hungry, while the center panel pictured the family at Christmas dinner. Below the dinner scene was the message, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

In 1874, Louis Prang, a German imigrant to the United States, owned a small lithographing shop in Roxbury, MA. He designed Christmas cards to sell. Americans liked the idea and Christmas cards than gained a place among our Christmas traditions.

"Silent Night" Is Best Loved Carol

Most of us have heard of how probably the most popular carol in the world was created when it was discovered on Christmas Eve that the organ's bellows were eaten through either by mice or rust. Now a song must be sung to be accompanied not by the organ but by the guitar. Quickly the words of "Silent Night" were written by Father Josef Mohr, the parish priest, and set to music by organist and schoolmaster Franz Gruben. By Midnight Mass the song was completed and rehearsed. Within thirty years the carol had achieved worldwide popularity. But did you know that Mohr died penniless and Gruben spent his last years fighting to prove that he did indeed compose the music? Could they have lived on to hear the carol sung even to our day they would have realized that they had not lived their lives in vain.

Cranberry Bread Swirl

This would be a nice treat to give as gifts, or to serve to the family for Christmas.

½ cup scalded milk
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt

Mix and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve 2 packages dry yeast and ½ cup warm water and add to milk mixture.

Then add:
1 egg
2 egg yolks
Four and two-thirds cups flour

Let rise 1 hour until doubled. Mix 1 (1 pound) can whole cranberry sauce with 2 tablespoons grated orange rind. Roll dough with cranberry mixture inside as for a jelly roll. Let rise again and bake at 350 degrees until brown.

Christmas Shopping Can Be Fun

by Lillian Vernon

Holiday shopping can, and should be, a pleasant and gratifying experience. Just approach it as a way of showing family and friends you think they're special, and try to find gifts that express how you feel about them.

For the past 35 years, I've traveled the world, selecting gifts that I think you would be proud to give (and pleased to receive!). I'd like to share some of the ideas I've used for my family over the years.

Keep A List

Think carefully all year long about what people really want, and jot down ideas as they come to mind. Keep a list and, when you come across something on the list, shop early — even if it's not near Christmas-time.

Start a gift hideaway and buy a little at a time. . . this will save you from having to do all your shopping at the last minute. You can even start wrapping gifts as you get them so you won't have to fuss with them all at once — and you'll have more time to enjoy the holidays!

Something else you might consider is the type of gift you choose for someone. Out-of-the-ordinary ideas are often appreciated more because they require a little extra thought. Buy decorative baskets or tins and fill them with soaps, potpourri, candles or homemade cookies.

Memorable Presents

Sentimental gifts can be very meaningful and lots of fun, too. Frame old photos or write a family history in a bound book — they're sure to be treasured for generations.

If you're having trouble buying a gift, think about creating an event — a luncheon, dinner, theatre outing or special day spent together — a gift of yourself.

The presentation of gifts can be just as important as the gifts themselves. Select pretty gift wrap and ribbons to enhance what's inside. For extra flair, use ornaments as gift tie-ons, especially personalized ones — they'll delight everyone!

And for a gift that won't fit under the tree, like a bicycle, paste a picture of it into a card or box. This way, there's something there for everyone, and it'll be a bigger surprise when opened.

The spirit of giving is a joyful one. Remember that, and Christmas shopping can be fun and not a chore!

"Auld Lang Synes"

"Auld Lang Syne," which has become a popular song to be sung at New Year's goes back to the pagan times when they held hands in a meeting around a stone and sang this song. The song itself was not originally written as a New Year's song; in fact, it was in tune with the ancient belief that at the New Year, ancestors return to the family hearth.

AULD LANG SYNE

Nutty Bars

Chock full o' nuts, just right for a Christmas treat.

Crust:
1½ cups flour
½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup shortening

Mix like pie crust and press into 9x13 pan.

Filling:
Melt 6 ounces butterscotch chips
½ cup white syrup
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon water

Pour mixture over crust. Sprinkle with 1 (13 ounce) can mixed nuts. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees or til mixture bubbles around the nuts. Cool well before cutting.

The Holly And The Ivy Grow

In early times ivy was considered femine and holly masculine. People though they were necessary to ensure the blessing of good luck and fertility.

People believed that the Burning Bush from which God spoke to Moses was holly.

The holly was also thought to have protection powers from thunder, lightning, and witches.

Candles To Guide The Christ Child

Who first started lighting candles as a Christmas custom? No one really knows but it is said that medieval Christians thought that on Christmas Eve the Christ Child wandered from home to home looking for those who believed in Him. So it was that people lit candles to place in their windows to guide the Christ Child in the darkness to their homes. Also, any stranger who might be drawn to their door by the candlelight was a welcome guest to each home.

What To Buy For That Guy

Do gifts he received for "Christmas past" haunt your household? Are those bikini undershorts and the shocking pink turtleneck sweater lurking in his drawers? Do a dozen gift bottles of aftershave and cologne face you like a criminal line-up every time you open the medicine cabinet? And how did that pair of cute fuzzy slippers find its way from his closet floor to behind the paint cans in the workshop?

This Christmas, give your favorite guy a gift that he can use all the time, one he'll be proud to wear and will enjoy throughout the year. Choose a dress shirt that fits his personal style, body type and coloring.

It's easy if you combine your personal touch with a few simple shirt buying tips.

—Check his closet! Find the shirt in which you think he looks best, and check the label for his collar size and sleeve length. Then, look over his entire wardrobe to see what styles of shirts he prefers and what colors go best with his suits.

—What's his style? If he's a traditional executive-type, he probably favors crisp looking button-down oxford shirts. More of a trend-setter? Go for fashionable point collars.

• What's his body type? Is your guy a little chubby? A shirt that's too tight will not make him look thinner! Choose a loose-fitting shirt with skinny stripes or subtle patterns to flatter his physique and camouflage his "love handles."

If he's too thin, loose fitting shirts in solids or small overall patterns are his style.

Would he rather play football than watch it? The man who's in shape can wear any pattern in a body-hugging fitted shirt or, if he's more traditional, a fashionable but fuller cut style.

At least one of this year's host shades — mauve, sea foam and pale maize — is sure to flatter your man.

If he has an olive complexion, try greens and yellows. Is he dark complexioned? Go bright! He'll look particularly good in pinks, but stay away from the pale pastels which can look terrific on a fair fellow.

Unless he's dark or tan, stay away from yellow; it'll make him look like he needs a long vacation in the sun. Speaking of tans, unless you're absolutely sure he looks great in them, don't take a chance — on most men, this color is a real washout.

And, if you want to get him away from his traditional solids and pinstripes, you can update his fashion look by selecting one of the new fabric styles that have solid color backgrounds with either conservative or high fashion multi-color stripings, or satin highlights.

This year, instead of running all over town to find a gift he'll love, you can head straight for the menswear department of his favorite store.

With a little thought, next year there won't be any ghosts from this year's "Christmas present."

Poinsettia: Flower Of The Holy Night

The poinsettia has become the Christmas flower with its red and green beauty. In 1828, the poinsettia was discovered in Mexico by Dr. Joel Poinsett, the first U.S. ambassador to Mexico. A botanist in Philadelphia, Robert Buist, received cuttings and sent specimens on to the botanical gardens in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Poinsett may have introduced the flower to California when he visited John C. Fremont there. The Mexicans and people of Central America call the poinsettia "Flor de la Noche Buena" (Flower of the Holy Night) because it blooms fully at Christmas time.

Safe And Happy New Year's Eve

Weather is unpredictable on New Year's Eve, so, unless you plan to ask guests to spend the night, it would be well not to send your invitations too far afield.

Don't start your party too early, as it must be in full swing at midnight.

If you plan to serve a meal, make this clear on your invitation so guests do not arrive late and already stuffed.

For a buffet meal, plan food that is light and refreshing since Christmas has already brought the rich foods. Plan foods that are easy to handle, not sloppy food or thick meat slices that are difficult to cut.

Provide good, nonalcoholic drinks such as homemade punch with a touch of carbonated drink. Provide plenty of fun and good conversation and the alcoholic drinks won't even be missed.

Christmas Spirit For Children Too

Children can easily learn to think of sharing with others rather than always thinking of getting for themselves. Help them plan what gift they will get for whom. Small children get distracted when they go shopping with the masses of things from which to choose.

Looking through store flyers ahead of shopping helps children to pick out something they might like to get for daddy or brother or sister without a multitude of distractions.

Sugar Plums

And you'll know why visions of these danced in their heads after you taste them.

8 ounces dried apricots
8 ounces dried peaches
8 ounces dried apples
12 ounces prunes
8 ounces walnuts
¼ cup dark rum or to taste
granulated sugar

Grind fruits and nuts. Mix with hands to form into 1 inch balls, adding rum to moisten. Roll in sugar. Let candy absorb sugar for about an hour or so and then roll again. Repeat if necessary. Store in refrigerator.

Armstrong Resigns As DAC's Director Today

Faced with an ultimatum by state officials that they must remove director Evan Armstrong or lose their license to operate, members of the Falls Day Activity center board regretfully accepted the resignation submitted by Armstrong at a meeting conducted at noon today.

Armstrong had been charged with physical and verbal abuse of clients by three staff members at the center in affidavits signed October 15. The DAC board had been instructed by the state department of human services licensing division to remove the director from contact with clients and supervision of employees after conducting an investigation which substantiated abuse claims.

The board complied with the order but advised the state that it was not in agreement with the restrictions and would provide the state with a plan of action within a 30-day period for response provided by the state. At the end of the 30-day period, and following the board's own investigation, Armstrong was reinstated as director with full duties and responsibilities.

Upon being notified of the DAC board's decision, representatives of the state human services department and the developmentally disabled advocacy division of the state attorney general's office came to Thief River Falls. Meetings were held with parents and care providers of the center's clients and with county social services employees.

In a letter presented to the board today and addressed to DAC board chairman LeRoy Larson, Armstrong said he resigned immediately in the belief that "this action is in the best interests of all concerned."

"I would like the board of directors to know that I sincerely appreciate the support which I received from them over the recent weeks," the letter stated. "It was always my hope that a hearing on the allegations against me would be held prior to the state of Minnesota making a decision on the revocation or suspension of the Falls Day Activity Center's license. I always believed the right to such hearing was fundamental to our notions of fairness and due process.

"However, it is my understanding that the state of Minnesota intends on suspending the license without a hearing. This would jeopardize the funding of the Falls Day Activity center and the clients. I am simply not willing to risk this.

"I understand that the board of directors has not substantiated any of the allegations of abuse against me. I only wish that a hearing on the allegations could have been held prior to any action being taken by the state of Minnesota. I am confident that such a hearing would have erased concerns about the ability of the Falls Day Activity center to provide effective and safe programming for its clients."

In accepting the resignation, the board of the DAC issued a statement noting that "it is obvious to the board of directors that Mr. Armstrong has placed the interest of the Falls Day Activity center and the participants on a higher level than his own personal interests."

The board intends to continue the center's operation and is appointing Mrs. Gary (Valerie) Laidley as acting director. Mrs. Laidley has been serving as program director at the center since the dismissal of James Rooker from that position several weeks ago.

Informed by Pennington county attorney David Olin that the county board had reconsidered its earlier action to withhold funding and would be paying its contracted fees, the DAC board voted to reimburse employees for the 23 per cent reduction in salaries which had been imposed following the county boards initial action to withhold funds. Full payment will be continued as long as county funding is received.

The board also noted its intention to advertise for the position of director for the day activity center as soon as requirements for a director can be received from the state of Minnesota. DAC board attorney Larry McDowell said that neither the state licensing division of the human services department nor the attorney general's office could provide a set of requirements for the director position, each agency referring him to the other for information.

ODC Board Rejects Request To Merge With DAC Operation

Board of directors of the Occupational Development center (ODC) in Thief River Falls voted Tuesday not to seek a merger with the Falls Day Activity center (DAC) as had been requested by the Pennington county board of commissioners.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the DAC offices here, the board adopted a motion not to pursue a merger with the DAC and to convey that decision to the Pennington county board.

The DAC board has been involved for the past six weeks in allegations of abuse of clients by the center's director and resulting actions by the state department of human services, advocates from the developmentally disabled division of the Minnesota attorney general's office and the county board of commissioners.

At a meeting with the DAC board last Tuesday evening, the county board of commissioners presented the board with a request that it proceed to merge with the ODC.

"The State Department of Human Services's substantiation of abuse reports concerning the DAC director and the resultant potential loss of the Falls DAC's license by his continuing employment, leads the county board to the conclusion that to avoid loss of our DAC program in Pennington county, the board must attempt to find a different delivery of DAC services," the statement by the board said.

"Because of this, the Pennington county board requests the Falls DAC to proceed to merge with the ODC. Failure to proceed with this recommendation will leave the county board no alternative but to request proposals for new DAC providers."

At the county board's regular meeting yesterday, the decision was made to pay billing for services at the DAC for the month of September and through October 21, the date when the county board had voted to withhold funds from the center. The amount to be paid is approximately $6,500. The remaining portion of October funding is being withheld pending results of an audit of DAC records.

The board also directed the county social services department to begin

Novacek Charges Unfair Campaign Practice By Olin

John Novacek, Thief River Falls attorney who lost a close race to David Olin for Pennington county attorney in the November election, has petitioned the district court for appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate what he contends to be an unfair campaign practice by his opponent.

Novacek could not be reached this morning after the Times learned of the petition.

County attorney Olin said he has no objection to Novacek requesting appointment of a special prosecutor except that he believes it would be a waste of the taxpayers' money. He said the complaint stated in the petition is without merit.

At issue is apparently a campaign advertisement inserted in the Times, Monday, October 13, by Olin which stated that he had "Prosecuted successfully several hundred cases, losing only three." In the October 15 issue the ad was repeated and corrected to read, "Prosecuted successfully several hundred serious cases, losing only three." The word serious was underlined in the October 15 ad.

Olin said he received a letter from Novacek on Monday, October 20 and dated Friday, October 17, calling his attention to the claim. "Since I corrected the error and did so prior to being contacted by Mr. Novacek," Olin said, "I can see no basis for his claim."

SINGLE PARENT ADOPTION is somewhat unique in this area but has been a most fulfilling experience for Linda Olson, teacher at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls. Linda was 40 years old when she adopted 12-year-old Carol (left) who is now 16. They are shown with one of the scrapbooks which is crammed with clippings and photos that provide mostly pleasant memories of days gone by.

Adoption Fills Lives For Parent And Child

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Linda Olson felt she had always wanted to be a mother. Twelve-year-old Carol, a foster child at a farm home in Scandia, wanted adoptive parents so much she said she would go out and find her own. Now the two of them are living out their wishes in what has not always been the easiest of relationships but is building on love and trust and acceptance of responsibility.

And Linda, an elementary school teacher at Northrop school in Thief River Falls, says she has never had a second thought that adoption was the right thing for her and for Carol.

There are several circumstances which make the adoptive pairing of Linda and Carol somewhat unique. Not only is Linda single, she was 38 years old when she first began actively pursuing adoption and met Carol for the first time on her 40th birthday — November 27, 1982. And Carol came from an abusive home situation to her foster home at Scandia where she lived for four years.

Although there has been considerable talk about single parent adoption and a number of unmarried people have indicated they would want to rear children, Linda believes she is the only single person to have attained adoption through the Lutheran Social Service office at Moorhead. Her caseworker there is Joanne Bremer.

"I can remember that I had heard nothing from anyone for about a year after I had started the application process," Linda said. "So I called the caseworker with the feeling that I was being put off because I was single. She told me to come to Moorhead for an interview. I can recall sitting in a coffee shop before the interview, really believing that I could be a good parent and wondering how to make that belief known. At the end of the interview, Joanne encouraged me to pursue the adoption attempt."

Again time wore on and Linda grew impatient. She knew that there were more boys available for adoption than girls and had been planning and thinking and worrying about how she would relate to a boy and how she would handle hypothetical situations. In October of 1982 she was contacted and informed that there was a 12-year-old girl available for adoption. The first meeting was arranged for a Saturday, November 27.

"We met at Carol's foster home and Carol had baked a cake for the occasion," Linda said. "We went shopping in Forest Lake and I stayed overnight at the foster home. Carol and I discovered that we liked each other and her foster parents were and have been very supportive. They believed that Carol needed a parent all her own, rather than sharing parents with other children. It was

THE KELLY LUNDEEN FAMILY of rural Trail has been selected by the Goodridge Jaycee chapter as its entry in the Minnesota Jaycee outstanding young farmer program. The family includes (left to right), Nathan, 7; Allison, 13; Kyla, six months; Connie; Kelly; Adam, 11; and Brian, 9. Kelly, Connie and family lived on the Darrow Lundeen farm after starting their farming in partnership with Kelly's father and built their present home in 1976.

Kelly Lundeens Enter State OYF Competition

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"I have always wanted to farm since I was a boy and used my pedal tractor and a wagon to pile silage and pack it like I saw my dad doing," states Kelly Lundeen of rural Trail, candidate sponsored by the Goodridge Jaycee chapter for Minnesota's Outstanding Young Farmer.

"I enjoy being self-employed," the 31-year-old farmer continues. "Farming enables me to work and play with my family. My goal when I started farming was to make a good living to support my family and that is still my main objective. I like the farm environment and feel it is the best place to raise a family."

To say that Kelly and his wife, the former Connie Nelson of Oklee, are family oriented may be a bit of an understatement. They were high school classmates in Oklee and attended their last year of school in 1972 while married. In addition to their own four children, ages 13 through seven, they adopted a little Korean girl in August who is now six months old.

"That was mostly my idea," Connie admits. "I had to talk Kelly into it. Why adopt when we have four children of our own? I think it's because we started so young. We could see all of them being grown and gone while we are still relatively young." Now Kelly agrees that the adoption was one of the best ideas his wife ever had.

DAC Employees Ask And Answer Abuse Questions

To whom it may concern — and we hope this is a concern to everyone in Thief River Falls. We are the employees of the Falls Day Activity Center who reported the abuse by director Evan Armstrong.

There are many unanswered questions in this community regarding what has been happening at the DAC. We have questions of our own, and perhaps some answers. The reporting of abuse is never easy, in a field where people are at least presumably caring and nurturing it is that much harder. When it is your employer who you are reporting you magnify the difficulty 1,000-fold. Who do you report to? Parents, care providers, the county, the state, the DAC board? Why is this an issue? Isn't the important thing that the abuse was reported so that it can never happen again?

The cases of abuse were reported at the beginning of October. Some of these cases were substantiated by the state, meaning they found evidence that abuse had occurred. One case would have been sufficient, but there were a number involved. The board is now admitting they found two cases that they consider "problem areas." Are two cases any less abuse than 2?

As for the use of physical abuse against clients, no other staff members, to our knowledge, ever conducted themselves in this manner. Why did the director feel the need to? If Mary is hitting someone with a bat, you don't hit her, that teaches her violence is all right. You take the bat away.

It is now the last week of November, almost two months since the abuse was brought forward and substantiated. What has taken the DAC board so long to begin their investigation. We submitted our affidavits of abuse on October 28. We didn't have to, the board could have and should have investigated on their own before this. We decided to hand over our affidavits after continually hearing from board members they didn't have specific cases of abuse so they couldn't judge if it was abuse for themselves.

Holmstrom And Schroeder United In Marriage May 31

The May 31 wedding of Karen Dawn Holmstrom and John Calvin Schroeder was held at Our Saviour's Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Les Galland officiated at the double ring ceremony, with 150 guests in attendance.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Irene Holmstrom and the late Ray Holmstrom of Newfolden, and Ray and Marjorie Schroeder of Mountain Lake.

George French, friend of the couple, served as pianist, playing processional songs of "Ode to Joy" for the wedding party and "Trumpet Voluntary" for the bridal entrance. Recessional was "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride sang at her wedding, along with Jim Pederson, her brother-in-law, and friend of the family, Jan Galland. Selections were "Wedding Song," "He Has Chosen You For Me," "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was decorated with two floral arrangements of pink carnations and Rubrum lilies at the altar and on the piano, with the same flowers decorating the front pews. Other pews were decorated with dusty rose bows.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Steve Holmstrom. She wore a traditional gown of white taffeta trimmed in Venise lace and satin ribbon with a ball-gown princess bodice with lace medallion trim and melon sleeves. The ruffled skirt featured a double peplum, with each layer trimmed in wide satin ribbon. The skirt back was accented with satin candy box bows, and flowed to a semi-cathedral train.

To compliment her gown, the bride wore a floral wreath of white satin roses with white satin streamers flowing from the back. The fingertip veil was trimmed with matching satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of one dozen pink and red long-stemmed roses with babies' breath and flowing satin ribbon streamers. Her personal attendants were friends, Kim Schmitke and Jacklyn Palkie.

Serving as maid of honor was Sheila Bjornrud, Thief River Falls, friend of the bride. Other bridal attendants were Jane Dahl, Breckenridge, Lynelle Hartman, Dalton, and Jill Gratzek, Grand Forks, ND, all friends of the couple. Serving as junior bridesmaid was the bride's niece, Tricia Pederson, Newfolden.

All wore floor-length, dapbine rose-colored satin gowns with a princess bodice, sweetheart neckline, and puffed sleeves accented with satin roses. A natural waist was trimmed with a satin sash to form a bow in back. They wore pearl necklaces and earrings, their gifts from the bride. On their arms they carried three long-stemmed red roses and babies' breath with long, deep rose-colored streamers. The junior bridesmaid wore a wreath in her hair of rose ribbon and babies' breath.

Tiffany Bring, niece of the bride, Newfolden, was the flower girl, wearing a gown identical to those of the other bridal attendants. She wore a white rose floral wreath in her hair, with matching ribbon streamers, and scattered red and pink rose petals as she ascended the aisle.

Robby Molksness, nephew of the bride, St. Hilaire, served as ring bearer. He wore a tuxedo matching those of the attendants of the groom.

The groom was attired in grey tails with matching cummerbund and tie. His boutonniere was composed of one red and one pink rose, with greenery and babies' breath.

Curt Fast, friend of the couple from Mountain Lake, served as the best man. Other groomsmen were Tim Schroeder, brother of the groom, Mountain Lake; Craig Jones, Remer, and Dean Sawatzky, Mountain Lake, both friends of the groom. Junior groomsman was Jason Bring, Newfolden, nephew of the bride.

Ushers were Jay Gratzek, Grand Forks, ND, Tom Quiring of Mountain Lake and Mike Tressler, Fargo, ND, all friends of the couple. Gentlemen of the wedding party wore grey tuxedos by Pierre Cardin, with white shirts and grey satin cummerbunds and ties. Each wore a red rose boutonniere.

The mother of the bride wore a dark pink, sheer, long-sleeved gown with accordion pleated skirt, with pearl earrings and necklace. The groom's mother wore dusty rose with round lace collar. They were presented with corsages of roses and pink mini carnations.

Guests of honor were Kate Schroeder, grandmother of the groom, and Clifford and Ruth Johnson, godparents of the bride.

A wedding reception was held following the ceremony, hosted by Gary and Janet Hook, sister of the bride, and Doug and Leann Yoder, sister of the groom.

Highlighting the serving table was the three-tiered wedding cake, topped by silk flowers and a Christogram. On the bottom layer were a bride and groom beside a church. Double bridal stairs with miniatures of the bridal party led to adjoining heart-shaped side cakes with names of the bride and groom. There were also two Norwegian wedding cakes.

Erma Hanson and Genevieve Jarshaw cut and served the wedding cake, with Sharon Holmstrom and Susan Pederson serving the Norwegian wedding cake. Pouring were Pearl Boe and Violet Holmstrom, aunts of the bride. Christina Yoder, niece of the groom, distributed favors.

Barb and Tom Molskness, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, served punch to the guests; Susan Pede, Minneapolis, friend of the couple, was in charge of the guest book; and Linda Schroeder, Mountain Lake, sister of the groom, arranged the gifts and Tim Hook and Jeremy Bring, nephews of the birde, carried the gifts. Waitresses were Tonya Brodersen, Jackie Weleski and Karla Espe.

A groom's supper was held the evening of the rehearsal at the Best Western inn for 25 guests, given by the parents of the groom. Wesley and Sharon Bring, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, and Dave and Etta Schroeder, aunt and uncle of the groom, served as host couples.

Out-of-town guests were from St. Paul, Mountain Lake, Breckenridge, Maplewood, Duluth and Cloquet, as well as Fargo, Grand Forks and Minto, ND, and Tulsa, OK.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, the couple is at home at 1924 5th Ave. N., Grand Forks, ND, where the groom is employed at Kinney Shoes and the bride at Dayton Hudson department store. The bride is a graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Association Free Lutheran Bible school and the University of Minnesota, Crookston. The groom is a graduate of Mountain Lake high school and the University of Minnesota, Crookston.

Last Meeting Of Year For Mocassin Club

Members of the Moccasin garden club met for a noon luncheon at the Lantern recently for their November meeting. The morning was spent at the Holiday Fair where several members purchased items. These were displayed at the luncheon. New member, Arlene Thune, was introduced by president Joan Nelson.

Plans for 1987 were discussed and committees were appointed for yearbooks and special events. As this was the last meeting of the year, it was noted that a variety of program topics and useful information had been shared during the year. Several members had participated in the 13th district workshops and the Horticultural Show.

This year's show award from the club was given in memory of Thelma McGuire, who had been a judge at many shows. Memorial awards in memory of local people the last two years were for Joel Rosengren by Inga Geving; for Mrs. Rosengren and Ann Gunderson by the Sow and Hoe club; and for Myrtle and Axel Engelstad, Martin and Malvina Gulbranson and Marion Green given by Mrs. Geving. Awards were also given in memory of Sophie and Alvin Burstad by the Moccasin club and friends.

It was also noted that, since funds are not solicited from the public for the 13th district society show awards, giving memorials is one of the ways the clubs can help.

Members present were Joan Nelson, Connie Manke, Alice Lendobeja, Rhodella Tieman, Eva Lendobeja, Valerie Torstveit, Pat Swanson, Agnes Geske, Kathy Alberg, Delores and Tom Mickelson, Christina Anenson, Agnes Tieman, Arlene Thune and Olga Nelson.

Legal Aid Group Urges Applying For Food Stamps

According to good estimate, a large number of Minnesotans — particularly in rural areas — do not apply for food stamps even though they are potentially eligible. If you have a low income and your household is short of money for food, you should apply, according to the Legal Aid society of Minneapolis. You might qualify even if you are not eligible for any other program.

Those who farm, or are otherwise self-employed, might qualify even if denied eligibility before. Recent changes in the law may have made them eligible.

For example, under new regulations, you can deduct loss in self-employment income from non-self-employed income; and if you have a "significant change" in farm income, it can be calculated based on the current monthly average rather than last year's annualized income.

Another new law makes it easier for eligible households without food or money to get emergency food stamps. If the eligible household has less than $100 in cash and $150 in current monthly income and has not received stamps within the month, you can receive food stamps on the day you apply. If you need it, specifically ask for expedited service when you apply, and be sure to apply as early in the day as possible to avoid problems.

To qualify for food stamps, a household must meet both resource and income guidelines. However some resources are not counted, and several deductions are allowed from income. If your household is denied expedited service or food stamps and you think you qualify, or you disagree with the amount of stamps you receive, you can appeal the decision in writing within 90 days. For information about application, call your county human services office.

MADD Sets Vigil In Remembrance Of Crash Victims

The statistics are grim: Almost every day one Minnesotan dies in an alcohol-related car crash and 20 more are injured.

On December 7 Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) will hold a "Candlelight Vigil of Remembrance and Hope" at 7 p.m. in the State Capitol rotunda. The public is encouraged to attend this event during which the names of drunk driving crash victims are read and candles in their memory are lighted.

The vigil begins a "Week of Remembrance and Hope", remembering victims and hoping for a less violent future for everyone. MADD invites motorists to show support December 7-13 by driving with car headlights on during the day, tying a yellow ribbon to the car antenna and by leaving a porch or house light on nightly.

Madd also suggests that people work with their schools, hospitals, civic organizations, churches, MADD and SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) chapters to observe the Week of Remembrance and Hope.

Persons who know anyone who has been injured or killed in a drunk driving crash are invited to attend the vigil in remembrance of that person, or they can call MADD and that person's name will be added to the list read at the vigil.

For more information, call the MADD office at (612) 938-0956.

ARC Available To Give Presentations On Health Care

Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) Minnesota is available to give presentations to health car providers about the special needs of patients with mental retardation and their families.

Because health care providers often give the diagnosis of mental retardation, they have the opportunity to help families deal constructively with their feelings and to steer them to appropriate services.

ARC speakers can cover topics including the following: case management of the child with disabilities; role of the family physician in the care and treatment of persons with mental retardation and their families; communication gaps between parents and professionals; stress in the family of a person with mental retardation; community resources and support systems for the family; and how health care providers can communicate with and assist adult patients with mental retardation.

For information on these and other health care related topics, contact the ARC Minnesota, 3225 Lyndale Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55408 or telephone (612) 827-5641 or 1-800-582-5256 toll free in Minnesota.

Included in the purchase of Jaws of Life equipment will be five high pressure air bags. The combined might of the bags can lift 124 tons. Minnesota DHS Requests Gifts For State Units

Minnesota department of human services (DHS) requests the donation of holiday gifts for about 4,250 Minnesotans who reside in the eight state-operated regional treatment centers and two nursing homes around the state.

Appropriate gifts for mentally disabled adults include toiletries, clothing, board games, craft kits and coffee mugs. Other gifts which are especially needed this year include calendars, men's grooming supplies, electric shavers and gloves or mittens.

Gifts should be new and should not be wrapped to allow volunteers sorting the gifts to determine for whom they are most appropriate. Wrapping paper, bows and ribbons are also welcome.

Donations for the purchase of gifts will also be accepted. Checks should be made payable to the Minnesota Department of Human Services Christmas Fund. Last year over $100,000 in goods and dollars were contributed statewide.

Land In Grygla Area Shaped Up By Summer Work

"The weather cooperated with our farmers this year" says Ralph Rundell of Grygla, soil conservation technician with the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD.

"The very wet fall of 1985 left many of the fields in horrible shape. The dry weather this year really helped the farmers to get their fields back into shape. Most of the ruts and wet areas filled up nicely and should be in good shape for next year. Now if we can have a good crop next year, maybe some of our farmers can get back on their feet.

"The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) has given some of our landowners a chance to set aside some of the erosive fields for 10 years," he added. "The annual payments will help with cash flow and help them to stay on the farm. There are many acres of CRP lands in the Northwest counties of Minnesota."

"The State Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) reserve program that complements the CRP program. RIM should help farmers retire marginal lands plus improve these areas for wildlife.

"We have many things to be thankful for," continues Rundell. "We live in the United States and have many freedoms that other countries do not permit. I am really thankful to live where I do and work with rural people. They are the best in the world!"

Ninth District American Legion Band Ends Season

Ninth District American Legion band has completed 58 years of continuous service to Minnesota's American Legionnaires. During this time, the band has attended national conventions at Los Angeles, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Honolulu, Bosston, Seattle, Minneapolis and Cincinnati, according to Herschel Lysaker, business manager.

To support the band, the 67 American Legion posts in the Ninth district make financial contributions. This year, in addition, the band held its own fund raiser to attend the national convention in Cincinnati. The Bandmen are grateful and want to thank the 160 American Legion Posts who cooperated in this promotion.

Bandsmen come from as far south as Fergus Falls and as far north as Lake of the Woods to attend practice under the direction of William Pond, a member of the East Grand Forks post. They cover 2,200 miles to attend. They enjoy entertaining Legionnaires by playing a variety of pop tunes, marches, Dixie and old-time music. "This band loves to play — particularly at conventions!" Lysaker said.

"The highlight this year, of course, was attending the national convention in Cincinnati. There, we were honored by being asked to play a concert at the national auxiliary president's reception in the Omni Netherlands hotel.

The band's final performance this year was at the fall conference held in East Grand Forks. We are already looking forward to our next year's activities.

Scouts Help Out At Old Mill State Park

Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts from several troops in Thief River Falls visited Old Mill state park last Saturday to help out a good friend. Leonard Anderson, park manager, having lost part of his right leg recently in a hunting accident, was caught unprepared for winter at the park, so many of the scouts that have visited the park decided to help him out.

Anderson said he was really grateful for their help. The Scouts from troops 199 at St. John, 57 at St. Bernard's and 59 at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls were among the enthusiastic group of helpers. Anderson said, they had their work cut out for them. Among the chores they assisted with were clearing brush from a trail, hauling firewood, stacking picnic tables, banking the park building and a little work on a new skating rink.

All of the Scout leaders at the out*ing agreed that their participation* came about without much planning and because they heard their friend needed some help. The warming house fire kept Scouts warm and gave them a place to plan duties and turn the day into an outing with hot chocolate and chili. The leaders said they had made trips to Old Mill state park before, when Anderson had been able to provide them a place for their activities, and been able to enjoy themselves. They were only too happy to help him out.

Those participating in the outing included:

Boy Scout and Cub Scout troop 59 of Zion Lutheran church with Jim Giles, Scoutmaster; and Dick Sculthorp, assistant Scoutmaster; Chris Kreuter, Webelos leader; Teri Maddy, Webelos leader and the following Scouts: Jack Sculthorp, John Giles, Justin Lee, Ryan Maddy, Scott Tunheim and Joel Kreuter.

Boy Scout and Cub Scouts of troop 57 at St. Bernard's church in Thief River Falls with Jerome Cota, Scoutmaster; Tony Brennan, assistant Scoutmaster, Bill Fogarty, Cubmaster and the following Scouts: Shawn Woods, David Walseth, Jason Lambert, Jack Hoefer, Jeff Cota, Brian Fogarty and Ben Foust.

Boy Scout troop 199 of St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls with Jim Fisher, Scoutmaster and the following Scouts: Craig Lia, Trevor Swanson, Mike Fisher, Pat Fisher, Cory Gustafson, Jamie Kruta, Mike Wilson, Robert Nelson and Tony McEnelly.

Additional helpers included Marie and Billy Lubitz and LuAnn Giles, committee chairperson for troop 59.

In light of all work completed, Anderson said the park will be in good condition for winter use. The park is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day.

Targeted Job Tax Credit Offered By Job Service

A popular employer tax benefit, known as the "Targeted Jobs Tax Credit," has been revived and once again is available to employers through Job Service offices, the Minnesota department of jobs and training announced today.

TJTC, as the federal program is called, provides employers with an annual tax credit of up to $2,400 for each newly hired full-time worker and up to $2,550 for each summer worker.

Job Service — the state employment service — determines whether or not employers can claim the credit for a job candidate. If employers wish to list job openings with Job service, they may ask for candidates who qualify for the business credit.

"The credit can be taken right off the employer's taxes," said Don Buckner, statewide director of Job service. "We're talking about a bottom-line tax credit, not a deduction."

An estimated 4,000 Minnesota employers are expected to apply for the credit in 1987. Buckner estimates that 3,000 Minnesota employers used the credit in 1985, which was the last year the credit was offered.

An employer who hires workers from groups having a particularly high unemployment rate or other special employment needs can take the credit.

The tax credit program, which had expired Dec. 31, 1985, was given new life by passage of the federal tax reform act of 1986, signed by President Reagan on Oct. 22. The new law extends the program retroactively from Jan. 1, 1986 through Dec. 31, 1988.

"TJTC has been one of the most effective incentives in encouraging employers to hire and train these workers," Buckner said. "In 1986, we estimate that more than 13,000 workers were hired under TJTC, for an estimated total tax credit of $58.5 million.

Employers may now receive a federal tax credit of 40 per cent of the first $6,000 of qualified first-year wages paid to each targeted worker. A second-year credit has been eliminated from the program.

The credit for targeted summer youth employers is 85 per cent of up to $3,000 in wages. Workers hired under TJTC must be employed for at least 90 days or 120 hours (14 days or 20 hours for summer youth employees) before employers qualify for the credits.

Job Service offices provide employers with certification forms in order to receive the tax credits. Buckner said employers must request in writing certifications from Job Service on or before the day the targeted individuals begin work.

Job Service has been accepting "letters of intent" from employers who have hired targeted workers in 1986 but prior to reenactment of the program. Buckner said these employers may be certified for TJTC retroactively. Employers who have not submitted timely written requests after Dec. 31, 1985 cannot be certified.

Additional information on the TJTC program may be obtained from any local Job Service office in 60 locations statewide.

Selective Service Sees Boost In Registrations

More than 22,000 men who either applied for or received federal PELL grants — student financial assistance — have recently registered with selective service. They had been identified by a new computer matching program as possible lawbreakers, but their registrations have brought them into compliance with federal law.

Although each man was required by law to register within 30 days of his 18th birthday, government records indicated none had done so. Their identities were discoved by selective service through a computer match of department of education PELL grant applicant and recipient lists and selective service registrant files. Male students whose names didn't match a record in the selective service registration database recieved letters informing them they were suspected nonregistrants, and that they would be ineligible for federal financial assistance unless they registered, or could submit proof of previously registering, or being exempt from the requirement.

"This has produced many new registrations," notes Lew Brodsky, director of public affairs at selective service. "The response continues, but as of October 27 we have 22,329 new registrations attributable to this effort."

According to selective service acting director Will Ebel, men born after December 31, 1959 who have reached the age of 18 but are not yet age 26 must be registered. There are few exceptions. Ebel reports that 97 per cent are complying with the law.

Failure to register is a felony. Besides being ineligible for student grants and loans, nonregistrants forfeit eleigibilty for appointment to federal employment and job training programs. They also risk criminal prosecution and, if convicted, face a fine of up to $250,000 or a jail term of up to five years.

"With the increasing federal and state legislation supporting registrration, and new computer checks and processing, the comparatively few men failing to register now are risking greater personal consequences and have a greater likelihood of being caught," Ebel said.

WORK AND PLAY. Boy Scouts who recently visited Old Mill state park to help out Leonard Anderson who lost part of his leg in a hunting accident earlier this year, took time off for a little play. Anderson is the park manager and because of his accident his friends, the many Boy Scout troops in this area, decided to help him out. Seaman Okland Completes Navy Basic Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Christopher G. Okland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Okland of rural Thief River Falls, has completed recruit training at the recruit training command in Great Lakes, IL.

During Okland's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the navy's 85 basic fields.

Okland's studies included seamanship, close order drill, naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A 1986 graduate of Lincoln high school, he joined the navy in July of 1986.

North Central Ass'n. Reviews Local Programs

Accreditation team from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools spent several days in Thief River Falls this week in a validation of self-study by the school district in six different education areas. At a meeting Monday evening, team chairman William Woody of Crookston awarded a certificate to the school district for 75 years of continuous membership in the association.

Self-study teams and individuals for the Thief River Falls programs which were being evaluated include the following with the first person listed being the committee chairman:

Social Studies — Ed Krystosek, Darwin Boutiette, Charlie Cornell, Cal Lindberg and Cecelia Stoltman;

School-Community Relations — Whitey Olson, Tippi Benson, Jane Mackenroth, Jerry Wigness and Bill Stock;

Gas Prices Down 37 Cents From Figures in 1985

Gas prices are down an average of 3.5 cents a gallon in Minnesota since AAA's Labor day fuel survey. Compared to the last Thanksgiving holiday, consumers will find 1986 pump prices a bargain, as gas prices averaged 37 cents a gallon more in November 1985.

"Despite increases at the wholesale price level, retail prices have declined slightly since Labor Day," said Karen Kloser, AAA spokesperson. "Competition among retailers and less consumer demand have kept pump prices down. If OPEC does agree on raising the price per barrel, wholesale and retail prices are expected to rise. If not, retail prices will remain stable and may even decline."

Of the 107 stations reporting throughout Minnesota, approximately one-half will have holiday station hours. However, drivers are advised to fill up before Thursday.

Because Thanksgiving is the longest holiday weekend of the year, more crash-related injuries and fatalities occur than any other holiday. Driver inattention or distraction are major causes of accidents on Minnesota roadways. AAA reminds Minnesotans to buckle up and stay alert! Minnesota's first winter storms often happen when neither cars nor drivers are prepared.

Average full-service prices in Minnesota are: regular, $1.049; unleaded, $1.087; and premium, $1.206. Average self-service prices are: regular, $.816; unleaded, $.852; and premium, $.966.

Farm Exchange Program Offered By 'U' M Extension

Each year, Minnesota farm families and businesses join the MAST program in March or June to host an international trainee for 4-8 months and reap the benefits of a cross cultural exchange.

Hosts will train and share ideas with young international farmers, obtain reliable, qualified and motivated, help in their operations, add a cross cultural dimension to family and working life, increase international understanding and develop lifelong friendships.

Trainees who participate in the program will either return to their family farms or go into agricultural related fields when they complete their stay in the U.S.

Trainees are motivated to learn and share ideas; qualified with over two years of parctical experience; educated through agricultural-horticultural school; aged 20-28 and single; speak at least basic English and are from European countries, Australia and New Zealand.

Hosts will provide their trainee with safe training-working environment, intercultural experiences, living allowance and work insurance and room and board (other options available).

A smilar program offers the same experience for young American interested in going abroad.

Host applications are now being accepted for March and June 1987 placements. For complete information and application materials contact Charlie Walkinshaw, MAST Internatioanl, Minnesota Extension Service, 405, Coffey Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108 or call toll free: 1-800-367-5263.

Local Songwriter Places High In Nationwide Contest

Scott Torgerson, local songwriter from Grygla, recently cut his first album. One of the songs on the album placed first in a contest sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken. The song then became part of a nation-wide contest.

It was recently announced on the Ralph Emery show, a Nashville show, that Torgerson's song was among the top ten selected from around 45,000 entries. From the top ten Sylvia, who appeared at the Pennington county fair last summer, chose two for an album she is writing. Torgerson's song, however, was not chosen.

Torgerson was recently featured in a Times' article on his success as a songwriter. Torgerson is a member of the Barroom Buddies.

City To See Melbye Case Continue On

City Attorney Robert Wurst informed Thief River Falls city council members that a judge has ruled that the continuing saga involving the Allen Melbye case shall continue. But city council members decided that they would rather appeal the ruling instead of entering into arbitration. The case will be appealed to the Minnesota court of appeals. No reason for the decision was given by the judge.

Thief River Falls will see a new fishing bridge near the Indian village park sometime next spring or summer. The city council passed a resolution entering into an agreement with the Minnesota department of natural resources whereby the DNR will pay an estimated $20,000 for the 8-foot pier along the bank and extending 20 feet into the river. The city's share of the cost will include maintenance and about $2,000. Dick Kimball, DNR, said the portable pier will be handicapped accessible and will be a good site for sportsman who fish from the bank. Indications from many of the department's other piers indicate frequent use by the public.

The city council also agreed to enter into a 50-50 arrangement with Pennington county commissioners to purchase and maintain a new computerized record system at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls. Sheriff-elect Bob Wold and Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said the system will reduce man hours, give quick access to a large data base, give officers more time to work in the field and assist the law enforcement center in complying with requests for specific information by the public.

The total cost of the project was estimated at $22,000. Current dispatcher-jailers will work with the computer, but a part-time person may be needed to get the computer up and running. The new system could be installed by the end of this month.

In other business the city council: approved a variance on sidewall requirements for Arthur J. and Juneal D. Anderson, 702 Kendall avenue south; a variance to yard requirement in the C-3 central business district to Keith Demarais, Culligan Water Conditioning, 219 East Third street; called for bids on an ice resurfacer for the city's new sports arena; appointed Milan Borshiem to fill the position of vice Mayor and chairman of the council vacated by the resignation of Clayton Restad; and paid regular and special bills.

Kelly Lundeens Enter Jaycees' OYF Competition

Young Farmer competition will be conducted December 5 and 6 in Albert Lea. Kelly and Connie were selected by the Goodridge Jaycee chapter to be that group's representative in the contest. They have spent considerable time filling out entry forms and taking photos for a slide presentation of their farming operation.

"I talked him into going along with this thing, too," Connie smiled. "I thought it would be nice to have a couple day trip."

Just as the Lundeens began their marriage at a young age, they began their farming operation while young as well. They lived in a mobile home on the parental Darrow Lundeen farm until building their present home in 1978 two miles south of the River Valley bridge and one-half mile east. Kelly rented 40 acres of land from a neighbor while in high school and used his father's equipment to farm it.

A partnership was formed and an agreement made that as further equipment was purchased it would be on a one-third share. The following year he purchased a third interest in his family's dairy herd of 10 cows and now retains that one-third interest with his father and brother Gary, although the herd has grown to 40-45 head milking. He also purchased land to equal one-third of his father's ownership.

Kelly and his father operate 2,400 acres of land, 2,300 of which are tillable and 100 used for pasture or non-tillable. Kelly owns 295 acres of his own and they farm 1,400 rented acres in partnership.

Some of the land the Lundeens operate is adjacent to the Red Lake river which floods easily in heavy rains. Some of this land has now been put in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) for a 10-year period which will eliminate the worry about flooded crops. To gain price advantage of grain delivery to Duluth and avoid truckers' dislike for on-farm loading, they have purchased a semi-trailer truck and "pup" to haul grain to market and from the field during harvest.

"It is important to learn what each person does best and let him do it," Kelly says of the challenge to maintaining good family and business relationships with his brother and father. "My dad is an excellent welder and mechanic. Gary manages the dairy herd now and hauls most of the bales. I usually do all the seed and fertilizer planning and ordering, including deciding what crops are planted on which fields and which chemicals will best control the weeds."

Maps are kept of all the farm acreages along with five-year crop history records. Dairy herd production records are kept through the Dairy Herd Improvement association and breeding records are maintained in a book in the barn. During 1986 the herd of grade Holsteins had a top monthly production average of 17,800 pounds of milk and 640 pounds of butterfat. Top animal in the herd produced 27,480 pounds of milk and 952 pounds of butterfat with 3.5 per cent test in a 305-day lactation.

All the income and expense records for the farm are kept on the computer and presented to each partner for income tax filing and estimating yearly income. The computer is also used to keep records of which crops are most profitable and it is expected that dairy production records for feeding and culling will also be transferred to the computer soon.

In addition to experimentation with crop varieties in small grains, the Lundeens have also taken on experimentation in other crops. They were involved in wild rice production for a short time and now are trying to raise blueberries. They have also tried raising pumpkins commercially.

Varied soil conditions make field work difficult. Peat and sandy soils dry faster than heavier soils and require more shallow cultivation. Frequently all three soils are found in the same fields. Soil testing is done every three years to determine efficient fertilizer application.

Since drainage is particularly important, approximately 20 miles of field drainage ditches have been installed to drain into the county ditch system. Cleaning is required nearly every year. Three small patches of woods are left for wildlife and next year wildlife food plots of corn and sunflowers will be planted near two of these areas.

Kelly serves as vice president of the Pennington county chapter of the National Farmers organization where he has been a member for 13 years. He is also secretary-treasurer and a Sunday school teacher at Oak Park Lutheran church and for four years has been a rainfall monitor for the Soil and Water Conservation district. He and Connie are members of the OURS adoption support group and the Oak Park social club — a young couples group.

Connie has been a Hospice volunteer for three years and for the past year and one-half has been a volunteer working with Amy Killian of Plummer, a brain-damaged child undergoing an extensive therapy pro*gram. She has been secretary-*treasurer and president of the ladies aid where she has been a member 14 years and also teaches Sunday school and vacation Bible school.

"I consider my most important contribution to be service to my church," Kelly states on the entry form for OYF competition. "I believe it is vital to have and to get strength from our Creator and I feel it is necessary to pass that on to my children.

"The second most important contribution is what I can offer to my neighbors. I feel that neighbors can and should work together and help each other whenever they can."

ODC Board Rejects Requested Merger With Falls DAC

preparing a request for proposals for provision of services to the developmentally disabled for 1987.

Mary Kay Klein, a Bemidji attorney who is serving her second year as president of the ODC board, said that the motion approved Tuesday was simply that the ODC not consider merger with the DAC. She said the motion was not contingent on a change of circumstances at the DAC.

Klein also said she preferred not to comment on the question of whether the ODC board had discussed possibilities of providing service if the DAC board should lose its license to operate. "Our number one concern has been, is and always will be the clients that it serves," she said of the ODC operation.

Following the county board's request for merger last week, the ODC executive board had authorized director Peter Lavallier to investigate the possibilities of such a merger. The full board's action Tuesday effectively negates that investigation.

Adoption Fills Lives For Both Parent And Child

with her best interest at heart that they agreed she should be adopted by someone else."

The following weekend Linda met Carol and Washington County caseworker Kristi Koppen in Alexandria. "It was at McDonald's," Carol remembers with a smile. She came to Thief River Falls for the weekend to see Linda's home and to spend more time with her. They visited another weekend and Linda had decided she wanted to proceed with the adoption. Carol announced that she didn't want to leave her foster home as the realization came that this was to be real.

"That's Carol's way," Linda said and Carol nodded in agreement. "She starts by saying no and then works things out from there. She had my picture and had been telling her friends in school at Chisago Lakes that 'this is going to be my Mom,' so we knew she was thinking positively about coming here." It was Dec. 10, 1982, when Carol came home with Linda to begin her life here.

A year later, when the adoption became final, Linda, Carol and a few friends had a celebration. They knew that the relationship was going to be a lasting one and many of the bumps in the first mile of road together had been smoothed. Carol has received letters from her teachers and friends as well as her foster parents and she has been back to visit her teachers and others.

"The adoption agency encourages adopting parents not to cut off relations with foster parents," Linda said. "They are like an aunt and uncle would be to Carol now. I know that her foster mother had spent a lot of time with her, calming her fears and dealing with her emotions. There was a lot of love and concern and understanding that went into that relationship.

"When you adopt a child, and especially an older child, you have to come to terms with that child's life before you entered it," she added. "As much as you would like to believe it will never happen, you have feelings of resentment for what has happened and for attachments made before you came on the scene. You have to make up your mind to let the support of others be a support to you."

At one time Linda thought it would be good for Carol to have another family member in the home and considered making application for another adoption. That idea has since been dropped. "Carol's security is important to her," Linda said, "and it seems best that it be just the two of us now."

In her four years as Linda's daughter, Carol has made great strides in self-confidence and responsibility. She immediately joined the Smiley 4-H club and has carried several projects, including a rabbit project for the past two years. She enjoys ice skating and has been taking figure skating lessons from Denise Highness, a local skating pro, this year. She has worked in a summer work program under Ken Fletcher during the summer for the school district and now works every other Saturday as a volunteer at Oakland Park nursing home.

"I had put in quite a few years working with children as a teacher," Linda says of the parenting experience, "but I soon found out that being a parent is an entirely different role. I had to make decisions on where I stood on things and I had to decide on rules of the house. And through that first year I automatically kept thinking that Carol would leave at the end of the school year like all the other children I have known."

Linda finds welcome support in the local OURS chapter, a support group of adoptive parents. And she is not alone in her family either — three members of her family have adopted or are adopting children.

"Adoption is not a foster home," Linda emphasized, "it is intended to be a lifelong commitment." And the joys and fulfillment of parenting make it a worthwhile challenge to accept.

"Natrual parents may have some advantages," she said, "but birth parents take what they get. Only through adoption do you get to choose your child, like I chose Carol. That makes adoptive children extra special."

DAC Employees Ask And Answer Abuse Questions

After we gave them the specific cases in our affidavits the board claimed they didn't know which of these cases had been substantiated by the state. In hind-sight it is clear that the board was going to do what they wanted regardless of any information we submitted to them.

While we are on the subject of investigations, what type of investigation did the board conduct that is more thorough than the DHS did when the three who reported abuse were not questioned. The issue is the abuse, not how many former staff members witnessed it, as the board seems to believe. However, we have been made aware of former staff members who have witnessed abuse. Obviously they weren't included in the board's expansive investigation.

The DAC board has commented that we wouldn't discuss our affidavits with them. In mid-October Louise Fisher, a board member, was contacted in an effort to set up a meeting with the board to discuss the abuse. The next day Paul Johnson, a board member, said the board was too busy to talk with us for two weeks.

We question the board's intent that they are looking out for what is best for the DAC clients when they reinstate a director who, according to us, and state and county officials, has abused clients.

We also must take issue with actions of board members and various staff members. One in particular involved the "voluntary" use of clients in a show of support for Evan Armstrong at a parents' meeting. It makes one wonder what these same clients were doing in Sherrie Thompson's office the day before. According to these same clients they were being interrogated as to whether we had ever yelled at them or abused them. They also stated they were told by Mrs. Thompson that Lynae and Doreen were going to be fired. Now is any of that, coupled with the confusion that is already going on, for the best interest of the clients.

The question that often crops up is why this abuse was not reported earlier if it has been happening for at least two years. Vulnerable adult policies were never discussed, as we are told is mandatory, to inform staff what constitutes abuse. Regarding this, it has been said that the program coordinator was responsible for such training. It would have been nice if the director or DAC board had informed the program coordinator that these were his duties. It seems a convenient excuse to blame the program coordinator for things that the director should have done or made sure got done.

This also brings up the interesting question, if the program coordinator was responsible for all of the things the director never did, what was the assistant director, Sherrie Thompson, responsible for? As far as vulnerable adult training, Sherrie was the only one who had any (May 1983). Isn't she more educated in what constitutes abuse? Why didn't she report it? The answer is simple, you wouldn't expect a daughter to turn in her father for abuse.

Imagine how the clinets that were abused must feel, seeing the man they were assured would not be back, return with the blessing of the DAC board. I'm sure they feel much the same way we do. It's much easier to look the other way and apparently more beneficial for everyone, every one but the DAC participants.

Rail Reconstruction Celebration Held In Greenbush Tues.

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Private enterprise and governmental entities celebrated an example of cooperation at Greenbush Tuesday. The first loan payment of $90,000 for the Northwestern Minnesota rail shippers corporation was presented by Burlington Northern railroad for reconstruction of the 92-mile Burlington Northern branch line between St. Hilaire and Warroad.

Rail shippers, bank presidents, railroad officials and other citizens gathered for the railroad reconstruction celebration in Greenbush. It is an important event to the continued survival of all who live near or because of the railroad, said Buzz Marvin of Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (Marvin was instrumental in organizing shippers to reach an agreement.)

Cliff Tye, Burlington Northern railroad division superintendent, arrived on a special train with the first loan payment. It signaled completion of a long range goal. Others involved in the effort included Bob Palmer, Farm Credit Services of Grand Forks president; Cecil Selness of the Minnesota department of transportation; Buzz Marvin and many shippers.

Tuesday was the culmination of a lot of effort on the part of many, but it began three years ago. Over the years the track had deteriorated, hampering rail service to shippers and contributing to derailments in the spring. Concerned about the conditions, eight shippers along the line formed the Shippers corporation and began an economic agreement. (Over the years an estimated five million bushels of grain a year went down this line to market.) The shippers then reached an agreement with the Burlington Northern, the Minnesota department of transportation and Farm Credit Services for a loan.

Total cost of the project is $6.4 million. The Minnesota department of transportation has provided a $4.5 million low interest loan. Burlington Northern provided $1.3 million and the shippers, financed by the Bank for Cooperatives of Farm Credit Services, provided $644,000.

After the outdoor ceremony the group of about 60 people indoors the South Branch Supper club. Main speakers giving short presentations included Mayor Hector Reese, of Greenbush; State Representative Jim Tunheim; Bob Palmer, FCS president; Cecil Selness of the Minnesota department of transportation; Cliff Tye, Burlington Northern superintendent; and Buzz Marvin of Marvin Lumber and Cedar company.

TRF, Plummer Girls Win Basketball Openers Tuesday

Plummer defeated Middle River 50-31 and Thief River Falls edged Marshall County Central 43-40 Tuesday as area girls opened their 1986-87 high school basketball schedules.

Other area openers will be staged next week as Goodridge visits Oklee Monday and Grygla hosts Tri-County Thursday.

MCC 40

It was close from start to finish as Thief River Falls slipped past Marshall County Central 43-40 in a game played at Newfolden.

Thief River Falls had a 12-11 first quarter edge, it was tied 21-21 at halftime and Marshall County Central went ahead 30-29 at the end of the third quarter.

Laura Bello, a 6-0 senior center, led Thief River Falls with 18 points, while Kelly Cornell, a 5-8 junior guard, scored 11. Marshall County Central received 15 points from Jodi Foss, a 5-6 senior guard, and 13 points from Kelli Anderson, a 5-9 sophomore center.

"Overall, I felt we played real well," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, whose team played without injured starter ASndrea Kragness. "We missed Andrea, but I thought the girls did a nice job."

The Nordics hurt themselves with poor shooting, both from the field and at the free throw line. Marshall County Central shot only 29 per cent from the field (16-for-55) and 42 per cent at the line (8-for-19).

"I was disappointed in shooting 29 per cent from the field, and we probably lost the game at the free throw line," noted Mjelde. "We need to shoot 70 per cent from the line to win. We're a better free throw shooting team than that."

Thief River Falls shot 33 per cent from the field (20-for-60) and 33 per cent at the line (3-for-9) as the Prowlers had trouble cashing in on free throw opportunities, too.

The smaller Nordics had a 30-23 rebound advantage, according to Marshall County Central charts, including a 13-4 edge on the offensive boards. Mjelde gave a great deal of credit to Anderson and Ueland for their hard work inside for the rebound edge.

Marshall County Central had 15 turnovers to Thief River Falls; six.

Thief River Falls will host Warren Tuesday in the Prowlers' home opener. Marshall County Central will be idle until Monday, December 8, when the Nordics host Warroad.

Plummer 50
Middle River 31

Pressure defense used by Plummer forced a number of Middle River turnovers that were converted into points by the Cardinals in their 50-31 victory over the host Skippers.

Experimenting, Plummer coach Rick Kolvisto opened the game with a half-court man-to-man defense instead of the Cardinals' usual pressing defense. But that move was quickly discarded when Middle River posted a 12-6 first quarter lead. The defensive switch saw Plummer outscore Middle River 44-19 the rest of the night.

Middle River still hung on to a 21-10 halftime edge, but Plummer went ahead 38-24 in the third quarter, and continued to pull away in the fourth quarter.

"We played well defensively," acknowledged Koivisto. "Our defense scored a lot of points for us."

Renae Walter led the winners with 18 points, hitting 7 of 11 field goal attempts. She also had six steals. Janelle Konickson and Angie Delage joined her in double figures with 12 and 11 points, respectively. Rayette Benke led Middle River with 14 points, with Stacie Sparby hitting 10.

Plummer shot 38 per cent from the field (21-for-55) and 42 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-19). Middle River shot just 27 per cent from the field (13-for-48) and 50 per cent at the line (5-for-10). The Skippers, according to the Cardinals' charts, doubled Plummer in the rebound column, 42-21.

"We tried to run with them," pointed out Middle River coach Steve Larson, explaining the Skippers' turnover problems. "It got out of hand on us."

Middle River plays at Warroad Monday. Plummer hosts Strandquist Tuesday.

Northland Men's, Women's Basketball . . .

Pioneers Play Alumni Teams In 1986-87 Season Openers

It'll be the old vs. the new Saturday when the Northland Community College basketball teams kick off their 1986-87 schedules with an alumni doubleheader in the school gym. The women's game will begin at 6 p.m. and the men's game is planned for 8.

An open invitation has been extended to Northland basketball alumni who are interested in participating in the games. They'll be playing two almost entirely new Northland teams, who have both made major roster changes from 1985-86.

Northland Men

Greg Campbell is the only player back from last year's state tournament runner-up Northland men's squad, and the 5-11 Canton, OH native averaged only three points per game as a freshman on a strong 22-3 ball club that was the No. 1-rated team in Region 13 all winter.

Personnel losses include Jerome Prewitt, the school's second-leading career scorer with 1,200 points, Chris Sims, the team's most valuable player award winner, Bob Heath and Gerald Dailey. Prewitt averaged 20 points per game last year, Heath and Dailey both scored 16 points per game and Sims finished No. 2 on the school career assist charts with 364, which included a school-record 25 in a single game encounter with Brainerd late in the year.

There are several other team candidates who are sophomores academically, but freshmen eligibility-wise, including Northland football standouts Anthony McCullough, a 6-4, 255-pounder from Canton, OH, and Scott Groven, a 5-9 guard from Goodridge.

Randy Henrickson, a 6-4 Goodridge graduate, and Ray Davis, a 5-9½ product of Inkster, MI, are two other sophomores at Northland who are out for basketball for the first time.

The sophomore class also includes three former University of Minnesota-Crookston ball players — 6-3 John Honek and 6-2 Joe Honek of Alvarado, plus 6-11½ John Logan of East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. All three have been out of school a couple of years. Logan is the tallest player in Northland basketball history.

Freshmen on hand include 6-3½ Rodney Wilson of Detroit, MI, a transfer student from West Texas State, where he began school three years ago; 5-10 Morris Matthews of Grand Forks, ND; 6-2½ Randy Hargest of Hopkins; 6-5 Kevin Nelson of Thief River Falls; plus three Inkster, MI players — 6-4 Ed Clark, 5-11 Calvin Hayes and 5-11 Rodney Gill.

Those are the 15 players out of an original group of 20 who began practice who are expected to play Saturday. That group will probably be reduced to about 12 before the season starts rolling, according to coach Chet Engelman.

Northland won its seventh Northwest Division title in 13 years in 1985-86 and made its 11 state tournament appearance over that same time span. Whether a whole new ball club can duplicate that kind of success is hard to tell right now, admitted Engelman.

"We have some players who have some talent," he said. "I don't know if we have as much raw talent as we had last year, but they've been working hard. We're going to show up for every game, but whether we're good enough to win, I don't know."

Northwest Division rivals UMC, Fergus Falls and Brainerd all had banner recruiting years, and Northeast Division foes Itasca, Vermilion and Hibbing could be the top three teams in Region 13, warned Engelman, making it a doubly-tough assignment to mold a group of newcomers into a title-challenging ball club.

"We don't have any stars," Engelman pointed out, "but I think we have 11-12 kids who can contribute."

Northland Women

Like men's coach Chet Engelman, Northland women's coach Tom Neibauer has just one sophomore back from last year's team, but she's a good one — Jody Pahlen, the former Plummer star who averaged 19 points and 10 rebounds as a college freshman.

One of Northland's biggest problems last winter was lack of numbers, with a six-member squad limping home with a 7-15 record. Named Northland coach in June the previous summer, Neibauer didn't have time to recruit a full roster. Although he'll have just seven players in uniform for the alumni game, the roster size should increase before the season moves on.

Double figure scorers Paula Rantanen and LeAnn Engelstad, plus assist record-holder Paula Wilkens are gone from last year's team, but the newcomers should be more than adequate replacements. The freshmen currently on hand include Janelle Lorsung, Waubun; Angie Enerson, Erskine; Sheila Jaeger, Plummer; Becky Knutson and Patti Odberg, Marshall County Central; Janie Chaplinski, Middle River; and Trisha Armstrong Thief River Falls.

"We'll be a lot quicker than we were a year ago," predicted Neibauer. "We'll have a decent team."

But record-wise, especially early in the season, the Pioneers may struggle. An extremely tough nonconference schedule should get Northland ready for the Minnesota Community College Conference — counting games against Northeast and Northwest Division foes, figured Neibauer, whose team will be playing eight scholarship schools, along with Anoka-Ramsey and Inver Hills, before starting divisional play. "Our early record might not be indicative of the strength of our team before conference play starts," warned Neibauer. "I'm not conceding anything, but we've got a really tough nonconference schedule. We'll be looking forward to the conference games."

Football Prep Bowl Scheduled Saturday

Ten high school football teams will attempt to win state championships in five classes this week when title games are played in the fifth annual Prep Bowl scheduled for the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis Saturday, November 29.

More than 150,000 fans have attended the four previous Prep Bowls. In each of the four years attendance has surpassed the 34,000 mark and is expected to topple the 30,000 mark this year. The record attendance of 42,610 was established at Prep Bowl I in 1982, according to Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League.

Format of games this year has the nine-man game at 9:30 a.m., followed by the Class C contest at noon. At 2:30 p.m. the Class B finalists will play, followed by the Class A and AA games at 5 and 7:35 p.m., respectively.

Among the 10 teams that participated in Prep Bowl IV a year ago, only Class AA runner-up Apple Valley survived the 1986 playdowns, assuring 1986 of five new state champions. Apple Valley lost in the 1985 title game to Burnsville, 27-21.

Pairings for Prep Bowl V look like this:

9:30 a.m. — Silver Lake (13-0) vs. Argyle (13-0); noon — Sherburn-Dunnell (12-1) vs. Minneota (12-1); 2:30 p.m. — Watertown-Mayer (13-0) vs. Granite Falls (13-0); 5 p.m. — Stewartville (13-0) vs. Cambridge (12-1); and 7:45 p.m. — Osseo (11-2) vs. Apple Valley (12-1).

A total of 374 football players will be featured performers on the artificial surface in the Metrodome Saturday.

When the 15th annual state high school football playoffs began more than three weeks ago, there were eight first time entrants among the 40 playoff teams. There was a chance that three would participate in this year's Prep Bowl, but losses in semifinal play eliminated that possibility.

Westbrook was the state's only undefeated football playing school heading into this 1986 campaign. That won't be the case next season as at least two schools are certain of finishing unbeaten this year. Five teams — Silver Lake and Argyle in nine-man; Watertown-Mayer and Granite Falls in Class B; and Stewartville in Class A boast perfect 13-0 records heading into the Prep Bowl.

All but three of the Prep Bowl entrants this year are experiencing their first appearance in the five-year history of Prep Bowls. In addition to repeater Apple Valley, the only other schools previously appearing were Silver Lake, 1983 and 1984, and Granite Falls, 1984. The other seven schools entered this year are first-timers.

Former state champions entered in this year's Prep Bowl include Granite Falls (Class B in 1977 and 1984); Argyle (nine-man in 1981); and Silver Lake (nine-man in 1983).

Among the 10 schools appearing this year, only Silver Lake (1983), Granite Falls (1984), and Apple Valley (1985) have previously made a Prep Bowl appearance.

Basketball Pairings

Pairings were announced this week by Lincoln High School athletic director Mike Novak for the fourth annual Thief River Falls Northwest Christmas Classic boys high school basketball tournament.

The tournament has been well-received by players, coaches and fans in the past, and the eight-team line-up remains intact from a year ago, meaning the host Prowlers will be joined by Roseau, Kennedy, Argyle, Fertile-Beltrami, Middle River, Marshall County Central and Hallock.

However, instead of running three consecutive days, the 1986 event will be spaced over a five-day span around the Christmas holiday.

First round quarterfinals will be played Tuesday, December 23, when Roseau meets Argyle at 1 p.m., Fertile-Beltrami plays Kennedy at 3, Marshall County Central goes against Hallock at 7 and Middle River tackles Thief River Falls at 9.

With Christmas Eve falling on Wednesday and Christmas on Thursday, the tournament will be suspended until the semifinals in both the consolation and championship rounds Friday, December 26. The consolation semifinals will be played at 1 and 3 p.m. and the championship round semifinals will be played at 7 and 9 p.m.

Finals will be played Saturday, December 27. Seventh place game will be played at 1 that afternoon, followed by the consolation finals at 3 p.m. That evening, the third place game takes place at 7 and the championship game is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

Thief River Falls won its first Northwest Chritmas Classic title last year with a 58-45 title game victory over Argyle. Kennedy beat Fertile-Beltrami 69-64 for third place.

Meanwhile, the Thief River Falls girls will participate in an eight-team Warren Invitational Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 18, 19 and 20.

Opening round quarterfinals match Ada-Borup vs. Thief River Falls, Goodridge vs. East Grand Forks, Crookston vs. Hallock-Kennedy and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart vs. Warren. Games will be played simultaneously at 7 and 8:45 p.m. in the new and old gymnasiums.

Consolation round semifinals and finals will be played in the old gym, while championship round semifinals and finals, plus the third place game, will be played in the new gym Friday and Saturday evenings.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Tim Kruse had three quarterback sacks Saturday to help lead the Concordia College football team to a 24-15 win over the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point in the opening round of the 1986 NCAA Division III football playoffs at NDSU's Dacotah Field in Fargo. Kruse, a junior defensive end, was an MIAC all-conference selection for the Cobbers this fall. The win over Stevens Point upped Concordia's record to 10-1, including a 10-game winning streak. The Cobbers, ranked tenth nationally, will travel to Pella, IA, Saturday to face Central College of Iowa in the quarterfinals of the 16-team playoff field. Central College is 11-0, including a 37-0 playoff victory over Buena Vista (Iowa) last week. Other quarterfinal match-ups Friday feature Mount Union (Ohio) vs. Augustana (Illinois), Ithaca (New York) vs. Montclair State (New Jersey) and Susquehana (Pennsylvania) vs. Salisbury State (Maryland).

+ Annual Prowler alumni hockey game will be played Thursday, December 25, at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls Sports Arena, it was announced by game officials this week. All letter-winning Thief River Falls alumni hockey players are invited to participate in the event. Players are asked to spread the word to their former teammates about the game. Those interested in playing that night should simply report to the arena at 6 p.m. For additional information contact Tom Goddard, Dale Wennberg or John Michael Anderson.

+ Kristy Forsberg-Aune, a senior from Thief River Falls, placed 36th in the NCAA Division II cross country meet held Saturday in Riverside, CA. Forsberg-Aune, the top runner for the University of North Dakota women's team all season, missed her goal of earning All-American honors by nine places. Last season Forsberg-Aune made her national competition debut with a 56th place finish. She was trying to become the first UND cross country woman runner. "She ran well, so she's not too disappointed," said UND coach Dick Clay. "She felt she ran the best she was capable of running." Kristy's time was 18:22, compared to a 16:43 by the winner, Gladys Prieur of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo.

+ John Noga, the former Bemidji high school and college baseball standout, has been named the new Bemidji American Legion baseball coach. Noga succeeds Whitey Anderson, who compiled a 185-118-5 record the past 11 years, including an all-time high 29 wins last summer but was not asked back for the 1987 season. Noga is currently the girls basketball coach at Parkers Prairie.

+ Brainerd, reportedly the largest community in Minnesota without a lighted baseball diamond, is seeking ways to raise $80,000 to light its high school baseball field. Without a lighted diamond, the community loses many potential VFW, American Legion and amatuer baseball players to job conflicts during the daytime hours. If successful in the fund-raising efforts, Bemidji would apparently take over the distinction of being the largest Minnesota baseball community without a lighted diamond.

Area Girls High School Basketball . . .

Plummer To Have Veteran Team

A veteran cast of players could make Plummer a formidable foe in area girls high school basketball this winter, but head coach Rick Koivisto isn't about to predict a title-winning performance for the Cardinals.

For one thing, there's defending District 31A and Region 8A champion East Grand Forks standing in the way of championship honors, and secondly, many of the same Plummer girls played all fall with the burden of being the favorite in volleyball weighing them down. Koivisto doesn't want his team to carry the same kind of pressure this winter in basketball. He simply wants the Cardinals to go out, play some good basketball and have some fun.

"We've got some experience," he will admit, "but our (lack of) height will be a big factor."

Seniors Robin Brantl and Janelle Konickson, juniors Jodi Konickson and Renae Walter, plus sophomore Angie Delage are all proven varsity performers for the Cardinals, who went 17-5 a year ago when they were the District 31A third place game winner.

Senior Karen Skjerven, junior Debbie Mossestad and junior Deana Fossell are also returning letter winners.

Brantl, who averaged 16 points per game last year, is about 90 per cent recovered from a severe ankle injury that sidelined her in volleyball, said Koivisto. Janelle Konickson averaged 10 points per game as a junior.

"We should be pretty balanced," he said. "We hope to be competitive; we hope to be in the running."

Grygla

Grygla is a team that carried the favorite's role in District 32A last winter, but struggled throughout the year en route to a disappointing 11-8 finish. The Eagles have some talent on hand again in 1986-87, but coach Mike Gast, like Rick Koivisto at Plummer, wants to keep it low key this time around.

"I want everyone to think we'll be down this year, and they should after last year, but I think we'll be okay. I'm taking a wait-and-see attitude, but I'm optimistic. I'd like to surprise some people this year."

Senior Michelle Jelle is beginning her fourth year as a starter for Gast, who is also looking for good things from Nikki Lian, who has plenty of game experience under her belt even though she's never held down a full-time starting job, and 5-7 junior Wendy Lawrence, an outstanding athlete who could become the Eagles' most consistent scorer.

Seniors Cindy Larson and Tiarra Porch, juniors Casanda Sistad, Angie Stratton and Wendy Ostby, plus sophomores Alison Stanley, Stacey Mosher and Julie Klamar could contribute, too.

"I'm looking forward to the season," noted Gast. "Our physical size and passing has improved. We want to improve upon last year's record, and I think we can do it."

Marshall Co. Central

A solid basketball program annually thrusts the Marshall County Central girls into title-challenging position, according to opposing coaches, but the 1986-87 Nordics will have their work cut out if they are to come close to matching last year's 18-4 District 32A runner-up finish, warns head coach Tom Mjelde.

"We lost three starters," pointed out Mjelde. "We're going to be real young and inexperienced."

Senior Jodi Foss and junior Andrea Kragness are returning starters, but Kragness will be sidelined indefinitely with a leg injury. The 5-9 all-conference player was the Nordics' second-leading scorer last winter.

"Obviously that puts a burden on Jodi," acknowledged Mjelde, who is hoping others like junior Natalie Ueland and sophomore Kelli Anderson, both standing 5-9, are able to pick up the slack. Once Kragness returns, the Nordics could utilize three 5-9 starters.

"We've got respectable height," noted Mjelde. "If we get some consistent outside shooting, we'll be all right."

Others vying for playing time will be senior MaryJo Erickson; juniors Denae Mjelde, Nikki Leach and Sharon Olson; sophomores Kari Boe, Denae Bengtson, Angie Nelson, Taren Stennes and CharRae Underdahl; and freshman Melinda Halfaday.

Goodridge

Goodridge went 6-16 last year with career 1,000-point scorer Jennie Boutain in the line-up. This year the Huskies are trying to improve upon that figure without the graduated Boutain.

A .500 season is the goal set by Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. It's attainable, she said, "but it's going to take a lot of hard work from the girls," she warned.

Seniors Cindy Vettleson and Bridget Sjulestad are being counted on to lead the way for the Huskies. Both strong inside players, Vettleson averaged eight points per game as a junior and Sjulestad averaged eight rebounds per start.

"We've got to get the ball inside to those two," explained Johnson.

Vettleson and Sjulestad are the only seniors on the team. The juniors include Carla Manderud, Joann Naeseth, Tracey Bishop, Betty Jo Kiesow and newcomer Rochelle Westman.

One sophomore and two freshmen, who have good potential, according to Johnson, round out the roster.

Middle River

There are solid, experienced front line players on hand, but Middle River coach Steve Larson will have to come up with a couple of guards this winter if the Skippers are to match last year's 13-9 finish.

"We should be strong inside," noted Larson, looking to senior Rayette Benke and sophomores Stacie Sparby and Kerry Nelson, all starters last year.

Senior Brenda Olson was a starter at guard last winter. Sophomore Kim Koehmstedt, plus freshmen Nikki Christopher and Nanette Berg figure to fill out the line-up.

'86 MCC Football Statistics Listed

Senior Tom Bolstad led the 1986 Marshall County Central High School football team in rushing, pass receiving and scoring, according to final year-end statistics released recently by Nordics head coach Sam Gebhart.

Bolstad carried the ball 117 times for 501 yards, caught 19 passes for 289 yards and scored seven touchdowns, along with a couple of conversion kicks, for 44 points.

Seniors Danni Halvorson and Darin Rokke, who shared quarterbacking duties, combined for nearly 1,000 yards passing this fall, but completed only 37 per cent of their passes and were intercepted 24 times. Halvorson was 39-for-107 passing for 573 yards, 10 touchdowns and nine interceptions. Rokke was 34-for-88 for 387 yards, three touchdowns and 15 interceptions.

Halvorson was also the team's second-leading rusher with 274 yards on 56 carries.

Sophomore Lee Pemberton was second in the scoring charts with 32 points and second on the receiving list, too, with 16 catches for 271 yards.

Marshall County Central struggled to a 2-7 finish this fall. The Nordics lost to Stephen 26-14, Argyle 29-8 and Hallock 41-7 to start the year, rebounded to beat Goodridge-Grygla 24-12 and Tri-County 13-12 at mid-season, but lost again to Stephen 36-12, Argyle 54-20 and Hallock 57-18 on their second swing through the Top of the State Conference. The season ended with a 44-18 opening round Section 8 nine-man playoff loss to Kennedy.

Defensively, Halvorson led the team in tackles with 105 unassited stops and 55 assisted tackles. Junior Greg Graham had 65 solo stops and 16 assisted tackles, along with a three-high three fumble recoveries. Rokke led the Nordics with six interceptions and senior Jamey Lysne was credited with a team-leading three quarterback sacks.

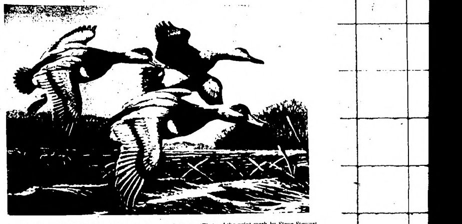
Outdoor News

What is man's most deadly enemy in the wildlife world? The lion? — no. The polar bear? — no. According to "National Wildlife" magazine, mosquitoes may be man's deadliest foe. They deploy parasites that cause malaria and kill one million people a year in Africa alone. They are also responsible for high death rates in India, Pakistan, Asia, Central America and the Caribbean islands.

Most butterflies have short memories. According to "International Wildlife" magazine, a scientist at the University of Colorado found that butterflies feed repeatedly from the same flower species because it takes too long to learn their way around new ones. If they venture to a new flower, then return to the old one, they must relearn the path to the nectar.



THREE REDHEAD DUCKS in flight over water, an oil painting by Arthur G. Anderson of Onalaska, Wi, was the winning design selected for the 1987-88 federal migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp, generally called the duck stamp. (Photo of the print work by Steve Stewart, U.S. Department of the Interior, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service).

Federal Duck Stamp Winner Selected

With his fifth entry in the annual federal duck stamp contest, Wisconsin artist Arthur G. Anderson prevailed over 798 contenders to take first place in this year's edition of the presitgious waterfowl art competition with his painting of three redheads flying low over a backwater marsh.

"This is great, just great!," said Anderson when reached by telephone at his home in Onalaska. "I was painting a bald eagle when the phone rang and I was so engrossed in my work I had almost forgotten about the contest."

Anderson's redheads, two males and one female, will appear on the 1987-88 migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp, commonly known as the federal duck stamp.

In announcing the winner as judging concluded in Washington, DC, on November 5, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Director Frank Dunkle referred to the duck stamp as the backbone of the agency's wetlands conservation effort. "The dollars spent on duck stamps by hunters and non-hunting conservationists work to ensure the future of this nation's waterfowl populations," Dunkle said.

Waterfowl hunters 16 years of age or older must purchase this stamp each year. The stamps are also purchased by many non-hunting conservationists to support wetlands acquisition through the migratory bird conservation fund. Over 90 million duck stamps have been sold, providing more than $300 million for the purchase of more than 3.5 million acres of prime wetland habitat for waterfowl.

Anderson, 50, who "hunts mostly with a camera," moved his family to Onalaska, which overlooks the Mississippi River near the town of La Crosse, in order to be close to the marsh habitat frequented by the redheads, canvasbacks and other waterfowl during their annual migrations. In addition to waterfowl, Anderson likes to paint bald eagles, white-tailed deer, and ther species inhabiting the area. He was first runner-up in Wisconsin's 1982 lake trout stamp contest and exhibits frequently in the Midwest and at The Waterfowl Festival held annually in Easton, Maryland.

He gained international recognition in 1985 when one of his paintings, "Riding the Wind," was selected as one of the six companionpieces to the Artist-of-the Year's painting in the 1985 contest sponsored by Ducks Unlimited, Inc.

Born in Eau Claire, Anderson began painting at the age of 12 with a set of oils borrowed from his uncle. He studied art at the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire and at the Art Instruction School in St. Paul. Supporting himself as a graphic artist, Anderson painted at home in the evenings and on week-ends until 1983 when he finally became economically able to devote all of his time to wildlife art.

He says his winning design was inspired by his wife, Virginia. "She's a redhead," he quipped, "and I told her that I'd enter redheads until I won." The painting features three redheads flying low over water in late afternoon. A typical backwater river marsh habitat is depicted — a scene which Anderson chose because "just about anyone in the country would be able to identify with it."

The redhead is a common duck found in all four North American waterfowl flyways. The male is distinguished by a large, chestnut-colored head with a light bill and dark breast, and the female by a plain bluish bill and a light brown body.

Second place in the duck stamp contest was won by Lynn R. Kaatz of Grafton, OH, with an acrylic rendition of two Canada geese in flight. Ronald Louque of Orange, VA, who was in the Interior Department audience during the contest, placed third with an acrylic depicting a pair of snow geese in flight over water.

As part of this year's duck stamp ceremonies, a sealed-bid auction of ten sheets of Golden Anniversary commemorative 1984-85 duck stamps raised over $65,500 for the migratory bird conservation fund.

Judges for this year's competition included Col. Robert Brantly, executive director of the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission; Peter Coors, chairman of the board of Ducks Unlimited, Inc.; Martha Hill, picture editor for Audubon magazine; James Norine, director of the hunter services division of the National Rifle Association; and Beatrice Pickens, member of the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation's board of directors. Jim Eckes, art director for Outdoor Life magazine, served as an alternate judge.

The duck stamp has been issued annually by the federal government since 1934 when J.N. "Ding" Darling's drawing of a pair of mallards in flight became the first design for the stamp. Subsequent art work was commissioned until the contest began in 1949. That year, eight waterfowl designs were received for the competition. Last year, 1,243 wildlife artists vied for the honor of winning what has become the nation's premier waterfowl art competition.

Federal government offers no prize or award to the winner other than a sheet of the following year's duck stamp autographed by the Secretary of the Interior. However, commercial wildlife art dealers usually are eager to market limited edition prints of the winning design under private agreements with the winner. Through this contest, the reputations of previously unknown wildlife artists have been established and those of professionals considerably enhances.

Duck stamp contest rules and regulations are published each spring in the Federal Register. They also are available at that time from the Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp Contest Office, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets NW., Washington, DC 20240. Prospective entrants are urged to read the regulations carefully as they are subject to change from year to year.

Prep Bowl Games Slated Saturday

Tickets, good for all five games, are adults $10, students $4. Advance reserved seat tickets for the Prep Bowl, the five title games, are available for purchase at all Dayton's Ticket Outlets in the Twin Cities. Toll Free Number for in-state calls is 1-800-228-8839. Toll free number for out-state calls is 1-800-992-2008. Telephone orders are subject to $1.50 postage and handling fee. Walk-ups will be taken at Dayton's until Friday, November 28. Ticket offices at the Metrodome open at 8:30 a.m. on Prep Bowl Day.

Here is a capsule look at the five state championship games:

Nine-Man

Silver Lake (13-0) vs. Argyle (13-0), 9:30 a.m.

Both schools have enjoyed the sweet joy of becoming a state champion. Silver Lake in the Metrodome in 1983 and Argyle won a title in Argyle in 1981. Both schools are unbeaten and are explosive offensive teams — Silver Lake averages 38.2 points per game while Argyle has been scoring at a 35.5 points per game average.

Silver Lake reached the championship game via victories over Beardsley/Valley, 15-8 and Alden-Conger, 43-28. Argyle, meanwhile, stopped Norman County West (Halstad), 26-12 and Verndale, 34-33.

Both teams have two running backs with more than 1,000 yards rushing. Silver Lake is led by Dave Hlavka (2,262 yards), and Todd Cuhel (1,080 yards). Argyle's top rushers include Preston Stoltman (1,285 yards), and Tommy Durand (1,070 yards).

In the final poll of the season conducted by Associated Press, Silver Lake was ranked No. 1 and Argyle No. 2.

Class C

Sherburn-Dunnell (12-1) vs. Minneota (12-1), 12-noon.

Neither school has ever been involved in a championship football game. Both once-beaten, Sherburn-Dunnell lost to Madelia, 27-26 in overtime, and Minneota's lone setback was to Class B Prep Bowl finalist Granite Falls 31-21.

In final ratings, Minneota was ranked No. 2 and Sherburn-Dunnell tied for the fifth spot. Top ranked Bertha-Hewitt was sidelined in state quarterfinal action by Minneota, 6-0.

Offensively and defensively both teams have shone. Minneota is averaging 32.4 points per game compared to Sherburn-Dunnell's 30.5, and defensively, Sherburn-Dunnell has scintillated, allowing foes a 5.8 points per game average. Minneota, meanwhile, has a 10 points per game allowed average. Sherburn-Dunnell, in fact, has given up only nine points during first half play in 13 games, all in the first quarter.

Class B

Watertown-Mayer (13-0) vs. Granite Falls (13-0), 2:30 p.m.

These two schools have a pretty good log on each other. They have met the past two seasons in post-season play, each school winning one. In 1984 when Granite Falls won the state championship, the Kilowatts eliminated Watertown-Mayer 40-13 in the quarterfinal round. Last year Watertown-Mayer ousted Granite Falls 6-0 in first round action.

This year both teams are 13-0 and ready for the "rubber game". Watertown-Mayer was ranked No. 1 in the final poll and Granite Falls fourth. The top-rated Royals are led by senior halfback Jim King (1,485 yards and 14 TD's), while Granite Falls is led by junior halfback Rick Meyer (1,793 yards and 27 TD's).

Watertown-Mayer reached the finals by virtue of triumphs over Swanville/Grey Eagle, 14-0, and Esko, 50-14. Granite Falls is in the finals because it downed Waterville-Elysian, 28-14, and Byron, 54-6.

Class A

Stewartville (13-0) vs. Cambridge (12-1), 5 p.m.

It will be the second state championship game for both schools, but neither has won a title and neither has competed for the championship in Class A. In 1977, Stewartville gained the Class B finals before losing to Granite Falls, and in 1980 Cambridge lost to Burnsville in the Class AA championship outing.

Cambridge, who lost only to Hastings by a baseball score (3-2), was ranked second in the final poll, while unbeaten Stewartville, whose closest game this year was 8-6 to Mahtomedi in state quarterfinal playoff action, was ranked fifth in the final Class A poll.

Both teams are stingy defensively. Stewartville has allowed but 5.8 points per game compared to Cambridge's 7.0 figure. Offensively, Stewartville averages 28 points per game and Cambridge 27.

Three running backs in the game have logged more than 1,000 yards this season. Cambridge backs Casey Cunningham (1,050 yards) and Jeremy Wicht (1,032 yards), and Jay Miller of Stewartville (1,342 yards).

Class AA

Osseo (11-2) vs. Apple Valley (12-1), 7:45 p.m.

The previous four Prep Bowl Class AA championship games have all been exciting. Consider this: The largest margin of victory has been seven points — Prep Bowl I — Stillwater over Owatonna. This year's match-up should be no exception.

Both finalists are members of the new Lake Red Conference and when they met in regular season play on Sept. 12 in Osseo, Osseo won 14-6. Since then, Apple Valley has rolled to 10 straight victories, while Osseo has lost twice — to Bloomington Jefferson (21-0), and to Park Center (17-14) in the final two games of the regular season.

Three players that will be featured in the game have 1,000 yard-plus rushing season. Osseo backs Chad Mortenson (1,566 yards) and Dean Fuerstenberg (1,185 yards) and Apple Valley running back Chris San Agustin (1,356 yards).

Prep Bowl Notes

- All 10 teams and musical performers will practice in the Metrodome on Friday. The practice schedule for teams follows: 9-10 a.m. — Watertown-Mayer and Osseo; 10-11 a.m. — Apple Valley and Cambridge; 11 a.m. - noon — Argyle and Stewartville; noon to 1 p.m. — Minneota and Silver Lake; and 1-2 p.m. — Granite Falls and Sherburn-Dunnell.
- Nine-man playing field is 40 yards wide and 80 yards long. Teams play without two guards, accounting for nine players. There are no 15 yard penalties. The most yards that can be assessed by a referee is 10 yards. Teams will kick off from the 30 yard line in the Metrodome. If a field goal attempt is desired, team captains will inform the referee and adjusted yardage will be marked off.
- All five games will be televised for a fifth straight year. This year by KMSP-TV, Minneapolis, replacing KSTP-TV, St. Paul, who televised the first four Prep Bowls. Play-by-play announcers and color analysts for the various games include Perry Williams, Jim Gilleland, Bob Kurtz, all from Channel 9 station, and Dick Bremer.

Outdoor News

Just because you live in a wealthy neighborhood, it doesn't mean you are immune from health problems caused by toxic waste. According to "International Wildlife" magazine, a study by the Council on Economic Priorities found that middle-income neighborhoods, not the poorest neighborhoods, have the highest levels of toxic waste and related cancer deaths. One of the worst places to live is Short Hills, New Jersey, with an average household income of $91,000. The best place is probably Beverly Hills, California, which has virtually no toxic waste.

Most turtles deserve their timid reputations, hastily withdrawing their heads, feet and tails into their shells at the slightest sign of danger. But, according to "National Wildlife" magazine, this act of cowardice has paid off. While more aggressive reptiles, such as dinosaurs, have died out, turtles have thrived for some 250 million years on every continent but Antarctica. Maybe the dinosaurs would still be with us today, if they, like the turtles, had carried their homes with them.

What animal is earning a reputation as a fertilizer, garbage disposer and source of protein? According to "International Wildlife" magazine, the earthworm, of which there are some 3,000 species, will eat through all kinds of organic waste and recycle them as fertilizer. In addition, for every ten pounds of garbage that earthworms consume, they produce a pound of meat that tasts like chicken. Although scattered tribes around the world had traditionally eaten worms, experts think it's unlikely the wormburger will ever replace the hamburger on our menus.

Watch out America's Cup hopefuls — the Australians may have a secret weapon — kangaroos. While kangaroos have long been regarded as "natural athletes" for their leaping and boxing abilities, they are also great swimmers. According to Ranger Rick magazine, kangaroos have been spotted swimming across rivers and even in the ocean. A "roo" swims with its head and back above water, pumping its strong hind legs one at a time. So that's what those Aussies have under their yacht this year.

Jet travel may not be so modern after all. In fact, Ranger Rick magazine reports that jet propulsion has been used by squid for millions of years. While jet airplanes take air in and blast it out the back, the squid uses water power the same way to make fast getaways.

Why not make wildlife a part of your holiday season? National Wildlife magazine describes how to decorate a tree in your yard especially for wildlife. Adorning a tree with pine cones dipped in suet or peanut butter makes a sumptuous Christmas feast for both birds and animals. Popcorn, raisins and cranberries strung on the branches are also treats for wildlife and give the tree a festive look. The best decorations, however, are those that come to feast — birds and nature's other living ornaments.

(part of a series)

Immense areas of peat covered what had at one time been the bottom of glacial Lake Agassiz. Early settlers discovered that much of this land would grow excellent farm crops if the shallow peat was burned off before the land was cultivated. Because of the difficulty involved in controlling a peat fire they were unwilling to assume this responsibility and consequently, in dry years, illegal fires were started indiscriminately to clear land for farming. In spite of the best efforts of Ranger Willems and his skeleton organization, the dry years of the early 1930's saw many of these land clearing fires get out of control and burn large areas, generally grass and brush. The most damaging of these large fires was the Haug's Ridge fire which was actually a part of the big Red Lake fire of 1931.

Much of this fire burned within what is now the Beltrami Island State Forest. Besides a considerable loss of timber, several homesteads were destroyed and the loss in livestock and wildlife was heavy. Four people lost their lives and several fire fighters were injured. In 1933 a grass and brush fire in Roseau County burned over 300,000 acres. The Warroad fire in October 1934 covered 364,000 acres of grass and brush. In each of these fires one life was lost. Old timers in the area recall that one time the Great Northern Railroad posted placards on their passenger trains urging people to take an excursion to Warroad to see the great forest fires.

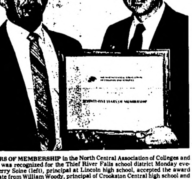
After these large fires the situation became better. This was due in part to the fact that much of the shallow peat was now burned off and the land under cultivation and partly to better fire protection facilities; more and better equipment and the appointment of permanent personnel in the districts.

One of the few proven cases of an unprovoked attack by a bear occurred in Area 12. In September 1931, two forestry employees, Lloyd Hilborne and Maurice Day were working with a survey crew south of Norris Camp when they came upon a bear which attacked Hilborne without a warning. Day went to Hilbornes assistance with the only weapon at hand, a short pole which he picked off the ground. After badly biting and mauling Hilborne, the animal turned on Day who tried to defend himself with the club which was soon wrenched from his hands.

While struggling with the bear he managed to get a small knife from his pocket which he somehow opened. With the pocket knife he stabbed and slashed the animal several times. The bear finally abandoned the attack and disappeared into the heavy underbrush.

Day, who was severely bitten and clawed, and believing Hilborne dead, left the scene to find help. He shortly encountered other members of the work party who returned with him and found Hilborne still alive but in serious condition. Both men were removed to the hospital in Warroad. Day, who is now employed the the U.S. Forest Service, made a complete recovery, Hilborne, who died in 1962, survived but was left partly crippled for the rest of his life.

There was very little change in area personnel assignments from the middle 30's until the end of the war. When Ranger Leonard O'Donnell returned from military service his headquarters were moved from Clear River to Warroad and an assistant ranger was stationed at Clear River. In 1947 assistant supervisor Schmechel was transferred to Hill City and Jerry Person transferred from Orr to Warroad. In 1948 Dorothy Selvog was appointed to the position of clerk-typist replacing Audrey Hoffman who had resigned. Hoffman had in turn filled the vacancy created by the resignation of Lenore Thorsen in 1946.



75 YEARS OF MEMBERSHIP in the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools was recognized for the Thief River Falls school district Monday evening. Terry Solne (left), principal at Lincoln high school, accepted the award certificate from William Woody, principal of Crookston Central high school and chairman of the North Central validation team visiting local schools this week. The local school district has been a continuous member of the accrediting association since 1911. Presentation of the certificate took place at a dinner for the validation team and members of local self-study committees.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Have you ever wondered what the "Real-World" of diplomacy is really like? The average American hasn't the slightest notion of what communications are between nations and the great powers of the world today.

There were only two great powers left in the world at the end of WWII, namely the United States of America and the Soviet Union. The mighty British Empire was bankrupt at the end of the war — Canada and Australia loaned millions of pounds to London to keep England in the war and be able to meet the military payrolls and the RAF requirements. I spent almost three years over there as a member of the American 8AAF, Tactical Wings. It was a lesson in diplomacy.

Let's take a look at the most recent confrontation between the great powers. That was the Reykjavik, Iceland meeting between Gorbachev, (I usually pronounce it Garbageoff) and President Reagan. The socialists and Liberal Republicans at ABC, NBC, and CBS worked overtime cranking out the disinformation and misinformation about almost everything of importance.

For years I've been warning people about the disinformation that comes out of the TV network newsrooms. Disinformation is a net subtraction from your intelligence. After watching a week of the nightly news covering something like Reykjavik, you'll be dumber and more misinformed than when you started. Let me put the historical record into perspective right now with the facts.

Fact No. 1. The very first disarmament summit was held in 1816 between Russia and Great Britain. The Russian government proposed, "simultaneous reduction of the armed forces of every kind." The summit was a failure. Every disarmament conference and treaty in the world has been a failure.

Fact No. 2. The communist Russians have broken and-or disregarded every arms treaty and every peace treaty they have signed with one exception. That exception was the Nazi-Soviet Non-Aggression Pact signed with Hitler on August 22, 1939. In that particular case Hitler got around to breaking the treaty before the Russians could.

Fact No. 3. The historical record shows that signed peace treaties with the Russians are not worth the paper they are written on. I'll give you just one example of many. On April 13, 1946 Stalin signed the "Japan-Soviet Union Neutrality Pact. It was a peace treaty that ran for five years and terminated on April 13, 1946. At the signing in Moscow, Stalin toasted the Emperor with a "Banzai" and said, "diplomatic pledges should never be broken, even if ideologies differ." The Japanese in 1945 sincerely believed tha the Russians honored treaties.

On August 8, 1945, eight months before Russia's peace treaty ran out, Russia, without a declaration of war and in complete disregard of their treaty, launched a massive surprise attack against Japan with two million crack Russian storm troopers! The Russians massacred the Japanese army in Manchuria, guaranteed the victory of communist Mao Tse-tung in China and also invaded the Japanese Kurile islands.

Although the Kurile islands have been Japanese home territory since the recorded history of the Japanese people, the Russians have said they are never going to give them back. The historical moral is: NBC, CBS, ABC and the liberals want America to make exactly the same mistake the Japanese made, but only we'd lose everything.

Fact No. 4. The historical record shows that the Russians have never honored any treaty or agreement with America. Under the Yalta Agreement (WWII), Russia promised and gave its word that "free, open and honest elections uninfluenced by Russian forces would be held shortly after the end of the war in Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia." For all the Liberals at the network who never noticed, we are still waiting for those "free" elections. Under the Helsinki Agreements that old, President Jimmy Carter was conned into, the Russians promised to honor freedom of peaceful dissent and to stop persecuting Jews inside Russia. Today Jewish persecution inside Russia is worse than it's ever been, and people who want free speech are still being murdered by the KGB.

Fact No. 5. The Liberals at the American TV networks insist and broadcast over and over again that we can sign an ICBM reduction agreement with complete 100 per cent safety because our "spy-in-the-sky" knows exactly how many ICBMs the Russians have, exactly how many warheads in whole or in parts the Russians have, and know exactly where they are. This line of reasoning is absolutely "baloney!" It is a complete "falsehood!" It has absolutely no foundation whatsoever. Nobody in America has any real idea of how many ICBMs the Russians have. NBC, CBS and ABC would have us believe that detecting missiles is as simple as going out and counting how many ducks are sitting on a given lake in Minnesota. That's pretty funny, isn't it?

What is the truth? ABC, CBS and NBC have used their tremendous power over the American people to fabricate the search for disarmament into the search for the Holy Grail. Their false philosophy is that tension comes from arms, so if you reduce arms you will have less tensions. The real problem is that the totalitarian political system of the Soviet Union is irreconcilable with America. The Soviets in their schools, in their newspapers, on their TV, in the armed forces and at every level of Russian society, preach a million times a day a dogma of struggle and eventual military conquest of America. As far as the Soviet government is concerned, arms control is just another military trick to use against America.

We should be concerned about our country. A lot of chicken hearts keep saying, "Oh, don't say things against the Russians." These are the same chicken hearts who in 1936 wouldn't say anything against Hitler. There never has been any shortage of cowards, draft dodgers, or one-way bus tickets to Canada and there certainly is none today.

To The Editor:

Thank you to all the members of Lincoln high school's concert band, orchestra, jazz band and wind ensemble for an outstanding evening of entertainment Tuesday night, November 18. The instrumental fall concert provided our family with a delightful and educational evening. We enjoyed the variety of the musical selections and were impressed with the level of musicianship displayed by the participants.

It was a special treat to hear Robert King, the guest violinist. Mr. Ryan's efforts to enrich the program with a guest artist is to be commended. All of our own soloists are also congratulated for their fine performances. The informative introductions to each selection also enriched the quality of the program.

I feel fortunate to live in a community with such an excellent music program.

Sincerely,
Laura Mattsson

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announced that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the months of July, September and October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.

Unemployment In Region Shows Modest Decrease

Unemployment is decreasing in Pennington county According to a September 1986 supplement to the Review of Labor and Economic Conditions, prepared by the research and statistics office, Minnesota department of jobs and training, in cooperation with the United States department of labor, bureau of labor statistics, unemployment in Pennington count, showed a modest decline in August of 1986 compared to August of 1985

According to the report, the unemployment rate for August of 1986 was 5 9 but 6.5 at the same time the previous year The trend was also common for almost all of the countries in the same region. The region includes Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties

"Except for a few counties, both July-August and over-the-year unemployment rates dropped in Central and Northwest Minnesota," states Ron Daws in the report

"Excluding seasonal jobs emerging in construction, there was little employment change in other industries over the month. Over the year, however, most industries made significant employment advances — except, ironically, construction," Daws wrote.

Bruce Steurnagel of the research office of Minnesota Jobs and Training, believes part of the reason for the decline has been a modest growth in the economy and a decrease in the numbers of new entrants seeking employment In the past, most of the new entrants have been teens and adult women, but that increase has slowed considerably, according to Steuernagel, which allows the market to absorb the job growth.

Steuernagel said more current unemployment statistics for the month of September in Pennington county indicates a decrease from the 5.9 in August to 5.2 in September. He said it is difficult to say for sure what the specific reasons for the decreases were but that in a county where the work force is comparatively small, one to two large corporations who for some reason find themselves able to hire more people, can make a big difference.

Those businesses or industries showing job growth in Minnesota include manufacturers of nondurable goods, construction, financial service, business services and health services, according to Steurnagel.

Unemployment in the region has also decreased, according to statistics provided by the research office Region-wide, the unemployment rate dropped from eight per cent in August of 1985 to 7 2 per cent in August of 1986 The number of people actively seeking work, the main figure used in computing the unemployment figures, also dropped The number of people actively seeking work in the region during the month of August in 1985 was 42,941 while at the same time one year later there were 41,677 people actively seeking work

The figures for each county in the region during the month of August for 1986 and 1985 respectively are Kittson, 8 6 and 10 5, Marshall, 10 3 and 10 7, Norman, 5 6 and 6 6, Polk, 7 9 and 8 7, Red Lake, 11 9 and 10 2, and Roseau, 3.6 and 5 1.

Statewide, economic developments in Minnesota were somewhat mixed in August as the unemployment rate fell to a five-year low and both total and nonfarm payroll employment also dropped steeply, according to the research and statistics office Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in August was 5 per cent, the lowest since April of 1981

State unemployment rate was 5 3 per cent in October

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate edged up to 5 3 per cent in October, an increase of one-tenth of a point from September's rate but still well below the October 1985 jobless measure of 5.9 per cent, Commissioner Joe Samargia of the Minnesota department of jobs and

Roseland Reunion Brings Alaskan Folksinger Home

— Courtesy Warren Sheaf. "I don't know one note of music," commented Alaskan folksinger Paul Roseland of Anchorage, Alaska, who knows hundreds of folk songs. He entertained with many tunes and stories at the Roseland family reunion at the Newfolden Community Center Saturday afternoon. For 30 years Paul has been collecting Alaskan folklore and writing songs. He has lived in Alaska for 38 years.

Five of the six children of Arne and Mary Roseland were back for the family reunion: Lloyd and his wife, Elaine, of Maple Grove and two of their four children; Pauline and her husband, Gordon Bondy, of Grand Forks and two of their seven children; Paul of Anchorage and his ex-wife, Bernice of Bagley, and two of their four children; Johnny and his wife, Darlene, of Newfolden and three of their four children and Jerome of Minneapolis. The oldest of the family, Allie, Mrs. Art Waldren of Hibbing, was unable to attend because of a back problem.

To go deer hunting was the reason Paul came back to Newfolden in November. The family reunion was planned around his trip. He was a successful hunter, getting a deer the morning hunting season opened, on a ridge near the home place on the south edge of New Folden Township. After also seeing several moose, Paul thinks there are more moose here than in Alaska.

"The groves of trees are gone where we used to walk to school," lamented Paul, who with his brothers and sisters attended Wildwood School with Sorensons and Hjelles, to name some of the neighbors. Paul sang the tune he wrote about Newfolden, "What's Happened to the Farm Land, Since I've Been Gone?"

Paul said the task of collecting folklore is a difficult one, but it is also fun. He credited and thanked the old-timers of Alaska, known as Sourdoughs, who gave him the words, information and stories which he has put to music. Saving this Alaskan heritage has been a very important part of Paul's life. Newcomers to the land are known as Cheeckakos.

During his boyhood in Minnesota and the Dakotas, Paul learned as many tunes as he could. He bought his first guitar in Warren when he was 15 years old for $11.

Paul completed 2 years of high school in Newfolden. He was stationed in Alaska during World War II and missed the beautiful open wilderness country so much after getting out of the service that he went back. That was 38 years ago. He will be returning to Anchorage Sunday, November 23.

Now retired, but singing and writing folk tunes, Paul has been a carpenter and builder and has worked with gold mining claims. For several years he worked with a large gold mining operation in the Yukon Territory. He has a homestead in Portage, Alaska, about 50 miles from Anchorage, which he enjoys.

Paul has been told that his mellow voice resembles that of the popular vocalist, Kenny Rogers. He has cut records, accompanying himself on the guitar, with his son, Ronnie, providing background guitar music. Records were for sale at the reunion.

There are many Minnesotans who have moved to Alaska, especially from the Baudette and Badger area, which makes Paul feel right at home. In 1951 there were 1,200 from Minnesota living in Anchorage, where folksinger Paul lives. His address is Box 4-1324, Anchorage, AK 99509.

In the 1918 Alaskan census, 45 per cent were Scandinavians. Paul wrote a folk song, "The Norwegian Seaman," tracing and recording some of this history.

At the reunion, which was attended by about 75, Johnny Roseland joined Paul in singing duets. Johnny requested that Paul whistle a tune, as a special favor to him. Paul did, with a couple tunes, to the delight of family members and friends.

Paul also did a tune which demonstrated his yodeling skill, which he learned while in the city of Valdez, known as the "Switzerland of Alaska."

Paul's children are Arne and Lori, who live in Crookston, and Ronnie and Tesea, who live in Alaska. He has 4 grandchildren.

Family members, Lloyd, Pauline, Johnny and Jerome, also reminisced of their childhood, with Pauline read-

Crop Share Leases In MN, Changes With Land Values

The sharp drop in land values has led to changes in crop share leases between farm operators and landowners.

Shifts from a 50-50 to a 40-50 share have been common, with the higher share going to the farm operator. Crop share leases are a traditional risk sharing arrangement, said Ken Thomas and Paul Hasbargen, economists with the University of Minnesota's Extension Service.

Like cash rental rates, the type of crop share arrangement typically found in an area is determined largely by the productive value of the land. In areas where cash rents range from $20 to $40 per acre, the one-third and two-thirds share predominates. This includes most of the northern two-thirds of Minnesota.

The 40-60 share is most common in $40 to $65 cash rent land, and the 50-50 predominates in areas with rents above $65 per acre. (In all cases, higher figures apply to the farm operator.)

If you're shifting to a crop share arrangement or contemplating a change in your rent agreement, this is a good time to determine a fair arrangement under current conditions.

Thomas said a fair crop share arrangement is one where the landowner and farm operator share the crop in the same percentage as they contribute inputs like land, labor, machinery, seed and fertilizer.

To help in this analysis, a publication on cash rent, crop share and leases is available at Minnesota county extension offices. Many offices also have a computer program called "Rent Minnesota." The computer program helps calculate how much can be paid for cash rents and estimates returns from different share rents.

Goodridge Becomes Bicentennial City

Commission on the bicentennial of the United States constitution has recognized another group of American cities, towns and counties as "Designated Bicentennial Communities." he list of such communities has now grown to 310 nation wide, including Goodridge.

"A major goal of this commission is to educate the American people on the historical significance of the constitution," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, commission chairman. "The active involvement and willing participation of our nation's local governments will be key to the success of the bicentennial."

The commemoration of the bicentennial of the constitution will focus in 1987 on the writing of the constitution, in 1988 on the ratification by the states, in 1989 on the formation of the first Federal government under the constitutional system, and in 1990 and 1991 on the writing and ratificatin of the bill of rights.

In order to be designated officially, a community (city, town or county) must have its elected officials authorize a commission, appoint members broadly representative of the community, outline plans and forward a specific request for recognition to its state commission.

New AFDC Report Lists 57 Options

Chair of the Senate finance subcommittee on health and human services, Senator Don Samuelson, this week announced the release of a final Senate report on Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFCD) that calls for 57 possible options for reform of the state human services system.

"I am pleased with the effort and final product that came out of the public input process we have followed," Samuelson said. "The subcommittee will use this report, along with other reports being prepared by the Governor's AFDC commission and the Legislative audit commission, to develop an AFDC reform package to present to the 1987 legislature for its consideration.

"Some of the key issues discussed in this report include programs to help recipients become more self-sufficient; methods to reduce teen pregnancy rates, and efforts to improve child support enforcement," Samuelson said. "AFDC reform must begin focusing more on helping recipients work their way off of welfare."

Overall, the report includes an overview of 34 hours of public committee testimony received by Samuelson's subcommittee and the Senate health and human services committee, which held joint hearings across the state following the 1986 session.

"One of our most important findings as a subcommittee," Samuelson added, "is that our state's welfare problem is less severe than in other states. For example, Minnesota ranks 35th in per capita spending on AFDC and 29th in the percentage of its population on the program.

"We have also found that three-quarters of AFDC recipients are off the program within three years, that we rank 44th in the percentage of out-of-wedlock births, and that we're second-lowest in teen pregnancy. Clearly, we have some problems, but they're not insurmountable," he said

The report recommends a number of options to promote self-sufficiency, reduce teen pregnancy and improve child support enforcement. It also discusses grant levels, the AFDC-unemployed parent program for intact families, fraud, migration, grandparent liability and administrative complexity

"The recommendations of this report are a start in the right direction, and should give the 1987 legislature the information it needs to make needed reforms in this area," Samuelson said.

Roseland Reunion Brings Alaskan Folksinger Home

ing a poem she had written for the occasion. Several friends commented on their experiences with the Roseland family as they grew up together.

Grandparents of the Roselands were Lars and Mary Roseland, immigrants from Norway, who were married in 1889 and came to New Folden Township in the spring of that same year to homestead land in Section 34. They were active in Bethlehem Lutheran Church in New Solum Township, a mile and a half south. According to the Marshall County History Book, "Lars always took his hymn book on Sunday morning and sang so that his voice would ring throughout his home and church. He wore out many of these hymn books." Perhaps grandson, Paul, in particular, inherited his love of music from his grandfather, Lars.

Happy birthday wishes were extended to Dillon Bondy, son of Ron Bondy of East Grand Forks, who was 6 years old that day. His birthday cake was served to all the guests, in addition to punch, coffee and many goodies. Dillon is the grandson of Gordon and Pauline Bondy.

Unemployment In County And State Shows Decline

training reported.

This was the second month in a row that the rate has increased, but only the third time in the past nine months where there has been a gain, Samargia said.

"The variation in the rate since summer has been slight," Samargia said, "and that seems to indicate relatively stable labor conditions in Minnesota overall."

The comparable national unemployment rate for October was seven per cent.

Employment, on a seasonally adjusted basis, continued its slow but steady growth over the month and on an annual basis.

Department analyst Wayne Graner reported that wage and salary jobs rose by 2,800 from September as a loss of 1,400 jobs in manufacturing sector was offset by gains in the non-manufacturing industries.

When compared to October 1985, employment was up by 1.5 per cent or 27,300 jobs despite a drop of 3,700 jobs in manufacturing, Graner said.

Individual area jobless rates varied from an actual low of 2.6 per cent in Clay county to a high of 22.4 per cent in Lake county for September, the most recent month for which county data is available.

The unemployment rates in this article pertain to the entire labor force and are not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Thanks-Living

The poet both haunts and helps at Thanksgiving time when he wrote:

"Don't let it be forgot, that once there was a spot, for one brief shining moment that was known as Camelot."

A place, a time, a person, it makes little difference.

Camelot has come to mean the height of something special. And Thanksgiving is a time of recalling one's Camelots. It is the reality (or memory) of little children gathered around an open fire in the den finding expressed delight in identifying flickering flames as "rabbit ears" or "teddy bear's feet."

Camelot is turkey served full-bodied to family members, but it is more.

Camelot is gratitude for life, and the life-giver without whose daily presence there would be no Camelots. It is thankfulness that God is actively, creatively, and redemptively at work in our world and in us.

Thanksgiving is reviewing the Camelots along the path and expressing gratitude for each. It is hearing the surgeon say "benign" instead of "cancer," a kindly soul who rings your doorbell to enlighten the load; a letter with words that send doldrums scurrying for cover, and it is the reality of knowing that God cares; that He is the Source and Resource of all we shall ever need.

But Thanksgiving is better pronounced "Thanks-Living," the only true way to celebrate this Thanksgiving, Camelot Season.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Farm Bureau Views Farm Situation

Following is a condensed version of an opinion article prepared by Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation. It has been edited to reduce the length.

The market-oriented farm bill passed by Congress late in 1985 has been the subject of almost as much debate since its passage as prior to it. The scramble to dismantle the bill, particularly in the weeks before the adjournment of the 99th Congress, has been fast and furious.

Among the proposals is that authored by Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) and Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Missouri). This proposal calls for production controls to be set and mandated by the federal government.

The 1985 farm bill is not perfect, but it does address some of the goals that U.S. farmers identified three years ago in discussing and debating concepts for new legislation. These include expanding exports, protecting income and reducing carryover stocks. The 1985 farm bill provides the opportunity to do these things.

The important point is, after years of dwindling exports, we have the opportunity to turn the situation around. Farm Bureau has called on the administration to design programs for 1987 crops that continue to move us forward while concentrating on export growth, income protection and stocks reduction. We have called for additional acreage cuts using PIK payments, in order to keep free stocks large enough to meet market needs while reducing government stocks.

The farm programs come with a big price tab (well over $25 billion for the year that just ended). But reducing our stocks and becoming price competitive will help create the best opportunity for a more profitable and market-oriented agriculture.

At the recent General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks in Uruguay, it was indicated that Australia is planning a 10 per cent wheat acreage cutback. Agrentine officials estimate a five to 10 per cent reduction. Cutbacks are even being discussed in Europe. It's evident that those countries that took advantage of our previous farm policies are unsure how to compete effectively against our new policies to market commodities competitively. U.S. farmers can compete internationally — and our competitors know that.

Proposals such as the Karkin-Gephardt bill would reduce farm income, reduce our ability to compete in export markets, and adversely affect all farmers. The proposal is an old idea that has persisted because of its short-run political appeal as a simple solution to a complex set of problems.

When Sen. Harkin introduced his last farm bill in 1985, no mainstream policy analyst — Democrat, Republican or nonaligned — gave it credibility much less support. We believe that mainstream farmers and farm policymakers and advisors are not likely to get on board this time either.

Such severe production cutbacks as are advocated by Harkin-Gephardt would not only deprive farmers of their right to make management decisions, they would have a devastating effect on the agricultural-related businesses and industries and rural communities.

Dramatic changes in U.S. agriculture will not happen overnight, but the 1985 farm bill is clearly the best route to make us competitive again. Let's give it a chance to work.

Efficiency, Stewardship And The Family Farm

Following comments were written by Mary C. Turck for the Land Stewardship Project headquartered in St. Paul:

USDA studies over the years have shown that family farms are the most efficient units of production. Family farms have produced so well that we in the United States pay a lower percentage of our income for food than people in any other industrialized nation. But now, we are told, farmers must get bigger or get out — and most of them must get out.

Bigness requires money. Lots of land, large machinery to work big fields, specialization in one or two crops to more efficiently use machinery and land, chemicals to fertilize and to kill weeds and pests.

Bigness makes caring more difficult. When you have 22 beef cows and raise their calves each year to market weight, you know the animals. One sickly calf is cause for concern and for caring, for bottle-feeding if necessary, for watching over and tending. When you have 200 calves which you feed and send off to market, you cannot invest the same careful tending of each animal.

Caring works that way with land, too. When you farm 160 or 320 acres you can know each field. You can know where the wild plums and the chokecherries grow along the fenceline. You can keep a careful eye on the waterway and notice where the ditches are dirty or where a gully might begin. When you run 800 to 1,000 or even more acres of cropland, you just don't have time to see it all. You cannot care for land in the same way, because you cannot see it and know it in the same way.

Even a professional farm manager agrees that family farms are here to stay: " 'I would certainly agree that the family farm is going to stay because of the economies of scale.' You simply cannot take away the family's incentive to work the long, hard hours in return for the chance to build equity in the property — and replace it with a corporate employee who works solely for wages. . . . 'Farming is not a production line.' " (Clarence Anderson, quoted in the Minneapolis Tribune, 3/23/86)

An even stronger argument for family farming comes from countries which have tried the biggest variety of farming, and failed in it. The Soviet Union is turning from its ideological commitment to collective farms and instead allowing farmers to sell some produce directly to local stores and consumers. Small private plots have proven more productive than large collectives.

Similar shifts from collectivization and big farming to greater reliance on small private plots of land is reported from China and Vietnam. If even communist countries now have to concede the value of small, family-style farming, how can we be so foolish as to abandon our family farmers?

For the sake of our family farmers, for the sake of the land they care for, for the sake of the plentiful food we enjoy, we need to reverse the headlong rush to bigness and keep the family farms alive.

— Lloyd Johnson, who farms with his brother, Harvey, east of St. Hilaire, has been named "Farmer of the Year" by the Pennington county soil conservation district. — The nickname "Northmen" has been selected by vote of the Thief River Falls state junior college student body, winning out over 13 other suggested names that included "Honkers" and "Gremlins." — Champions in the three top divisions of the 11th annual Make It Yourself With Wool contest were Linda Vilmo, Gary, senior division; Mary Warford, McIntosh, junior division; and Mrs. Arnold Stenberg, Oklee, adult division.

1976 — 10 YEARS AGO

— Mrs. George (Elizabeth) Netteland, "The Lefse Lady," was featured in a story in the Times. — Terry Madson, city planner, reported that five separate development teams have submitted preliminary proposals for construction of senior citizen housing units south of Northwestern hospital. — Two Grygla men, Ardell Mortenson, 25, and Lowell D. Thorson, 23, were arrested by Roseau police and charged with arson following the burning of the Farmers Union hall in Roseau. — The city of Thief River Falls was selected as the site of Northwest Educational Cooperative service union at a meeting of the board of directors in Plummer recently. — A local citizen who lost a substantial amount of money in $100 bills November 16, offered a $500 reward for the return or information leading to the return of the entire amount lost.

It is cheering to reflect that in a little more than three weeks the days start getting longer.

The Minnesota Mascot tells about the paper that during the recent campaign said a candidate was lying all over the state when it meant to say he was flying.

Jim Farley is visiting in Ireland, and he'll probably bring back a few lucky shamrocks to use in the next campaign.

Those who missed the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago a few years ago may cheer up. There will be a world's fair in San Francisco in 1939 and one in New York city in 1940.

Loyal citizens will give the home town merchant the preference when Christmas shopping time comes around.

Strike in Match Factory — Headline. That sounds appropriate.

The next governor of Minnesota has a big job cut out for him, and here's hoping Businessman Benson will take the ascendancy over Politician Benson.

Mrs. Simpson, we are advised, is proving that life begins at forty.

With all the deer hunting licenses sold in the state this month, game wardens ought to be assured of getting their salaries for a few months.

Mussolini is abolishing all Italian law courts. Why not? The Duce has been handing down all the decisions anyway.

Well, we got our Indian summer, but the fuel dealers didn't do any cheering.

The Statue of Liberty in New York harbor was fifty years old this month. And strange to say, it still stands for something.

East Grand Forks didn't relish the news that the sale of liquor is to be legalized in North Dakota.

Tidbits From THE TIMES

Thief River Falls

Excerpts from the 1936 Times, rewritten by Sharon LaCoursiere.

With the wisdom of hindsight, let us take note of the following editorial in the November 19 Times, composed for Thanksgiving of 1936. In wisdom too, let us apply it to the present. Happy Thanksgiving.

"If, in the spirit of Thanksgiving, we should give thanks for material blessings, then this community has much to be thankful for indeed. In a year of drought and scarcity, we have been favored with plenty. While other communities, many of them, have received less than they need, we have been given abundance. And for this we should be thankful. But next year may reverse the order. Next year, or the year following, it may fall to our lot to feel the blight of adversity. Experience teaches us that that is likely to happen. So in offering thanks for our present good fortune, let us pray for the wisdom that will direct us to make wise uses of our present abundance. With wise and provident husbanding of our present resources, we will be prepared for those years when we are less favored. We then will have something to be thankful for even in the lean years — thankful that we had been blessed with the wisdom to provide for adversity in the days of plenty."

TIMES Around The Region

Lengthy Business

Kennedy — 89-year-old Henning Holm spent the last day of his 71st year as Kennedy hardware store entrepreneur having a cup of coffee in his new room at the Kittson County nursing home in Hallock. The last remaining inventory in the store was sold at auction that day and Holm was officially retired. He began his business on Kennedy's Main street in 1915, with his uncle, P.O. Peterson. The store was moved to its present location in 1924. As he reminisced in the Kittson County Enterprise, he said he remembers being the first in the community to have a radio, a camera and a television set in his store, which increased his popularity with the community tremendously.

Un-Suit-Able Accusations

Crookston — An environmental group has sued the state over its approval of a garbage-burning steam plant in Polk county, saying the plant and other proposed plants like it are a public health hazard. Earth Protector Inc. filed suits in Ramsey County District court and the Minnesota Court of Appeals November 18 that accuse the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency of failing to thoroughly study the environmental and health effects of the plant. The suit was filed the same day the Polk county board of commissioners approved a $2.8 million contract to construct equipment necessary for the incinerator plant planned for Fosston.

Not To Worry

Bemidji — Beltrami county has announced it is going ahead with plans to build a garbage transfer station in the county for sending garbage to the planned steam plant to be build in Fosston, in spite of the recent announcement of a suit filed by an environmental group.

Holidays Increase Food Poison Chances

Thoughts of the upcoming holidays invariably include thoughts of food. Roast turkey, dressing, sauces, cream pies and eggnogg — one can almost smell the season approaching.

The poison experts at the Minnesota Regional Poison Center (MRPC) at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center and Ramsey Clinic want to make sure one other thought accompanies the holiday season: the special care that must be taken when preparing and storing food.

According to MRPC staff, there is a higher incidence of food poisoning around the holidays when people tend to eat more foods that they did not prepare themselves. Also, food is often kept at room temperatures longer than usual, allowing bacteria to grow more easily in holiday foods.

It is estimated that every year a significant number of people suffer from mild cases of food poisoning and don't know it. "That's because the symptoms are very similar to the flu," said Barbara Qualley, R.N., education director, MRPC. "The symptoms are headache, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea and usually develop within 1 to 8 hours after the person has eaten the contaminated food."

For most people, food poisoning is not severe and the symptoms disappear within 24 hours, Qualley said. However, she warned that for senior citizens, infants or people with other illnesses, food poisoning due to certain types of bacteria can be severe and occasionally fatal.

There are four common bacterial sources of food poisoning, Qualley said. They are: salmonella, clostridium perfrigens, staphylococcus and clostridium botulinum. While most of these names are not familiar to the average person, the bacteria is everywhere in the environment and found in all food. A warm, moist environment helps these bacteria grow rapidly.

Salmonella is one of the most common sources of food poisoning, according to Richard Kingston, Pharm. D., MRPC managing director. While it is usually not fatal, it is widespread. "It is estimated that more than two million cases of salmonella poisonings occur each year in the U.S.," he said. Salmonella is most commonly found in raw meats, poultry, eggs, milk, fish and processed foods such as chocolate, yeast and spices.

Clostridium perfrigens is another common bacteria and can cause illness when foods are stored in large quantities at improper temperatures for several hours or overnight, Kingston explained.

Staphylococcus, more commonly known as staph, is spread from humans or animals and grows in a wide variety of foods. All meats, poultry and salads like tuna, egg, chicken, potato or macaroni as well as cream-filled pastries and sandwich fillings, are possible carriers of staph germs. If the staph germs are allowed to multiply to high levels, Kingston said they form a toxin that can't be boiled or baked away.

Clostridium botulinum, probably the rarest form of the four bacteria, is the most fatal if contracted, Qualley said. These bacteria are abundant in the environment and usually harmless. But when they are not destroyed by heat, they form a poisonous toxin, and even the smallest amount of botulism toxins can be fatal. The sumptoms of botulism include double vision, inability to swallow, speech difficulty and progressive paralysis of the respiratory system. Medical attention must be sought immediately, Qualley cautioned.

Although all this might spoil one's appetite, the MRPC staff agreed that all food poisoning can be avoided by following some simple rules. Together with Joann Slavin, PH.D., U.S. Agricultural Extension Program, University of Minnesota, MRPC has developed these guidelines:

— Wash hands before preparing meals. A person with acne, a boil, a hand cut, a cold or flu should be especially careful around food. Keep hands away from mouth, nose and hair.

— Scrub containers and utensils used to handle uncooked foods with hot, soapy water before using ready-to-serve foods. Use separate cutting boards to help prevent contamination between raw and cooked foods.

— Keep foods to be served hot above 140 degrees F and foods to be served cold below 40 degrees F.

— Refrigerate food promptly after meals or cooking.

— Thaw frozen foods in refrigerator or under cold running water.

— Do not allow meat, poultry, fish, egg dressings, sandwich fillings, potato salad, cream-filled baked goods or ham to stand at temperatures between 40 - 140 F.

— Stuff meat, poultry or fish just before roasting — never the night before. Never partially cook stuffed meat, poultry or fish.

— Use pasteurized milk and milk products.

— Do not use dirty or cracked eggs in raw or slightly-cooked egg products such as eggnog.

— Cook home-smoked fish or meat at 180 degrees F for at least 30 minutes. Do not refrigerate smoked fish in an airtight plastic pouch.

— Do not put food (especially milk, egg or cheese casseroles) in the oven with a timer set to begin cooking later.

— Heat leftovers thoroughly; boil broths and gravies several minutes when reheating them.

— Discard off-color or foul-smelling leftovers.

— Boil all home-canned vegetables and meats 15 to 20 minutes before eating.

— Avoid food in containers with leaky seals, and bent, broken or bulging cans.

If you suspect a case of food poisoning, are concerned about any symptoms that last longer than 24 hours or want more information, call the Minnesota Regional Poison Center. The numbers to call for Twin City residents is 221-2113 (east metro) and 347-3141 (west metro). Greater Minnesota residents may call toolfree, 1-800-222-1222. Poison information specialists are available 24 hours a day seven days a week to answer calls.

He also said he thought there was a growing positive attitude in the community and school district.

Wheat Exporter Competition Is Convention Topic

"Meeting the Competition," a panel discussion with participants from the EEC, Argentina, Australia and Canada, will be the highlight of Tuesday afternoon's program at the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers 11th annual meeting and convention to be held December 1-2 at the Regency Inn and conference center in Moorhead.

According to MAWG president Gordon Sonstelie of Winger, there is always so much discussion about what is happening in other exporting countries, and how foreign producers cope with the ever-changing agricultural scene.

"This panel discussion will provide insight and straight-forward discussion of the production and marketing systems in each of our major competitor countries, and the government's role in each," says Sonstelie. "In addition, we hope that each of the speakers will spend a few minutes speculating on what impact the U.S. farm bill will have on wheat production in their country and the impact on trade."

The two-day meeting will also focus on reducing input costs, with a cost of production workshop; and a marketing seminar entitled "Making the Most of those Generic Certificates." The MAWG's business session, including the discussion and development of resolutions for the coming year will also be included on the program.

According to Sonstelie, all Minnesota wheat growers, both members and non-members are encouraged to attend the two-day meeting. Registration for the convention is $20 and will be available at the door. In addition, special rates at the Regency Inn are available for those planning to attend.

Farm Leaders Ask Gov. To Appoint Professional To DOT

Three farm leaders have called on Governor Rudy Perpich to appoint a trained professional to head the Minnesota department of transportation.

In a joint letter to Perpich, Minnesota Farm Bureau President Merlyn Lokensgard, Minnesota Farmers Union President Willis Eken, and Minnesota Association of Cooperatives Executive Director Allen Gerber praised the performance of outgoing Transportation Commissioner Richard Braun. Braun has resigned, effective December 1, to become the director for the Center for transportation studies at the University of Minnesota.

The farm leaders asked Perpich to appoint a new commissioner based on his professional qualifications, capability and expertise.

"It is our hope that you will select a new commissioner who is as professional and as sensitive to the needs of agriculture as outgoing Commissioner Braun," the letter stated. "We urge you to appoint a commissioner who is well qualified and capable of managing this most important department" rather than making it a political appointment.

CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTING of the community Christmas tree at Elks park in Thief River Falls will take place Thursday at 8 p.m. Mayor Bob Carlson chose the site of the tree for signing of the proclamation of December 4 as the "Day of the Lighting of the Christmas Tree." Joining in the signing were Jane Mackenroth (left), chairman of the tree lighting committee; Sue Lillevold, executive vice president of the chamber of commerce; and Jeff Hayes, vice chairman of the chamber's retail business association. The program will include a welcome by Mayor Carlson, music by members of community church choirs under direction of Vi Barr, reading of the Christmas story by Pat Johnson, brass ensemble directed by Les Torgerson, lighting of the tree by chamber of commerce president and master of ceremonies Larry Belmont, prayer by Rev. Tom Olson of Our Saviour's Lutheran church and additional numbers by the choir. Refreshments will be served at the chamber of commerce office following the program. Mayor Carlson's proclamation points out that the Christmas tree is one of the most popular and beloved symbols of the season and that it radiates the sentiment and warmth of the ageless story of the Christ Child. He urges the public to attend the lighting ceremony Thursday at 8 p.m. in Elks park, south of Third street near the Third street bridge.

Lyle Andersons Enter State OYF Competition

Representing the Grygla-Gatzke Jaycees in the Minnesota outstanding young farmer competition Friday and Saturday in Albert Lea will be Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Anderson of rural Grygla. Lyle farms in partnership with his brother Gary, who was state winner in 1984.

Mrs. Anderson is the former Joni Bergerson of Thief River Falls and they have two children, 10-year-old Christopher and three-year-old Lindsay.

The Andersons farm 3,344 acres of which 3,187 is tillable, owning 2,803 acres and renting an additional 541. Lyle has been farming all his life but began on his own in 1970 when he purchased his first 160 acres of land. Exchanging labor for the use of his father's machinery, he worked to develop the unimproved land. In 1972 he purchased another 240 acres of undeveloped land and the following year added 175 acres of property which was already improved.

Following his graduation from Bemidji state university in 1975 — magna cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in business accounting and business administration — he purchased another 800 acres with his brother. They formed their partnership in 1976. They jointly purchased additional land, including buying out their father's operation in 1979.

"Much of the land that I farmed had either never been farmed or had been farmed marginally," Anderson said. "Three-fourths of the land needed extensive development in order to farm it on an efficient scale. This entailed clearing of approximately 500 acres of trees or brush, picking rocks in the spring and fall, and beginning to square out quarter sections.

"Ditching was a major obstacle. In 1975 I purchased a scraper and in 1979 I had to replace it because of wear. It was replaced in 1984. During this time I have dug at least 200 ditches totaling over 50 miles. I survey my own ditches, re-doing ditches that had not been straight."

The Andersons became certified seed growers, marketing the seed themselves, and when time allowed they also took on custom work for other farmers, adding to their gross income.

To minimize work stoppages due to break-down of equipment, Lyle has established a preventative maintenance program. Equipment was added or upgraded when cash flow and income projections justified the purchases. In 1981 a fast, fully-automatic grain drying and handling facility was installed on the farm. It has a 4,200 bushel wet holding capacity, approximately 500 bushel per hour drying capacity and 50,000 bushel dry holding capacity.

In the division of duties in the partnership, Lyle has primary responsibility for seeding, harvesting, ditching and welding while Gary does the primary tillage, chemical and anhydrous application and plowing. Joni operates a mechanical rock picker, runs one of the combines at harvest, serves as flag person during spraying operations and fills in as an errand runner as well as meal provider.

Bookkeeping is a major part of the Anderson operation with farm records kept in written form by accrual method for yearly farm management but on a yearly cash basis for income tax management. Separate records are kept of individual field history with rotation and production practices. Maintenance logs are also kept for each piece of major equipment to determine if the costs of keeping the machine are excessive as opposed to trading it for something else. With attention to management practices and crop rotation, the Andersons have proven yields 35 per cent better than the average for their area with small grain and 40 per cent for sunflowers.

Lyle said that his family has been farming since 1899 and has always had a positive attitude about the family farm, that a person has to take the bad with the good and that the good always outweighs the bad. "I wanted to raise my family in a rural environment and to be independent," he said, "setting my own goals for life as opposed to meeting someone else's goals."

Lyle has established a number of goals, most aimed at greater efficiencies in the farm operation. These include greater buying in bulk, shipping grain direct, buying and storing fertilizer during the off-season and utilizing cash discounts. He seeks to maintain a good credit rating, increase productivity of man-

Foreign Adoption Gives Chance For Parenthood

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Despite the joys of becoming adoptive parents, there are two areas of difficulty involved with adopting foreign children which all adoptive families face. They are the seemingly interminable waiting for a child to become available — true with almost any adoption — and the costs involved in accomplishing the adoption.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Holland of Thief River Falls are well acquainted with the joys and problems of foreign adoption, having recently received their second Korean child. Duane is deputy chief of the Thief River Falls police department and Gail is employed at Northwest Medical services as public relations coordinator.

Four-year-old Kelsi, who had her fourth birthday October 10, arrived from Korea November 10. She joins four-year-old Dayna, who is eight months older, and was received by the Hollands from Korea in July of 1983 after a 15-month waiting period. Dayna was 17 months old when she joined the Holland household.

Although Kelsi speaks only Korean and Dayna has lost any knowledge of that language she may have had, the ability of the youngsters to somehow communicate is a daily marvel.

"You can listen to them in the other room," Gail said, "and they will be carrying on a regular conversation. Dayna will say something in English and Kelsi will answer in Korean and they will talk back and forth that way. It doesn't seem to be any problem for them to know what the other one is saying."

Both of the girls have somewhat similar backgrounds in that both are from the city of Seoul, both were relinquished by their parents due to financial circumstances, and both spent three months in an orphanage before being placed for adoption. Their individual family circumstances were somewhat different.

"We will make the attempt to keep communication lines open with Kelsi's family in Korea if they wish to do so," Gail Holland said. "We did send a letter with pictures to Dayna's family through the appropriate adoptive agencies involved but received no response. We have to assume that the family does not want any further involvement. At this time we don't know what the situation will be with Kelsi's family."

The Hollands decided to adopt a child about five years into their marriage when they had no children of their own. They first investigated availability of children through the county social services but were discouraged by the prospects. They had friends who had waited a long time for caucasian children to adopt. Consideration was then given to foreign adoption, with time being a major consideration.

"I wasn't particularly young when we were married," Duane explains, noting that they have been married nine years and he is now 42 years old. "In my work I have seen many instances where young people get into trouble, and when their parents are older the generation gap is sometimes more than either parents or child can handle."

The age factor is one reason why the Hollands' second adoptive child is not an infant. One of the requirements for adoption is that there be no more than 40 years difference between the age of the child was and the oldest parent. When their application for a second child was made, the Hollands first stated they would accept a girl two to five, and later amended that to either a boy or girl ages two to eight. They also said they would accept siblings — meaning more than one child from the same family.

While the first child took 15 months from application in April of 1982 to receipt in July of 1983, the second took less time. The Hollands decided to adopt a second child in December of 1985, had their first meeting with Lutheran Social Services in Moorhead in January of this year, and met Kelsi at the airport in Minneapolis three weeks ago.

"The waiting is the hard part," Gail said. "With Kelsi we received referral photos in September and responded that we would accept her. I was intending to fly to Seoul to get her and had my passport in order when the bombing took place in the air terminal there. International tensions being what they were, I canceled the trip.

"But you form a bond with the child as soon as you make the commitment to adopt, and we were worried all along about Kelsi's welfare and how it would be for her to leave Korea to come and live with us."

Concern Voiced On Merging TRF, Bemidji AVTIs

Following expression of concern from AVTI staff and the Thief River Falls Education association meet and confer committee regarding joint governance of the Thief River Falls and Bemidji AVTIs, an internal task force was authorized at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening at the school district service center.

The task force will include president James Fremstad of the Thief River Falls Education association and his designee; two AVTI faculty members agreed upon by the TRFEA president and Dr. Orley Gunderson, AVTI director; Supt. Leo Ruberto and Dr. Gunderson. The task force is to develop recommendations for the board's formal approval at a special meeting December 1.

Concerns expressed by the TRFEA and AVTI staff included the April of 1987 timeline for implementation of the proposed merger and its effect on programs and staffing.

Authorization was given to post for a half-time AVTI sales and marketing instructor and for a full-time aide in the AVTI business department effective November 24-February 27. Authorization was also given to develop specifications to obtain quotations for school district printing services.

The board also adopted policy involving Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) personnel and students. The policy basically provides that personnel infected with

Reierson And Mickelson Wed September 20 At Zion In TRF

Marcy Reierson and Craig Mickelson were united in marriage September 20 at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Eugene Floistad officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Clifford and Jeanette Reierson of rural Holt and Matthew and Ethel Mickelson of Baudette.

Jerry Joringdal served as organist for the ceremony. As processional and recessional, he played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and "Trumpet Voluntary." Wendy Blazejewski was the soloist, singing "God, A Woman and A Man," "The Wedding Prayer," and "The Lord's Prayer." Rev. Roger Hanson read scripture.

Acolytes were Lorie Reierson, Thief River Falls, and Timothy Rude, Wadena, both cousins of the bride.

Two black spiral wrought-iron candelabra formed the chancel setting for the candlelight ceremony, holding 12 ivory candles offset with greenery and bows on either side of the altar. Two triple candelabra graced the altar, with white bows decorating the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a Bianchi Creation gown of white taffeta with pearl-trimmed illusion yoke, and long, fitted lace sleeves trimmed with Alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured Alencon lace and seed pearls with a deep V back interest. A softly gathered skirt flowed to a semi-cathedral train trimmed in Alencon lace.

Her headpiece, fashioned and designed by her mother, was decorated with pearls and sequins, and featured a fingertip veil. Her cascade bouquet was composed of white roses, stephanotis and ball pompons, babies' breath and greenery.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister-in-law, Gloria Reierson of Thief River Falls, and friend, Jody Lunke, Middle River.

Rina Martin, Minneapolis, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Nita Martin, Minneapolis, Kimberly Rude, Wadena, and Amber Eichorn, Hibbing. All bridal attendants were cousins of the bride. They wore wine floor-length gowns of shiny Raschel lace over satin. The dresses featured bateau necklines, V backs, dropped basque waistlines and puffed sleeves. Their semi-cascade bouquets were similar to that of the bride with white ball pompons, wine-tipped babies' breath and greenery.

Flower girl was Amy Reierson of Thief River Falls, niece of the bride. She was attired in a gown similar to that of the bridesmaids, and carried a white bridal basket of white ball pompons, wine-tipped babies' breath and greenery.

The groom wore pearl gray tails with matching bow tie and cummerbund. His boutonniere was a white rose centered in babies' breath.

James Mickelson, Springerville, AZ, served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Mark Reierson, Holt, and Thomas Mickelson, Thief River Falls, brothers of the groom; and Gregory Dally, Thief River Falls, friend of the groom. Gentlemen of the wedding party wore pearl gray tuxedos with matching ties and cummerbunds, and matching boutonnieres of clusters of white mums and babies' breath.

Paul Reierson of Thief River Falls, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. He wore a pearl gray tuxedo matching those of the other attendants, with a gray bow tie and cummerbund. His boutonniere was of white mums and babies' breath.

Ushering the guests were Marty Reierson, Thief River Falls, brother of the bride, and Matthew Mickelson, Jr., Baudette, brother of the groom. They wore pearl gray tuxedos with boutonnieres of red roses.

Both mothers of the couple were presented with corsages of red roses, white ball pompons and babies' breath. The mother of the bride wore a gray street-length gown and the mother of the groom wore blue. The fathers of the couple wore pearl gray tuxedos with red rose boutonnieres.

Honored guests were Mrs. Clara J. Reierson, Thief River Falls, and Sylvester and Adeline Grabanski, Hibbing, all grandparents of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception dinner and dance was held at the Thief River Falls country club with music by the Cathy Erickson band. Host couples were Jim and Phyllis Martin, Shoreview, and Bruce and Rose Eichorn, Hibbing, all aunts and uncles of the bride.

Friends of the bride, Debra Davidson and Jody Christofferson, registered the guests and Alese Eichorn and Lisa Reierson, cousins of the bride, distributed wedding programs. Serving champagne were Mrs. Audrey Rude and Vernon and Maxine Reierson, aunts and uncle of the bride. Peggy Mickelson, friend of the couple, served punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered Queen of Hearts cake, iced in white and decorated with wine roses. White cherubs topped the five heart-shaped cakes that formed the base. Between the pillars that supported the first tier was a glazed procelain bride and groom, and a flowing fountain was centered in the third tier. The cake was topped with a crystal heart-shaped decoration trimmed with doves and bells. Jeanette Reierson, mother of the bride, baked and decorated the cake.

Emma Lofgren, Seattle, WA, Sophie Swanson, Baudette, and Irene Kelly, Graceton, all aunts of the bride, and Margie Steinhauer, Holt, friend of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Pouring were Sharon Johnson and Evonne Lerol, godmothers of the bride from Thief River Falls, and Janet Garthus and Margaret Voth, friends of the bride from Holt.

Table hostesses were Donna Fosholm, Norma Dahle and Eilene Benitt. Waitresses were Karen Kjensrud, Mary Jo Erickson, Kerstin Reierson and Debra Detz. Waiters were Dana Martin, Billy Rude, Van Reierson and Dean Reierson. Serving as gift bearers were Tonia Booth, Jackie Weleski, Stacy Martin, Bruce Eichorn, Robbie Reierson, Darrin Weleski and Brad Lunke. Gerald and Dorothy Pederson, Richard and Pat Kjensrud, Jay and Carol Garthus and Eldon and Evonne Moe served as gift hosts and hostesses.

A groom's supper, hosted by Matthew and Ethel Mickelson, was held at the Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt the evening of the wedding rehearsal.

Following a wedding trip to Minaki Lodge in Ontario, Canada, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls. The bride is a 1977 graduate of Marshall County central high school, Northland community college and Bemidji State university, with a bachelor's degree in elementary education. She taught at the Karlstad elementary school for the past five years. The groom is a 1972 graduate of Lake of the Woods high school, the University of Minnesota, Duluth, and Pacific college of optometry. He practices at the Falls Vision clinic in Thief River Falls.

Chat And Chew Learns About Fat-Free Cooking

"Cooking With Less Fat" was the topic discussed by members of the Chat 'N' Chew homestudy group when they met recently at the home of Marian Williams. Discussion was led by Camille DuChamp and Pauline Aubol, and began with each member giving her suggestion on how to cut down on fat in the family's diet.

President Betty Feragen presided at the business meeting, in which the members voted to again participate in Operation Merry Christmas of the Fergus Falls Regional Treatment center. A donation will be forwarded to the center to be used toward the purchase of gifts for residents. The club has participated in the project for the past fifteen years.

In other business, it was mutually agreed that the club will secure a date in the near future for hosting the local friendship club. A dessert luncheon was served at the close of the meeting by the hostess. The December 10 meeting will be a noon luncheon at a local restaurant, with a gift exchange to follow at the home of Pauline Aubol.

Q. My wife and I just found out that she has cancer. I want to be sure she gets the best treatment available. I've heard that some patients are being treated in clinical trials. Please explain what a clinical trial is and whether this is an option we should consider.

A. In cancer research, a clinical trial is designed to see if a new treatment will be significant improvement over the best known treatment. The best known treatment generally involves either surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy (treatment with anticancer drugs) or a combination of these treatments. Clinical trials often incorporate best known treatments.

These studies are not necessarily the best option for everyone. Clinical trials enroll patients with specific types of cancer and specific conditions. Some patients may be treated effectively by standard treatment alone. For patients who have not been helped by standard treatment, clinical trials offer hope.

Your wife's doctor will advise you about the best treatment for her type of cancer. You may wish to get a second opinion from another physician. Your wife's doctor can recommend a cancer specialist who can discuss with both of you the best treatment in her case.

Q. My husband's brother has cancer of the colon. Is my husband likely to get it too? What precautions should he take?

A. A person whose parent, brother or sister has had colon cancer does have a greater risk of developing this disease than someone with no family history of colon cancer. That doesn't mean that your husband is "likely to get it," only that his risk is greater than average.

When colon cancer is found and treated early before it has spread, it can be surgically removed and cured in 85 to 90 per cent of cases. That's why regular colon examinations are important for your husband and for everyone over 40. Your husband should tell his doctor about his brother's cancer. The doctor will recommend a checkup schedule.

There are some warning signs or symptoms that can mean a person may have colon cancer. These symptoms can also be caused by other conditions or diseases, but they should never be ignored. These are the signs your husband should be aware of:

—Bleeding from the rectum or blood in the bowel movement.

—Loss of weight when there's been no change in eating habits or activity.

—Diarrhea or constipation that lasts for more than two weeks.

—Frequent abdominal discomfort, cramping or pain.

—Loss of appetite or nausea that lasts for more than two weeks.

Q. My mother is in her 60s. She's always been healthy, and has only gone to a doctor a few times in her life. I don't think she's ever had a Pap test. I'm trying to encourage her to have a complete check-up. Isn't it more important for older people to be examined regularly for cancer?

A. Generally cancer is a disease of older people. That's why the American Cancer society and the National Cancer institute recommend that everyone over 50 should have regular cancer detection examinations.

These check-ups should include a rectal and colon examination, stool blood tests, and, for women, breast examination, mammogram, pelvic examination and Pap smear.

Of course a complete check-up will also include tests for cardiovascular disease and other conditions that are more likely to occur as people get older.

Q. The surgeon told us my wife's cancer is Stage I. He said that was good news, and the chances are excellent that the surgery cured her. Can you tell us what "Stage I" means?

A. Stage is a system doctors use to describe how extensive a patient's cancer is. Generally cancers are categorized in four stages. The specific definitions of these categories are different for each type of cancer. They include the size of the original tumor, the extent of any spread to lymph nodes and any spread to other body organs.

The four general stages can be described in this way.

Stage I — The cancer is confined to the organ where it bagan. There is no spread to lymph nodes or other organs.

Stage II — The tumor has begun to spread to adjacent organs or lymph nodes.

Stage III — The original tumor is large and involves surrounding tissue and lymph nodes. There may also be metastasis to other organs.

Stage IV — Cancer has spread through the body.

Most types of cancer discovered and treated in Stages I and II usually can be cured or controlled. Cancers in Stages III and IV are much more difficult to treat effectively.

Q: My husband quit smoking on D-Day, November 20. The first few days seemed to go very well. He was excited about his decision and didn't touch a cigarette. Now he's beginning to miss smoking and I'm worried he'll take up the habit again. Is there anything I can do to help?

A: Yes, there are many ways you can lend support. First, realize that he will be tempted to have a cigarette. But if he makes a slip, don't blame him — it's not the end. Remind him that he is a non-smoker and urge him to get back on the non-smoking track immediately.

Reward him for not smoking. Congratulate him every time he gets through the day without smoking. After one week, let him choose his own reward. Treating himself to something special will remind him of th fac. that what he is doing is important. Throw a family party for him at the end of his first smoke-free month.

Anticipate the occasions which might trigger his urge to smoke. If he used to smoke while reading the newspaper, give him some sugarless gum to chew. If he formerly smoked in restaurants, ask to be seated in the non-smoking section.

Remind him of the reasons he quit: smoking makes his clothes and hair smell. It is bad for his health, a waste of money and causes his skin to wrinkle.

If he says, "I'd love to have a cigarette right now," tell him to think positively. Remind him how far he has come and how much he's accomplished.

Suggest that he use breathing exercises to reduce tension. Instead of having a cigarette, tell him to take a long, deep breath, count to ten and release it. By repeating this five times he will feel more relaxed and the urge to smoke may have passes.

Most of all, listen if he feels like talking about his struggle to quit. Be sympathetic, but talk him out of any urges to smoke. If his friends and coworkers know he is trying to quit, they, too, can lend support.

If he would like more information on becoming a true non-smoker, call the Cancer Information Service toll-free at 1-800-4-CANCER. Ask for a free copy of the fact sheet, "You've Kicked the Smoking Habit. For Good!"

AIDS will continue their employment and regular assignments unless their health status deteriorates sufficiently to interfere with performance at work.

"Most students infected with HTLV-III should be allowed to attend school and before-and-after school care in an unrestricted manner because of the apparent negligible risk of transmission of HTLV-III in this setting," the policy states. "The presence of...infected students in school does not constitute a significant threat to other students."

The policy goes on to provide for special actions to be taken if infected students pose more of a potential risk and require a more restricted environment. Mandatory screening as a condition for school entry is not warranted on the basis of available data, the policy notes.

Constance Stock was approved as high school musical director for the 1986-87 year. Elaine Budke was hired as long term substitute in social studies and mathematics at Franklin middle school.

Supt. Ruberto was congratulated by the board on completion of this Bush Fellowship program and his award plaque was displayed at the meeting.

Next meeting of the board will be the special session on the district's mission and goal statement December 1. Next regular meeting will be on December 15 with the time advanced to 5 p.m. to permit board members to attend an MSBA workshop later that evening.

Planning Session With DOT Slated Here December 4

Area residents, local governmental officials and individuals concerned with tourism and resource protection are invited by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to attend a public planning session at Thief River Falls city auditorium Thursday, December 4.

The sessions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m.

A statewide plan for the development of highways in recreational areas is being prepared jointly by Mn-DOT and the department of natural resources as directed by the 1986 state legislature. This plan will allow state and local agencies to pool their resources and expertise to cooperatively develop projects that will enhance roadsides and travel in the recreational areas of Minnesota.

"We feel these meetings and others like it are important because the opinions people express will form the basis of our statewide plan" said Carol Braun, Mn-DOT project coordinator.

For an informational mailing, call (612) 296-3042 or write Carol Braun, Project Coordinator, Room 704, Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Booklet Explains Harmful Effects Of Fat In Diet

Most of us don't like to think about fat, whether in our diets or around our waistlines, but its importance to our health makes it a subject we should know more about. A new booklet from the American Institute for Cancer Research, "All About Fat and Cancer Risk," removes the mystery from dietary fat and makes clear how important the fat in our diet is to the health risks we all face.

While we're usually aware of fat in fried foods or as visible fat on meats, many people do not realize that there are hidden fats in many of the foods we enjoy. Common foods such as avacados, most dairy products, chocolate, nuts, most cookies, the powdered dairy creamer we use in our coffee, and many other common food items all add a great deal of fat to the average diet.

According to the Institute booklet, "All About Fat and Cancer Risk," the average American diet gets about 40 per cent of its calories in the form of dietary fat. Because of the links which some research has shown between high fat diets and cancers of the breast, stomach and colon, the American Institute for Cancer Research rcommends reducing fat to 30 per cent or less of daily calories. This is similar to the recommendation of the American Heart association, which cites links between high fat diets and heart disease.

A first step in cutting down on fat in the diet is understanding which foods are high in fat. This might seem hard to do at first, but labels for most processed foods show fat content in the form of grams of fat. The AICR booklet explains that to figure out how many calories that represents, simply multiply the number of grams of fat in a serving by nine, since each gram of fat contains approximately nine calories.

A good general rule of reducing fat in your diet is to simply eat more fruits and vegetables, since these foods contain no fat or very small amounts. Reducing the amount of red meat and whole milk dairy products is another way to reduce fat in the diet. The AICR booklet suggests other simple techniques for lowering fat in your diet, such as trimming fat from meat, substituting fish, chicken or turkey for red meats, using low fat or skim milk, and making or buying low fat salad dressings.

Fat is an important part of our diets, and necessary for good nutrition and good health. But excessive fat in our diets is a definite health risk. To find out more about dietary fat, about the health risks it represents and tips on how to reduce it in your diet, write for a free copy of "All About Fat and Cancer Risk." To receive your copy please send a stamped, addressed, business-sized envelope to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. FC, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Insurances For Arthritics Are Covered In Book

Everyone needs adequate insurance coverage to help protect against financial loss. But some — those with arthritis, for example — may have difficulty getting health and life insurance. To help address those problems, the Arthritis foundation has published a booklet entitled "Guide to Insurance for People with Arthritis." It is available free from the Minnesota chapter of the Arthritis foundation.

The booklet describes some types of health, disability and life insurance. It compares several kinds of private health insurance, such as comprehensive health insurance, health maintenance organizations, and medicare supplemental insurance. It also describes two government programs: Medicare and Medicaid.

Consumer tips for examining private health insurance, disability insurance and life insurance policies are also given, as well as a key to many insurance terms.

More information about this booklet may be had by calling the Arthritis foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1276. Callers may request free copies of the booklet to be sent by mail.

U of M Creates Region's First Biomedical Center

University of Minnesota President Kenneth H. Keller has announced the creation of the region's first biomedical engineering center, one of only five in the nation.

The center will unite the university's medical and engineering faculty with the state's more than 300 medical products companies. The 33,000 square-foot center will be located on the east bank of the university's Minneapolis campus.

A $2 million cornerstone gift for the center will be donated by the Medtronic foundation. The university will provide another $2 million in matched funds and has committed to raise an additional $2 million from private sources. The foundation gift is part of the university's $300 million fund-raising effort, the Minnesota Campaign.

Half of the foundation donation is for the center's directorship, which will be called the Earl E. Bakken chair. Bakken, a university graduate and founder of the Fridley-based Medtronic corporation, developed the world's first wearable, external, battery-powered pacemaker.

"We are committed to creating an internationally recognized biomedical engineering center that will serve as a magnet for existing and future biomedical engineering technologies," Keller said.

A nationwide search will be conducted for the director, who is expected to be named next winter.

The study of cardiovascular disease will be a major focus of the center. A joint university-industry council will determine other areas of emphasis, which may include research and development of such devices as implantable hearing prostheses, nerve stimulators and auditory-visual stimulators.

Sixty-one per cent of women with children under 18 years of age are working or seeking work, including more than half (52 per cent) of those with children younger than 6, according to "Meeting the Challenges of the 80s," a publication of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Hanson Heritage Farm Tops DHIA For Two Months

Hanson Heritage dairy farm led the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association (DHIA) for both October and September, according to the report released by Jerry Hamre, supervisor of herds for the county association. The herd of 59 cows averaged 58.2 pounds of milk and 1.66 pounds of butterfat in October and 56.6 pounds of milk and 1.75 pounds of fat in September.

Lyle Swanson herd was in second place in October with an average of 50.5 poinds of milk and 1.99 pounds of butterfat. Mylo Carlson herd was in third place at 48.3 and 1.93, followed by Gene Nelson, 47.1 and 1.75; Walter Bros, 45.1 and 1.64; Arden Lundeen, 44.6 and 1.76; Warren Hamrick and Sons, 43.9 and 1.80; Pearson Bros., 42.9 and 1.60; Marvin Koop, 42.4 and 1.66; and Merle & Perry Lundeen, 41.3 and 1.36.

Warren Hamrick and Sons were in second place in the September record period with an average of 54.2 points of milk and 2.15 pounds of butterfat, followed by Lyle Swanson with 54.1 and 2.08.

Other top herds in September were Duane Krohn, 53.5 and 1.9; Walter Bros., 46.1 and 1.71; Mylo Carlson, 45.5 and 1.84; Pearson Bros., 43.4 and 1.68; Gene Nelson, 42.2 and 1.66; Merle & Perry Lundeen, 39 and 1.34; and Arden Lundeen, 38 and 1.55.

Hamre points out that herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since the amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all cows in the herd to give the farmer a record of the herd's earning power for the month. If there are many dry cows, the average may be low although the cows in production are high producers.

During both October and September there were 22 herds on DHIA test and one on owner-sampler test with the association.

MN Legal Aid To Protect, Advocate For Mentally Ill

Minnesota Mental health law project, a legal assistance project of the legal aid society of Minneapolis, has been designated by Governor Perpich and the National Institute of Mental Health to implement in Minnesota the new protection and advocacy act of 1986, announced Jeremy Lane, Executive Director of the Legal Aid Society.

The act, which became law in May of this year, requires each state to set up a system to protect and advocate for the rights of mentally ill persons, and to investigate incidents of their abuse or neglect. "Our project was chosen to pursue this charge because of its tract record of representation and advocacy for Minnesotans who are mentally ill," Lane said in making the announcement.

Susan Lentz, supervising attorney of the Minnesota mental health law project, said the designation is important because it means that even in a time of budget cutting, there is commitment to protect both the rights of mentally ill persons and the role of advocacy in ensuring adequate and appropriate services.

"We have represented people who have been denied needed mental health services, persons who have encountered discrimination on the basis of disability, and hospital residents who have experienced abusive treatment. We will continue this work and hope the new funds allow us to place advocates in several locations around the state to increase the impact of our work in Minnesota," Lentz said.

The project seeks volunteers to serve on its board. Persons who want information about its services and priorities are encouraged to write the Minnesota Mental Health Law Project at 222 Grain Exchange Building, 323 4th Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 55415.

The Minnesota Mental Health Law Project was established in 1983 with funds from the McKnight Foundation. In June, the Foundation gave it additional funding for the 1987-88 biennial.

Hanson Heritage Farm Tops DHIA For Two Months

Hanson Heritage dairy farm led the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association (DHIA) for both October and September, according to the report released by Jerry Hamre, supervisor of herds for the county association. The herd of 59 cows averaged 58.2 pounds of milk and 1.66 pounds of butterfat in October and 56.6 pounds of milk and 1.75 pounds of fat in September.

Lyle Swanson herd was in second place in October with an average of 50.5 poinds of milk and 1.99 pounds of butterfat. Mylo Carlson herd was in third place at 48.3 and 1.93, followed by Gene Nelson, 47.1 and 1.75; Walter Bros, 45.1 and 1.64; Arden Lundeen, 44.6 and 1.76; Warren Hamrick and Sons, 43.9 and 1.80; Pearson Bros., 42.9 and 1.60; Marvin Koop, 42.4 and 1.66; and Merle & Perry Lundeen, 41.3 and 1.36.

Warren Hamrick and Sons were in second place in the September record period with an average of 54.2 points of milk and 2.15 pounds of butterfat, followed by Lyle Swanson with 54.1 and 2.08.

Other top herds in September were Duane Krohn, 53.5 and 1.9; Walter Bros., 46.1 and 1.71; Mylo Carlson, 45.5 and 1.84; Pearson Bros., 43.4 and 1.68; Gene Nelson, 42.2 and 1.66; Merle & Perry Lundeen, 39 and 1.34; and Arden Lundeen, 38 and 1.55.

Hamre points out that herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since the amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all cows in the herd to give the farmer a record of the herd's earning power for the month. If there are many dry cows, the average may be low although the cows in production are high producers.

During both October and September there were 22 herds on DHIA test and one on owner-sampler test with the association.

MN Legal Aid To Protect, Advocate For Mentally Ill

Minnesota Mental health law project, a legal assistance project of the legal aid society of Minneapolis, has been designated by Governor Perpich and the National Institute of Mental Health to implement in Minnesota the new protection and advocacy act of 1986, announced Jeremy Lane, Executive Director of the Legal Aid Society.

The act, which became law in May of this year, requires each state to set up a system to protect and advocate for the rights of mentally ill persons, and to investigate incidents of their abuse or neglect. "Our project was chosen to pursue this charge because of its tract record of representation and advocacy for Minnesotans who are mentally ill," Lane said in making the announcement.

Susan Lentz, supervising attorney of the Minnesota mental health law project, said the designation is important because it means that even in a time of budget cutting, there is commitment to protect both the rights of mentally ill persons and the role of advocacy in ensuring adequate and appropriate services.

"We have represented people who have been denied needed mental health services, persons who have encountered discrimination on the basis of disability, and hospital residents who have experienced abusive treatment. We will continue this work and hope the new funds allow us to place advocates in several locations around the state to increase the impact of our work in Minnesota," Lentz said.

The project seeks volunteers to serve on its board. Persons who want information about its services and priorities are encouraged to write the Minnesota Mental Health Law Project at 222 Grain Exchange Building, 323 4th Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 55415.

The Minnesota Mental Health Law Project was established in 1983 with funds from the McKnight Foundation. In June, the Foundation gave it additional funding for the 1987-88 biennial.

EDITORIAL OPINION

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Reading Between The Lines

One of the hazards of editorial writing lies in the selection of words and terms used to describe a situation or circumstance or attempt to make a point. A second hazard is that the most carefully selected vocabulary and sentence structure will be interpreted differently from the intent of the writer. We refer to the latter hazard as "reading between the lines", finding more in interpretation than is actually written.

In last Monday's edition of the Times, we editorialized on some of the situations surrounding events involving the Falls Day Activity center (DAC) and associated agencies. We criticized the county board of commissioners for withholding funds for services which the DAC continued to provide under its contract, and we also took issue with the board's request of the DAC to merge with the Occupational Development center (ODC).

At least that's what we thought we had done.

Persons involved with or close to the ODC, however, believed the criticism was leveled at them and the center. They were upset with the paragraph in the editorial in which the ODC was mentioned and they told us so. That's perfectly O.K. We don't mind if people take issue with our editorial opinions or comments, or even if the statement of those opinions may upset some people. That comes with the territory for editorial writers. What we don't like is having our comments be upsetting to people who we don't intend or expect to upset.

Here's what we said in the paragraph of Monday's editorial which was upsetting to ODC people: "Also, the request that the DAC merge its operations with the local Occupational Development center — coming when it does — can scarcely be considered coincidental. It is opportunism at its worst, and smacks of the town playboy waiting at the doorstep for the young widow to return from her husband's funeral."

Apparently the ODC proponents cast themselves in the role of the "playboy" and thought the editorial made it appear they were waiting on the doorstep. A more careful reading of the paragraph for what it says should remove that concern.

The "request that the DAC merge" as referred to in that paragraph was made by the county commissioners in a written memo distributed at a meeting of the county commissioners with the DAC board. It was not initiated by the ODC, and nothing in the editorial paragraph indicates that it was.

We thought it was inappropriate for the county board to make that type of request at that particular time — seemingly attempting to take advantage of a situation where the DAC board appeared especially vulnerable — and that was the intent of our analogy. We would have hoped that most readers accepted the statement as it was written.

In thus explaining our intent, we are now likely to further upset our county commissioners who, Lord knows, really do try hard to do a good job and probably don't need any more problems right now. But we told the ODC people that we would attempt to clarify what we meant to say, and what we meant to say was that we thought the county board was being unduly opportunistic, not the ODC.

We hope that's clear, but we can't stop people from reading between the lines.

Petroleum Pop Quiz

If you think you might like to know a little bit more about petroleum than when to fill your heating fuel and automobile gas tanks, try to answer a few of these questions provided by the Minnesota Petroleum council. The answers listed below should improve your knowledge.

(1) How much in state taxes does the petroleum industry provide to Minnesota? (a) $402.9 million; (b) $51 million; (c) $105.6 million.

(2) How many gallons of gasoline do Minnesota drivers use each year? (a) 500 million; (b) 5.5 billion; (c) 2.1 billion.

(3) How much heating oil is used for residential heating in Minnesota during a normal nine-month heating season? (a) between five and 10 million gallons; (b) 150-170 million gallons; (c) 4.0 million barrels.

(4) How much oil is produced in Minnesota each year? (a) 0 barrels; (b) 5,000,000 barrels; (c) 500 barrels.

(5) Where does the bulk of the crude oil used for Minnesota petroleum products come from? (a) North Dakota; (b) OPEC countries; (c) Canada.

(6) How much of the price of each gallon of gasoline purchased in Minnesota goes for state and federal excise taxes? (a) 17 cents; (b) 26 cents; (c) 10 cents.

ANSWERS:

(1) (a) The industry generates $402.9 million annually in state corporate, personal income, personal property and gasoline taxes.

(2) (c) Minnesota drivers use 2.1 billion gallons of fuel while driving 34.9 billion vehicle miles.

(3) (b and c) At 42 gallons per barrel, both answers are correct. Approximately 16 billion gallons of fuel oil are used nationwide during a normal heating season.

(4) (a) There are no producing oil wells in Minnesota.

(5) (c) 45 per cent comes from Canada, 25 to 30 per cent from North Dakota, 20 to 25 per cent from other domestic sources and five per cent from non-Canadian foreign sources.

(6) (b) Minnesota's state gas tax is 17 cents and the federal excise tax on gasoline is nine cents for a total of 26 cents. National average for state gas taxes is 13 cents per gallon.

Sink Rather Than Save

There is belief among many that the election of many more Democrats to the U.S. Congress in the November elections will result in greater support for and probably passage of the Harkin-Gephardt farm bill. One of those who thinks that would be a tragic mistake is Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau.

"Efforts to change current farm policy in favor of mandatory supply management would sink the family farm rather than save it," he said. "The drive to change the farm bill is a popular move because of the frustrations felt on the farm. But . . . this type of approach would not raise net farm income, which is what we need to look at."

The bill introduced by Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri calls for government-mandated acreage cutbacks in return for arbitrary set higher prices.

"In order to achieve the higher prices set forth in the proposal," Lokensgard says, "a supply management program would require the idling of at least 35 per cent of the nation's corn acres, 50 per cent of the wheat, 40 per cent of the soybeans, 50 per cent of the rice and 60 per cent of the cotton. Such severe cutbacks would virtually shut down rural America by decreasing the need for goods, services, products and labor."

The Farm Bureau president says the bill would steer U.S. policy away from the market-oriented approach of the 1985 farm bill just when it is starting to have an effect.

"Many provisions of the farm bill went into effect September 1 and already they are making a difference," he said. "Other countries are already talking about cutting back on their production because of our farm bill. Exports have begun to make a comeback. The important point is, for the first time in several decades, we have the opportunity to change to a market-oriented policy. To go back now would be counterproductive. And moving toward more government involvement is certainly not the answer."

Russ Schwandt, former Minnesota commissioner of agriculture and president of the Minnesota Agri-Growth council, points out that "it's apparent that we cannot afford, as a nation, to adopt any major legislation without taking into full account the overall impact that the law will have on the entire domestic economy."

He points out several areas of consideration published in an official USDA research periodical and distributed by the Fertilizer Institute. They include the following:

(1) It would take idling of 55 per cent of the land normally used to grow major commodities to bring commodity prices to the levels desired by the Harkin bill;

(2) There would be a decline of 23 per cent of the agriculture sector's contribution to the U.S. gross national product, which would amount to about $16.2 billion per year;

(3) Employment in the farm production sector would decline by 21 per cent, or about 553,000 jobs;

(4) Employment in the agricultural sector of the economy would decline by 370,000 jobs, about 18 per cent of present levels;

(5) There would be a loss of $43 billion to the gross national product from the processors, marketers and consumers' present contribution to the annual GNP; and

(6) The contribution to the GNP from the agricultural input industry would decline by $12 billion per year.

Interesting Opinions:

"There is simply too much grain in the world today for existing markets. It is not just a problem of too much production in the United States. Production has been rising in other parts of the world faster than here, due to the Green Revolution that has turned nations such as China and India into food exporters and due to subsidies that have turned Western Europe from a food importer to a major exporter in competition with the United States. These are conditions the United States cannot change alone, but it can adjust its own farm programs to better suit the new realities. How to do that should be the focus of a new national debate on farm policy."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Many communities in our northern plains region are experiencing a great deal of controversy over their selection by the Air Force as possible sites for components of their Over the Horizon Backscatter Central Radar System (OTH-B, CRS). Opposition to the project is nearly uniform in the region, except for in the Thief River Falls area, where there is a significant urban component of support.

The resulting rural-urban split is a common occurance in public works projects where one area, rural in this case, must pay the costs (loss of farmland, taxbase, distruption to the local infrastructure) and the other area, urban, could expect to receive the majority of the benefits (the possibility of jobs and local materials purchases). Polarization of the community is thus to be expected, especially since the possibility of short-term gain from an external source would require a reduction in the local farm land base.

Although the rural economy is presently depressed, primary agricultural production is the foundation on which nearly all our cities on the northern plains are based. Income from that production has a multiplier effect which makes essentially service communities like Thief River Falls possible. Any permanent reduction in that economic base, as the OTH-B, CRS would require, should not be taken lightly, especially since the economic benefits resulting from the project would be comparatively short lived.

In addition to the local socio-economic effects, this system, through its use of extreme low frequency (ELF) modulation of its primary FM modulation, has the potential for adversely impacting a very large population base; in fact, almost all of the 48 contiguous states, several Canadian provinces and Mexico are contained with its range and antenna pattern.

Most biological systems, human beings included, are extremely sensitive to ELF radio frequency radiation (RFR). Dr. W. Ross Adey has discovered a disturbing effect in the 9-35 hertz (cycles per second) range (OTH-B would use a 10-60 hertz range) of RFR modulation. His experiments have shown a calcium ion efflux in brain and nerve cells exposed to short-duration, low-power ELF modulated RFR. This effect, which is carrier frequency independent, inhibits the ability of central nervous systems to function normally. Other researchers have discovered other negative RFR direct effects, such as immune system suppression, disorientation, interference with the metobolism; however, the Air Force has focused its health studies on the one effect which is generally not a problem in the short-wave bands OTH-B would use: RFR inductive heating (i.e., the microwave oven effect). That is why the Air Force says that they do not expect any adverse health risks from the use of the system.

If the Central Radar System becomes operational, it in effect will become the first long-term study of continuous exposure of a population to ELF modulated RFR. Perhaps it could be argued that this is a sacrifice required of us for our national security needs. That may be valid for the east and west coast OTH-B sites, which will give the Air Force over-the-ocean surveillance capability it doesn't presently have, but the CRS would simply overlap those plus existing systems without offering additional coverage. It offers risks without rewards. The General Accounting Office, perhaps recognizing the above plus criticizing the system for its vulnerability and obsolescent technology, has recommended to Congress that it not fund the Central Radar System.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
-s- Fred Schumacher

WE'RE KEEPING FEDERAL EMPLOYEES IN A GREAT STATE OF HEALTH.

Life in our part of Minnesota isn't always easy. But it has its compensations. Like a day of cross-country skiing on a secluded forest trail, followed by an evening around the fireplace. With so many reasons to get outside and enjoy winter, it's no wonder we've earned a nationwide reputation for healthy living.

Being close to your family doctor helps, too. Around here, you're likely to run into your doctor in church, at the hardware store or in the stands at a high school hockey game — not just in his office. So it's easier to talk to him about health problems, and take care of them early. Which is what preventive health care is all about.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield, we think that kind of closeness between you and your doctor means better health care. In fact, we built HMO Minnesota around it.

When you join HMO Minnesota, you choose your own doctor from a network of over 1,000 participating local physicians, all with their own family practices. And you and your doctor make your health care decisions. One small monthly fee covers most of your health care needs in full, including unlimited visits to your family doctor.

HMO Minnesota is a member of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield health care family. We've been keeping people like you in a great state of health for more than 50 years. For more information, see your health benefits officer or call our Moorhead office at 218-233-8691 or 1 800 523-6087.

TIMES Around The Region

Giving Thanks

Warren — For the past 38 years, the Warren Sheaf has printed the winning entry of Warren elementary school's Thanksgiving poetry contest on the front page of the Thanksgiving issue of the paper. This year's poem was written by Steve Sedlacek, sixth grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sedlacek:

When I think of Thanksgiving past,
It seems like time goes by so fast.
I'm glad there is a time of year,
To remember to be thankful for all
I hold dear.
It's easy to get caught up in every day living,
And forget about my family and friends who are so giving.
I want them all to know, even though it may not always show,
That their friendship and love to me means a lot.
And on this Thanksgiving time, I'm thankful for them and all
I've got.

Good Way To Say Thanks

Red Lake Falls — The city of Red Lake Falls celebrated American Education Week by having their annual teachers' tea. The tea is not just for teachers, however, but for all employees of the school district. This was the 30th year the teachers' tea has been held in Red Lake Falls.

Sounds Like Fun For All

Newfolden — American Education Week was celebrated differently in Newfolden this year. The faculty treated Marshall County Central students to a Student Appreciation Night with a dance, games, door prizes and lunch for students in grades 9 through 12.

No Good Reason

Bagley — Chester Hesby, 59, has won his case against the city of Bagley for unjustly discharging him from his job at the municipal liquor store this summer. According to David G. Schueppert of Powell, Lang and Schueppert law offices of Bemidji, if the city cannot meet the burden of proving that Hesby was incompetent or that there was misconduct of substantial nature on his part, he must be returned to the job that he has held for the past 10 years. In his standard of review, Schueppert said it was never intended that a change in political office holders should affect Hesby's position. Hesby maintained that his discharge was influenced by the election of Myron Cartwright as mayor of Bagley, and prior to that time he had received no complaints from the city council.

Love That Name

Baudette — An extension home group in Baudette is named the "Ageless And Crafty" group. They held a regular meeting lately with 13 ageless and crafty members present and three ageless and crafty guests, and had a contest on the noses of famous people. (Wouldn't you like to "nose" what that was all about?)

How Sweet It Is

Lake Bronson — Users of the North Kittson rural water system may feel free to enjoy their pure, sweet water from now on. Department of Natural Resources, Minnesota Health Department and Minnesota Pollution Control Agency officials have tested and checked, drilling test wells, analyzing and sampling all around the area, and have concluded that there is no problem with the water in the area. The question of possible pollution was raised because of the location of a former landfill dump site now in Lake Bronson state park, that was used by area residents many years ago. North Kittson board members were concerned many years ago. North Kittson board members were concerned that possible hazardous wastes had been dumped there and might contaminate wells.

Mini-Musicians

Red Lake Falls — The fifth grade band of the Red Lake Falls elementary school, led by Bruce Piersol, treated Peppermint Square visitors to a mini-concert November 20. The students have been practicing for only 10 weeks.

Off To Work We Go

Red Lake Falls — The Red Lake Falls school board has approved a new program of work experience for the handicapped and disabled. The object of the program is to increase the employability of handicapped or disadvantaged students and encourage them to enter post-secondary occupational programs. Doug Blanz, school counselor, said the program "basically prepares students for the 'real world' and helps them set goals. Hopefully, these goals will include furthering their education and eventually settling into a career." Students entering the program must be at least 16 years old and may enter on the referral of a child study team made up of faculty and special needs instructors from the school. Students will work about 10 hours a week and attend a one-hour class each day. The job training employees will adhere to a strict set of rules for the work done by the student to be non-paid. The program currently consists of five Red Lake Falls and one Oklee student.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY Unit 117 of Thief River Falls presented a flag this week to Johnson's Riverside Boarding home as part of the unit's Americanism program. Gloria Lee, Americanism chairman, presented the large flag to Paul Johnson, owner-manager of the home for the mentally handicapped.

To Cut Or Not To Cut

Hallock — Kittson county commissioners and county employees began formal negotiations at the commissioners' meeting November 14. The most important question to be decided is when to implement the new comparable worth program — January 1 or when state law demands it to be in effect in August. When the system is put into effect, some employees whose salaries are under the minimum wage for their classification will be brought up to the minimum, at least, but some employees may be above the maximum wage allotted for their positions and will have to take a cut in salary. The commissioners stated they would study the costs of implementing the program and sit down with each department head to discuss their recommendations for individual employees before making their decisions.

Tip O' The Hat To Two

Strandquist — A fire that started in decorative wood casing around a chimney at the Lumberjack Cafe in Strandquist was contained by fire extinguishers. Earl Hougard and Larry Johnson had noticed smoke coming from the building and immediately utilized fire extinguishers to contain the blaze. Karlstad volunteer firemen were called to the scene, but they had little to do but put out the original fire and check and clean the cafe. The extinguishers had kept the fire in check, preventing it from travelling to the attic area where it would have been considerably more serious.

Fatal Collision

Shooks — A head-on collision took the life of a Kelliher woman November 20, when the car she was driving collided with a Kenworth semi-truck on highway 72 near Shooks. Alva Lindquist died in the accident, and her daughter, Lorraine, who was a passenger, received leg injuries and was admitted to the Bemidji hospital. The driver of the semi, William Enns, Winkler, Manitoba, was uninjured.

Total Loss

Badger — The home of Doyle and Martha Vatnsdal was completely destroyed by fire November 19. No one was home at the time of the blaze, but the family lost their two pet dogs, who were inside the house. Donations are being taken by the Badger State Bank, in care of Larry Rislov.

Thanks-Giving Spirit

Baudette — Area businesses and individuals contributed Thanksgiving dinner items so that 35 Baudette families would have a happy Thanksgiving feast. Lake of the Woods food shelf volunteers were getting ready to deliver the goodies to recipients before the holiday last week.

MFU Delegates Adopt Two Farm Resolutions

Delegates to the 45th annual Minnesota Farmers Union state convention in St. Paul, November 23 and 24, adopted resolutions calling for state and federal policies to address farm income and credit concerns.

On the convention's final day, delegates approved two special orders of business detailing separate six-point plans to address farm income and credit problems. In the first special order, titled "Farm Income-Credit Crisis," the delegates state: "Due to the lack of net farm income, the credit crisis in rural America continues to accelerate. Total assets of the United States farmers have dropped by $205 billion since 1981 and will drop again in 1986. Since the state of Minnesota has put forth a notable effort in programs to assist family farmers and the Farm Credit system was organized by farmers on a cooperative basis to serve their credit needs, we call on our state and federal leaders for the following actions:

"(1) To maintain and strengthen the 1986 Minnesota Omnibus Farm act;

"(2) To support a federal mediation program and debt restructuring program;

"(3) To regain farmer ownership and control of the Farm Credit system;

"(4) To insist on national and state redirection of agricultural research and development conducted by land grant universities, government agencies and the private sector. The direction should be away from overproduction and the mistaken notion that "bigger is better" toward farming production practices and marketing techniques which enhance farm income for family farmers;

"(5) To provide for debt restructuring and forebearance by the Farmers Home administration and the Farm Credit systems, and

"(6) To support with the interest of family farmers the orderly disposition of land recently acquired by government agencies, financial institutions and insurance companies.

In the second special order, titled "Farm Income," the delegates stated: "Net farm income in the United States, after having dropped by $7 billion in 1985, is expected to decline another $3 billion in 1986. The 1985 farm bill has spelled disaster for America's family farmers by lowering commodity prices and thus driving farmers and rural communities to the brink of economic disaster. Projections indicate farm trade could show a deficit and the future export picture is dismal while the government is going to spend $30 to $35 billion this year on farm programs and our family farmers and rural communities continue to decline. In order to correct this agricultural crisis we call for the passage of emergency federal farm legislation which would include the following points:

"(1) International discussions with leading agricultural producing countries on the problems of agricultural production and distribution;

"(2) A mandatory supply management program with production based on domestic consumption, existing carryover stocks and required reserves;

"(3) Loan rates set at the cost of production plus a reasonable profit;

"(4) A daily base quota plan with increased support levels;

"(5) Orderly marketing through the use of marketing certificates, and

"(6) Targeting of program benefits to small and medium-sized farmers based on the number of bushels and a limit on the total amount of CCC loans that any farmer could receive in one year.

Pioneers Out-Score Northmen 95-73

An alumni team staffed mostly by a collection of guards from years gone by gave the Northland Community College men's basketball team a good run for its money Saturday before faltering down the stretch when the Pioneers pulled away to a 95-73 season-opening win.

It was a compliment to the caliber of players on past Northland teams, and no knock on the current Pioneers, that the alumni were within 77-69 with 4:07 remaining in the game. Northland met the challenge, though, by out-scoring the tiring challengers 18-4 over the final 4½ minutes.

There were 11 alumni on hand, and they all scored, led by Dwayne Kimbrough with 16 points, Matt Fontes with 12 and Dave Spilde with 10. The alumni talent showed in the late-arriving Fontes, a two-year starter at the Division II level with the University of North Dakota after his two-year stay in Thief River Falls. He didn't arrive until just 5:40 remained in the first half, and Kimbrough, who along with Fontes represented the only thing over guard-size on the alumni roster, checked in just before game time.

"They (alumni) were pretty short before Kimbrough and Fontes arrived," acknowledged Northland coach Chet Engelman, "but they were all good guards. Look at (Nick) Neibauer (a member of the 1967-68 and 1968-69 Northland teams). He's the oldest one out there, and our kids are coming off saying they can't stay with him."

But Engelman wasn't down on his current 13-man outfit. They all scored, and he got 17 points out of football star, now turned basketball standout, Anthony McCullough, 14 points out of guard Greg Campbell, the only player back from last year's state tournament runner-up team, and 12 points from Alvarado's burly John Honek.

"We looked a little sloppy," admitted Engelman. "We forced things at the start; everybody wanted to be shooters. But I think we'll be okay. It was a fun game, and a good test for us to show just how much we have to learn before this weekend."

JOHN LOGAN, who stands 6-11, was head and shoulders above the rest of the crowd as the Northland Community College center from East Grand Forks Sacred Heart took a first-half shot against the alumni in Saturday's 1986-87 season opener for the Pioneers. Matt Fontes and Karl Lisburg of the alumni and John Honek of the Pioneers looked on. Northland won 95-73.

The Pioneers start with the real schedule Saturday and Sunday when they'll participate in the Austin Invitational, and will stop in Willmar long enough Sunday for an afternoon game before returning to Thief River Falls.

The alumni started with a bang Saturday night when Doug Engelman, Chet's nephew, and Spilde hit from the three-point range implemented in college basketball this winter.

Northland didn't take the lead until Ray Davis finished off a fast break with 10:31 remaining, making it 10-8. Kimbrough, a Division II-caliber player himself, tied the game at 10-10 with a pair of free throws, but the alumni were never able to get the lead back from the Pioneers.

McCullough, a 6-4, 255-pound strongman who will be playing college football at a four-year school next fall, scored three consecutive baskets in a 30-second span near the midway mark of the first half as Northland opened up a 28-18 cushion.

But the alumni answered with an 8-1 scoring streak of their own to pull within 29-28 when Maurice Hendricks scored from the side with 6:58 remaining in the first half.

The next nine points, though, came from the Pioneers, including a free throw by John Honek's twin brother Joe, a base line drive by Thief River Falls' Kevin Nelson, a rebound basket by Joe Honek, and back-to-back baskets by Campbell, for another 10-point spread, 38-28. It was 48-37 at halftime.

Northland maintained a 10-to-16-point lead through most of the second half before a 9-2 alumni surge made it a suddenly-close 77-69 game, increasing the crowd's interest in the entertaining affair. Doug Engelman's underhand lay-up off a drive through a crowded lane, and a free throw by Fontes had the alumni within eight points with 4:47 to play.

The alumni bubble burst, though, when Calvin Hayes scored on a drive, Davis sank two free throws, Randy Henrickson of Goodridge added a pair of free throws and McCullough connected from short range for an 85-69 spread in exactly two minutes.

Spilde interrupted the Northland outburst by scoring from underneath, but a free throw by Henrickson and another short jumber by McCullough supplied the Pioneers with their biggest lead of the game, 88-71, with two minutes to play.

And the point spread got bigger before it was done as the Pioneers pulled away from the Northmen — the school's athletic team name before it was switched this year.

"It was a fun game," repeated Chet Engelman. "I think everybody enjoyed it."

DEFENSIVE EFFORT by Angie Enerson prevented Tami Sorter of the alumni from getting off a base line shot during the Pioneers' season-opening college basketball game Saturday in Thief River Falls. Jody Pahlen (33) of Northland watched the play. The Pioneers won the game 84-48.

NCC Women Defeat Alumni Squad 84-48

It was a little rough around the edges, admitted Tom Neibauer, but the second-year Northland Community women's basketball coach liked what he saw Saturday as the Pioneers kicked off their 1985-86 season with an 84-48 win over an alumni squad.

"We've got some raw talent," acknowledged Neibauer. "They didn't look too well-coached tonight, but we'll start 'em Monday."

Monday (today) is also when six-member Northland squad that was on hand Saturday is expected to increase in size to 10-11 players with the late addition of student-athletes enrolling for winter quarter classes.

"There's certainly nothing wrong with the ones who were there Saturday. They all scored, led by Junelle Lorsung of Waubun with 24 points, Angie Enerson of Erskine with 20, Sheila Jaeger of Plummer with 17 and Jody Pahlen of Plummer with 12. Pahlen, the lone player back from last year's team and a bonafide Minnesota Community College Conference standout, kept a low profile during the game, played against many of her 1985-86 Northland teammates, while Lorsung and Enerson showed their stuff. When the competition gets real, suggested Neibauer, Pahlen will get her points.

The 84 points scored in the two 20-minute halves of 30-second clock basketball shows the Pioneers can put the ball in the basket, but Neibauer said that figure was a bit inflated. "The (alumni) defense was a little soft," he smiled.

Former Northland basketball coach Deb Jacobson, who handed the reigns over to Neibauer last winter, coached the alumni, who had five players back from last year's team, and nine all together. Brenda Dahl of Newfolden and Angie Sinn of Thief River Falls led the alumni with 16 and 10 points, respectively.

As is the case in these alumni things, the contest was hardly intense. In fact, the alumni flooded the court with all nine players in the final 45 seconds without a whistle from the officials.

But the alumni did keep pace for a while. The lead changed hands six times and there was a tie at 12-12 with 12:38 remaining in the first half before Northland began to pull away. Patty Odberg hit a 15-foot jumper to break the tie and the Pioneers were never caught. Lorsung followed with a fast break lay-up and a basket off an offensive rebound for an 18-12 lead with 11:01 left in the first half. Diane Haven of the alumni scored on a drive, but Enerson sank a free throw, then came up with a steal and a length-of-the-court fast break lay-up to make it 21-14 with 10:12 to play.

Northland out-scored the alumni 30-13 the last 12½ minutes of the first half for a 42-25 cushion at intermission. The winded alumni, presented with a 4-on-0 breakaway simply because they were out of position at the time, needed five shots to score before Dahl finally put the ball in the hoop with 1:27 to play in the half. That was one of only four baskets the alumni produced in the final eight minutes of the half.

It was 66-36 midway through the second half when the alumni went through a five-minute scoreless spell.

Overall, it wasn't a bad way for the Pioneers to open the season, and the alumni seemed to have fun, despite the lopsided final. "Things are on an upswing here," said Neibauer, whose team will face its first MCCC opponent Wednesday when Northland hosts Rainy River at 7 p.m.

Most of northwestern Minnesota took pride in the fact that Argyle emerged as nine-man state champion Saturday in the finals of the 1986 Minnesota state high school football playoffs at the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

The Section 8 champion Eagles were easy 32-7 winners over Silver Lake to start the five-game Prep Bowl V finals Saturday morning.

Congratulations go out to head coach Warren Keller and his team. Even the keenest Argyle rivals turned into fans as the Eagles performed as the only northern Minnesota representative among the ten Prep Bowl participants.

There's a great deal of admiration throughout the area for Keller and the programs he has developed in both football and basketball which make them the envy of even the larger schools in northwestern Minnesota.

Northwestern Minnesota used to take an annual beating at state tournament time in most sports, a fact that was played up by both area and Twin Cities media. That has changed dramatically in recent years, however. In addition to the Argyle state championship, Region 8A and Region 8AA representatives Win-E-Mac and Moorhead both had runner-up state tournament finishes earlier this fall in volleyball. In fact, it was the second straight runner-up performance by the Spuds.

Last year, Bemidji won consolation honors at the state hockey tournament, Norman County West boys were consolation champions at the Class A state basketball tournament, East Grand Forks girls finished second in the Class A state basketball tournament, Mahnomen was a runner-up in the Class B state football playoffs and Norman County West was a runner-up in the nine-man state football playoffs.

That's a pretty good representation from northwestern Minnesota.

Miscellaneous

+ John Oren of the Baudette Region, publicist for the North Border Conference for high school volleyball and basketball, points out that three North Border basketball players have shots at becoming members of the prestigious 1,000-point club this winter. Jodi Foss of Marshall County Central currently has 758 points after netting 15 in a season-opening 43-40 loss to the Thief River Falls girls last week. She will have to average 13.5 points per game over the final 19 games, points out Oren, to reach 1,000. Greg Pulczinski of Greenbush starts the 1986-87 season with 693 points, and will have to average just over 16 points per game to join the 1,000-point club. A long-shot prospect is Reed Engelstad of Grygla, who had 589 career points. He'll have to score 21.6 points per game this winter to hit 1,000.

The U.S. Department of Labor's Divison of Cooperative Labor-Management Programs works with national unions, trade associations, productivity and quality work life centers, and other organizations and government agencies in promoting joint labor-management solutions to workplace problems.

NORTHLAND GUARD Scott Groven found his path to the basket blocked by alumni defender Matt Fontes during Saturday's men's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Randy Henrickson of the Pioneers and Doug Engelman of the alumni watched the action. Northland won its 1986-87 season opener 95-73.

1986-87 High School Hockey Season Underway . . .

Prowlers Prepare For Opener

Thief River Falls, after a late-morning scrimmage against Roseau in the Sports Arena, edged Alexandria 3-2 Saturday in the annual preseason Section 8 high school hockey jamboree, played for the first time this year at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena.

Eighteen of the 19 Section 8 schools were on hand for the jamboree, an event staged in Thief River Falls for years before the site was switched to East Grand Forks this year by a vote of the coaches.

The two 11-minute periods of jamboree action isn't a true test of ability, acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, but, together with the earlier scrimmage against Roseau, the competition helps the Prowlers prepare for their 1986-87 season opener Saturday at Grand Forks Central.

"We're certainly not disappointed in our performances," said Grand after the two Saturday match-ups. "Obviously at this point of the season we've got plenty of work to do, but we saw some positive things."

Top two lines utilized by the Prowlers Saturday will remain intact for the opener, said Grand, meaning Jim Breiland, Scott Novak and Blair Lund will skate as the Prowlers' No. 1 line, while Bob Geatz, Marty Levin and Jeff Grand go as the No. 2 line. All six forwards are seniors.

Sophomore Rick Looker is set as the Prowlers' third line center, but it's not certain who will be his wings. The candidates are Chris Solheim, a senior, and juniors Chad Gunderson, Sean Krepp, Jason Bronkhorst and Aaron Wedul.

The Prowlers will go with four defensemen — senior Dave Johnson and junior John Dondelinger as one unit, with juniors Bill Dicken and Jason Lee as a second pair.

Junior Shayne Anderson starts in goal, while three netminders vie for the back-up role — senior Nathaniel Peres, junior Paul Antonenko and sophomore Kent Holmes.

The Prowlers have some top Section 8-caliber players, noted Grand, but whether they have enough of them to challenge the likes of preseason favorites Warroad, Bemidji and Roseau remains to be seen.

Novak and Lund are recognized as the Prowlers' top two forwards after strong junior seasons, and Breiland joins them to give Thief River Falls a line that should be equal with any in Section 8, according to Grand.

Johnson is a third-year regular on defense, and Dicken handled the job last year as a sophomore. Those two are as big as any defensemen in Section 8, and they'll have to be leaders on the blueline for the Prowlers to be successful, pointed out Grand.

Anderson earned the starting job in goal midway through his sophomore season, flashing signs of becoming a potentially outstanding high school goalie. If he lives up to that potential the Prowlers will be solid in an area that is obviously vital to a hockey team's well-being.

A concern, though, is the Prowlers' depth. They'll need offensive production from more than just their No. 1 line to be a Section 8 challenger.

"We're very, very thin," admitted Grand. "We've got lots of kids out, but a lot of them aren't ready yet for varsity hockey. "We're concerned about scoring. We've got to develop goal production from the other lines, not just the No. 1 line."

In other Section 8 jamboree results Saturday, Lake of the Woods out-scored Bagley 5-1, Bagley edged Red Lake Falls 1-0, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Little Falls played to a scoreless tie, Hallock shaded Detroit Lakes 1-0, Crookston and Brainerd tied 1-1, Roseau trimmed Fergus Falls 2-1, Warroad and Bemidji skated to a 2-2 standoff and East Grand Forks beat Moorhead 4-2. Indus was the only Section 8 jamboree no-show.

TRF Girls To Host Warren

Thief River Falls girls, after opening the 1986-87 high school basketball season last Tuesday with a 43-40 win over Marshall County Central in a game played at Newfolden, will make their home debut Tuesday against Warren. Junior varsity game is scheduled for 6:15 p.m., with the varsity game to follow.

"Warren is a much-improved ball club over last year," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, who wasn't overly satisfied with the Prowlers' performance against Marshall County Central. Failure to rebound off the offensive boards was the biggest disappointment, he said.

Laura Belto, a 6-0 senior center, led the Prowlers with 18 points in the opener, and she'll have to continue that type of production if they hope to keep winning, mentioned Schafer. Most teams will concentrate on stopping Thief River Falls guards Brenda Russell and Kelly Cornell, the Prowlers' top athletes, meaning Belto and 5-10 senior forward Lisa Lillevold will have to contribute offensively to take some of the pressure off the guards.

Thief River Falls junior varsity lost a 36-35 decision to Marshall County Central. Thief River Falls freshmen already played Warren, losing a November 24 season opener. They also lost to Marshall County Central 42-27. They host Crookston Friday at 5 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Prep Bowl Names Five 1986 State Football Titlists

Five champions were crowned Saturday as the 1986 Minnesota state high school football playoff finals were staged at Prep Bowl V in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis.

Argyle won the nine-man state title with a 32-7 Saturday morning victory over Silver Lake; Minneota beat Sherburn-Dunnell 52-19 for the Class C title; Watertown-Mayer downed Granite Falls 29-6 in the Class B finals; Cambridge shut out Stewartville 24-0 in the Class A championship game; and Apple Valley handled Osseo 35-7 for the Class AA trophy.

DNR NEWS

Hazardous Ice Conditions

Department of Natural Resources officials are warning outdoor enthusiasts to stay off newly frozen lakes, streams and ponds. Unseasonably low temperatures have formed ice on any shallow lakes and ponds, but many lakes carry only a partial layer of ice, according to DNR field personnel.

No one should venture out on the ice anywhere, either on foot or motor vehicle. Parents especially are urged to caution their children about the dangers of thin ice.

Tim Smalley, DNR boat and water safety specialist, noted that it takes at least several weeks of near-zero nighttime temperatures before ice will be thick enough for safe travel. Generally it takes about four inches of ice for ice fishing on foot, five inches for snowmobile travel and at least 8-12 inches for a passenger car.

Even then, Smalley cautioned, ice does not freeze to a uniform thickness. "In one location on a lake, the ice may be a foot thick, while 10 feet away because of current, a spring or schooling of fish, it may be only an inch thick."

Last winter three people died as a result of ice-related accidents in Minnesota.

DNR has a free pamphlet available entitled "Danger! Thin Ice" that addresses some of the dangers of travel over Minnesota's frozen lakes and streams and what you can do to save yourself if you do break through. To obtain this publication, write, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources; Boat and Water Safety Section, 500 Lafayette Rd., St. Paul, MN 55155-4046.

Turkey Hunt Applications

Department of Natural Resources wildlife officials announce that turkey-hunt applications are now available from county auditors, most license dealers and all area wildlife offices.

Turkey-hunt application instructions note two different application deadlines that could confuse turkey hunters. Persons who want to take part in this hunt will have until 4:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 15 to hand-deliver the application to the Department of Natural Resources, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul. Mailed applications must be post-marked no later than Saturday, Dec. 13.

Many early applicants have forgotten to include the $3 application fee. A cashier's check, money order or personal check in the amount of $3 payable to the Minnesota State Treasurer must be submitted with each application.

A total of 2,700 permits will be available for four southeastern Minnesota hunting zones.

One of five hunting periods may be selected: April 11-15, April 17-21, April 23-27, April 29-May 3, May 6-10. All dates are inclusive.

Anyone who is a legal resident and 16 years of age or older by April 11, 1987, may apply.

Persons who desire to hunt as a group may submit up to four individual applications in a single envelope. The chance that a group will be drawn is the same as for an individual application. More than four applications in an envelope will invalidate all the applications.

BRENDA DAHL of the alumni squad went up for a shot between a pair of Northland Community College defenders during Saturday's women's college basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Junelle Lorsung (55) tried to block the shot, while Jody Pahlen (33), Angie Enerson (53) and Patty Odberg (23) looked on.

Capital Gain Tax To Change In New Law

For years, investors who sold capital assets such as property, real estate, stocks, bonds, mutual funds and the like and held these assets long enough to qualify as long-term gains were allowed meaningful tax benefits.

The reasoning behind this capital gain tax break made sense. After all, a person who made an investment to enjoy future gains took some risk. Generally, growth investments pay less current income than strictly income-producing investments. If the planned growth does not materialize, the investor not only loses a potential gain but also the income the investment would have earned but didn't during this period, according to Lynnea Pritchett, registered representative.

Another factor affecting long-term gains is inflation. For example, if you paid $1,000 for XYZ common stock in 1974 and sold it for $2,000 in 1986, you doubled your money. But, at a reasonable inflation rate of just six per cent, you also lost half of your buying power. In terms of what your money will buy today, you're back where you started in 1974 with $1,000 of buying power. So, until the new tax legislation, the government shared in some of your risk by allowing certain tax benefits.

Until Jan. 1, 1987, when new tax legislation on long-term capital gains takes effect, you pay taxes on only 40 per cent of the profit from any capital asset owned more than six months. In the above example, the profit was $1,000, so only $400 is taxable income. The other 60 per cent, or $600, is free of federal tax because of the long-term capital gain rule. So, even if you're in the highest bracket — 50 per cent — your maximum tax due on $1,000 would be $200 or an effective tax bracket of only 20 per cent. If you were in a lower tax bracket of 25 per cent (joint taxable income up to approximately $31,000), your tax on this long-term gain would be only $100.

Beginning in 1987, the tax breaks are reduced, and beginning in 1988, all capital gain income will be taxes as ordinary income. In 1987, the top tax bracket will be 38½ per cent. In 1988 and beyond, the top tax bracket will be 33 per cent. The law stipulates only two brackets, 15 per cent and 28 per cent, but there's a special five per cent surtax for high income individuals which effectively raises the top bracket to 33 per cent.

Using the same example of $1,000 long-term capital gain, the investor in the top 38½ per cent will pay $280 in 1987 on the gain versus $200 under the old laws. For 1987 only, long-term capital gains will be taxed at the maximum rate of 28 per cent. A married couple filing a joint return with a taxable income of about $30,000 would pay $280 on a $1,000 gain versus $100 under the old method.

So much for gains. How about losses? As with the old tax laws, an individual can still deduct a maximum of $3,000 per year of capital losses against other income. However, beginning in 1987, each dollar of net long-term loss offsets $1 of other income. Previously it took $2 of long-term capital losses to offset each dollar of other income.

As you see, the new tax laws may affect your investment strategy. It's wise to stop now, take inventory of your investments, and see how the new tax laws will affect your overall plan. If changes are in order, consider them now while maximum benefits are still available.

Public Safety Dept. Seeks Motorcyclists For New Committee

Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety is seeking seven motorcyclists to serve on a new motorcycle advisory committee to provide insight and direction to the state's award-winning motorcycle program.

The program, funded through motorcycle license fees, includes improved testing and licensing, motorcycle rider skills training (both advanced and beginning) and motorcycle safety public information and education.

"I feel this newly composed advisory committee can be very effective in shaping the future of motorcycle safety," said Tschida. "We need the input of the state's motorcyclists to insure the continued growth and improvement of our program."

The initial advisory committee was formed two years ago to offer advice and recommendations to Tschida, but only four out of the nine voting members were motorcyclists not affiliated with the program. The committee, therefore, voted to disband and to select all new motorcyclist members who are not connected to the program.

None of the current members will retain voting privileges, but five program representatives will be on hand to serve as advisors to the voting members. Meetings will be held four times a year, and memberships will be valid for one to two years.

If you would like to be involved in the state's motorcycle program, send a letter of application to Debra W. Olson, Public Office of Public Information, 318 Transportation Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155. Include your name, address, profession, age, motorcycle background and activities, why you want to be a member and what you can contribute to the program. Deadline for application is January 5, 1987. If you have questions or need more information, write to the above address or call (612) 297-1765.

Inter-City Gas Increases Rates For December

Residential customers of ICG Utilities will receive a price increase of 1.91 cents per thousand cubic feet (Mcf) effective today.

The average residential customer who uses 18 Mcf of gas in December will pay approximately 34 cents more than he would have paid under the rates effective in November, according to Fred Little, vice president and general manager of the utility.

This increase is the result of price changes for two of ICG's suppliers. Northern Natural Gas company, which supplies approximately 50 per cent of ICG's gas supply, increased its cost of gas to ICG by 19.7 cents per Mcf. The major portion of the increase from Northern is offset by a significant decrease in rates from Great Lakes Gas Transmission company. The decrease from Great Lakes is the result of a negotiated contract between ICG, Great Lakes and Great Lakes' supplier, Trans-Canada Pipelines. Both changes are effective today.

Taking into account this increase, residential rates this December will be 17.5 per cent lower than rates charged in December of 1985. The new rate per Mcf is $1.10 less than rates effective one year ago. Over the past year ICG has successfully negotiated with its suppliers for gas cost reductions thereby reducing the cost of gas to its customers.

IRS Examination Is Triggered By Several Systems

Internal Revenue service examines tax returns to verify the correctness of income, exemptions, credits or deductions reported on the returns. An examination of a taxpayer's return does not suggest a suspicion of dishonesty or criminal liability. It may not even result in more tax. Many cases are closed without change, and in others, taxpayers receive refunds.

Returns are selected for examination in a variety of ways, the majority through the discriminant function system (DIF). Under this program, selected entries on a return are evaluated and the return is given a score. After being screened by IRS personnel, the returns with the highest possibility of error are selected for examination.

Returns are also selected under the taxpayer compliance measurement program (TCMP), a random selection system used to determine the correct tax liability. Information obtained from TCMP is also used to update and improve DIF.

Other returns are selected by methods such as examining claims for credit or refund of previously paid taxes and matching information documents such as W-2's and 1099's.

The IRS advises that the best time and way to prepare for an examination is when you are filling out your tax return. Make sure you have verification for every entry on the return.

For additional information call toll-free-424-FORM and ask for Publication 556, Examination of Returns, Appeal Rights and Claims for Refund.

LYLE ANDERSON, candidate for Minnesota's outstanding young farmer under sponsorship of the Grygla-Gatzke Jaycees, is shown at work on some of his equipment on the farm northwest of Grygla. Lyle's brother Gary was the state's outstanding young farmer selection two years ago.

hours, increase the productive life of machinery and monitoring expenses so that cuts or beneficial purchases can be made. A coveted goal is a year-around heated shop to spread out the work load throughout the year.

The Anderson farming operation includes fertilization according to soil test, sweet clover planted for plowdown, chemical application for weed control and use of row crops — especially sunflowers — to assist internal drainage. Chisel plowing is used on lighter soils and field drainage ditches are left in grass at the outlet to reduce erosion.

Small areas in different locations on the farm have been left in their natural state for wildlife habitat. One marsh area is suitable for furbearers and aspen and oak woods provide cover for big game and grouse. Deer, moose and occasionally the state's only elk herd use Anderson land.

Improvements include construction of 100,000 bushels of grain storage capacity, planting of 2,500 trees, hauling of 400 yards of small rock and 250 yards of gravel to improve the farmstead and 300 yards of sand and peat mix for landscaping of the Lyle Anderson home.

Lyle has been extremely active in the community, serving as deacon, vice president and president of Grace Lutheran church, treasurer and state delegate of the Grygla-Gatzke Jaycees and district director, regional director and area vice president of the Jaycee organization. He has been a member five years of the Northwest Farm Managers group, Marshall County and Minnesota Crop Improvement associations and Grygla Grain company where he serves as a director.

He is also a member of the East Marshall County Farmers Union, Minnesota Wheat Growers association, Grygla Co-op Creamery association and Bemidji state university alumni association. He has received the Jaycees local, district and regional Brownfield award, two silver keys for district and regional director, statesman award and presidential medallion.

With his wife Joni he helped form the Grygla cub scout organization and she currently serves as treasurer. She has also been secretary and president of the Grace Lutheran church women, high school Bible study teacher, vice president, president and district chaplain of the Women of Today.

"We both believe in the future of farming," Lyle said, "and in the future of our community."

FmHA Top Level Meeting Assures 1987 Lending

State directors of the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) were told at a top-level meeting in Washington recently that funds for the 1987 farm lending season should be sufficient to meet expected demand, Russ Bjorhus, Minnesota director said.

"Our national administrator, Vance Clark, told us that about $4 billion will be available for farm operating and ownership loans, and that he is confident we can continue to keep our viable farmers in business," Bjorhus said.

Clark reported that FmHA was able to continue more than 98 per cent of its 274,000 farm borrowers in operation in 1986 for the second consecutive year despite a generally depressed agricultural economy. The agency provided almost 100,000 borrowers with special servicing assistance such as deferrals, reschedulings and consolidation of loans, and refinancing at more favorable interest rates.

Again, in 1987, FmHA will emphasize guaranteed loans as it continues the transition away from direct government lending, a process begun three years ago.

"Guaranteed loans, those loans made by banks and other commercial lenders and guaranteed against a certain percentage of loss by us, represent a proper way for the government to lend a hand to farmers in need of a boost, especially in these days of general budgetary restraint," Bjorhus said. "Congress has recognized that in appropriating funds, and prudent lending requires it."

Bjorhus said, however, that Clark reminded the agency executives that not every farmer who applies for a loan is likely to qualify.

"He made it clear that we will continue to show compassion for those borrowers unable to meet regular lenders' financial requirements, but that we also will — we must — be prudent in making loan decisions. Borrowers will be expected to show that they have a positive cash flow, that their debts do not exceed their assets, and that they can be expected to repay any new loans," he said.

CONVERSATION between Dayna (left) and Kelsi Holland seems to be no problem for the youngsters, although Dayna speaks only English and Kelsi speaks only Korean. Dayna was adopted by the Hollands in July of 1983 and Kelsi arrived in the United States November 10, just a month after her fourth birthday. Their adoptive mother, Gail Holland, said the two girls seem to communicate amazingly well with each speaking in a different language.

Foreign Adoption Provides Chance For Parenthood

The Hollands had sent a collection of pictures to Korea Social Services and they had been forwarded to the orphanage so Kelsi could see her new parents, new sister, the house she would live in and other aspects of her new home. It was apparent that Kelsi had been given some assistance in the orphanage to prepare her for the trip and meeting her new parents.

"When we met the plane in Minneapolis I was wearing the same outfit I had on in the pictures we sent," Gail said. "There were six Korean children, including four infants, on the flight that arrived and Kelsi recognized me and came to me."

Because the children come to the U.S. with only the clothes they are wearing — although they take other possessions to the orphanage with them — Duane and Gail had given Kelsi a new coat and mittens. Throughout visits with family members in the Twin Cities area, Kesli carried them with her and refused to give them up, even while sleeping.

Upon arrival in Thief River Falls and entering the Holland home, however, Kelsi seemed to recognize that this was where she would live and voluntarily gave up the coat and mittens to go and play.

Being adoptive parents of foreign youngsters has shown the Hollands many faces of the American people. They are frequently being stopped in public places by strangers who mention members of their own families who have adopted foreign youngsters. And they receive comments that show some of the misconceptions people have about foreign adoption. One of these is the financial circumstances involved.

"You get paid something for taking them, don't you?" is a question sometimes asked. On the contrary, adopting a foreign child is considerably more expensive than adopting an American youngster.

"We don't want to make a big thing about the expense involved, because we think our kids are worth every penny of the cost involved," the Hollands said. "But because so many people aren't aware of the circumstances, we don't mind sharing what it takes to adopt a foreign child."

Lutheran Social Services, through which both Dayna and Kelsi were adopted, charges a fee of $1,925 which covers paperwork, home study of the prospective parents and their residence, pre-adoptive counseling and other services. The Hollands don't consider the fee to be unreasonable.

Korea Social Services also charges a fee of $1,850 for its end of the arrangements. Then there is the matter of a one-way ticket and part of the escort fee for the child from Seoul to the United States — $940 for Kelsi. Other expenses include legal and administrative fees for legalization, naturalization and other items, plus significant travel expense for counseling and other required meetings. Total cost can easily exceed $5,000.

Along with the cost is the time involved in orientation, preadoptive counseling, application completion, background check, fiancial references and statement, home study, medical review and waiting for a referral, commissioner of human services approval, visa approval and a phone call announcing flight arrival.

The Hollands have been involved in the formation and continuation of the area Northwest OURS chapter of a nationwide adoption support group. The Northwest chapter has about 20 families as members and welcomes more, including prospective adoptive parents. Family attendance at the monthly meetings is encouraged to allow children to meet and interact with one another.

While most parents of foreign adoptive children rapidly adjust, it is sometimes more difficult for the parents of those adoptive parents, the Hollands note. Racial prejudices are soemtimes more deeply ingrained in older generations who have not had exposure to other cultures.

"There is one point we want to make clear," the Hollands agreed. "Adopting foreign children is not a second choice situation. They are our first choice, and they will always be first with us."

Eugene Kaml Is Graduated As State Trooper

Eugene C. Kaml, 23, is among 25 new state troopers who were graduated November 21 from the Minnesota department of public safety state patrol division's 34th trooper-candidate school.

Kaml was graduated from Middle River high school in 1981 and attended Bemidji state university. He was a deputy with the Roseau county sheriff's department before joining the patrol.

The 11-week trooper candidate training included instruction in traffic control, accident investigation and reconstruction, law, community and human relations, firearms, defensive tactics and pursuit driving.

With the graduation of this class the patrol will be at full strength of 511. Kaml will be assigned to the Thief River Falls area after six additional weeks of on-the-job training.

VA Lowers Its Interest Rate On Home Loans

For the seventh time in 18 months, the Veterans administration has lowered its maximum home loan interest rate. Effective November 24, VA-guaranteed fixed rate mortgages dropped to nine per cent — the lowest since June 28, 1978.

The decrease continues a pattern that began in September of 1981 when VA rates peaked at an all-time high of 17½ per cent. The last change, from 10½ per cent to 9½ per cent, took place March 3, 1986. The cut brings the VA rate closer to the market rate nationally.

Besides benefiting new veteran-buyers, VA officials said the cut in the rate can help many veterans who already have home loans with high interest rates. By refinancing, veterans may be able to cut monthly payments by $200 a month or more and save thousands of dollars over the life of the loan.

The VA will also decrease by one-half per cent the maximum rates for graduated payment mortgages (GPMs) to 9¼ per cent and home improvement loans to 10½ per cent.

Rates for manufactured home loans will also be decreased to 11½ per cent for unit-only loans and 11 per cent for loans to purchase either a unit with a lot or a lot for a unit already purchased.

VA home loans may be used to purchase, construct, alter, improve, repair or refinance a home. This includes the purchase of condominiums and manufactured homes, with or without a lot.

Congress Recount In Pennington To Begin On Thursday

Recount team in the disputed election contest between Congressman Arlan Stangeland and challenger state Sen. Collin Peterson will be in Thief River Falls Thursday to conduct the recount here beginning at 9 a.m., according to information received Tuesday by Ken Olson, county auditor.

Three people will be on the recount team, one each representing the two candidates and a third serving as a neutral party. In addition, the auditor or one of his deputies is to be in atetendance at all times while the recount is being conducted.

Minnesota state canvassing board certified the election results earlier, giving the incumbent congressman a 121-vote margin of victory. The results showed Stangeland with 94,024 votes (49.68 per cent) and Peterson with 93,903 votes (49.61 per cent). A third candidate, Jon Hall, received 1,326 votes (0.7 per cent) and there were 11 write-in votes for other persons.

In Pennington county Peterson had a winning margin with 2,912 votes to 2,622 for Stangeland. County auditor Ken Olson said he doesn't look for much change in the recount. Of the 5,534 ballots counted in the Seventh District congress race, only 1,604 were paper ballots marked with "X" for the voters choice. The remaining 3,930 were punched ballots from voting machines in the city of Thief River Falls and townships of North and Rocksbury. (These are vote totals for TRF, Rocksbury and North. Actual punched card total will be reduced because absentee ballots are paper.)

In Marshall county the recount began at 9 a.m. today in the race where the county canvassing board certified 2,184 votes for Peterson and 2,086 for Stangeland.

Beltrami county also began its recount this morning with a three-member team there for that purpose. Beltrami county voters gave Peterson 6,065 votes and Stangeland 5,471.

Roseau county's recount will begin Thursday at 9 a.m. with the canvassing board in that county affirming 3,189 votes for Stangeland and 2,695 votes for Peterson.

Recount in Red Lake county will not be conducted until Monday, according to information received by auditor's office there. Red Lake county gave Peterson 1,341 and Stangeland only 784.

Both sides agreed on 16 three-member recount teams from the Canadian border nearly to the Twin Cities. Bruce Willis is the attorney representing Congressman Stangeland and Alan Weinblatt represents Sen. Peterson. They have agreed on

Jan Peterson Is First Performing Artist Of Month

by Heidi Hoks for the Thief River Falls
Community Arts Council

Beautiful music and the name of Jan Peterson are synonymous in our community. This is the reason Jan was selected as the first performing artist to be featured by the Thief River Falls Community Arts council as an artist-of-the-month. She will be the December artist-of-the-month.

Since it is not possible to capture the artistry of a performer on canvas, the council will feature photographs of Mrs. Peterson in concert in the display case at the Thief River Falls library and Mrs. Peterson will also present a special noon concert on December 18 at the library in Thief River Falls. This concert — entitled "Love Came Down at Christmas" — will be a "brown bag" concert; people are invited to bring their brown bag lunches and enjoy a half-hour of joyous music at 12 noon during their lunch hour. The concert is free to the public.

Jan has been performing vocally since she and her family moved to Thief River Falls in 1973. She has done several special concerts, been in church choir and sung solos at Trinity Lutheran church, sung solos at other area churches, been a member of and sung solos in the Northland Masterworks Chorale, sung in a variety of trios, sung solos for the Miss Thief River Falls pageant, been a soloist in the past two Top Hat Revues, directed Trinity's children's choir in the past, and has sung for organizations, weddings and church services.

Her interests and community involvement extend beyond music, however. She was a board member of Chameleon Theater and has played many roles in community theater and musicals. She also was very active in Mrs. Jaycees (now known as Women of Today). Currently she serves on the Thief River Falls Community

ARTIST OF THE MONTH for December as selected by the Thief River Falls Community Arts council is the first performing artist to be featured by the local group. Jan Peterson is shown in rehearsal with accompanist Ida Nordvall for a Christmas vocal concert she will present December 18 at 12 noon at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls. The half-hour concert of selected Christmas music will be open to the public free of charge.

A TIME FOR THANKS was observed at the Runger home in Thief River Falls on Thanksgiving day, just as it was in most homes throughout the nation. But it was a special time for Mrs. Runger; her daughter, Mrs. Bob (Donna) Grendahl; and the Grendahl's 15-year-old son Robby. On Saturday, August 23, Robby received the 84th heart transplanted at the University of Minnesota hospitals. He now appears well on the road to recovery, and last Thursday he was given the responsibility of carving the holiday turkey at the Runger home.

Heart Transplant Keeps Robby Grendahl Ticking

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

On June 16 this year 15-year-old Robby Grendahl of Wadena was diagnosed as having congestive heart failure. On August 22 he was put at the top of the list for a heart transplant at the University of Minnesota hospitals. The next day the transplant was made. On August 31 he was released from the hospital. On September 6 he went with his family to Valley Fair amusement park and to a movie.

Robby is the grandson of Mrs. Larry Runger of Thief River Falls. His mother, Donna, is a 1961 graduate of Lincoln high school. She, her husband Bob Grendahl, their 19-year-old daughter Rehe and Robby have lived at Wadena for the past 15 years. They were all in Thief River Falls last weekend for a special Thanksgiving observance.

On Sunday, June 15, Robby was skating in a summer hockey league at Wadena when he left the ice complaining of shortness of breath and an uset stomach. He had seemed more tired than usual for a few days and was nursing a persistent cough. But he had been playing baseball, just returned from a canoe trip and had several lawnmowing jobs, so his parents reasoned he must just be somewhat exhausted.

At the Wadena clinic Monday morning he was diagnosed as having congestive heart failure, an enlargement of the heart. He was sent to Brainerd for an echogram which confirmed the diagnosis, then returned to the Wadena clinic. His doctor there had already made an appointment with a cardiologist at Children's hospital in Minneapolis and Robby was taken there the next day. After being hospitalized several days, he was sent home on Saturday for bed rest there.

Back for a check-up in 10 days, Robby and his family learned his condition had worsened. For six days in the intensive car unit he was on intravenous medication to stabilize his condition. He was then again sent home and told he could have limited activity such as walking or riding his bicycle, but he continued to tire easily.

On August 9 the family thought Robby had come down with the flu. He was weak, tired and nauseous. On August 14 he returned to Children's hospital where his condition continued to deteriorate daily. Doctors told the family they could do no more for him there.

August 21 he was transferred to the University of Minnesota hospitals where groups of doctors paraded in to examine and evaluate him. By noon on Friday, August 22, he was placed at the head of the list of patients to receive a donor heart. Without a transplant, doctors believed he wouldn't live through the weekend. His heart had enlarged from grapefruit to volleyball size and doctors taking a biopsy (sample of heart tissue) had to take it from material inside the heart for fear of rupturing the swollen tissue.

At 2:30 p.m. that same day Robby's parents were called in and told that a heart was available. The donor was suitable for a heart and lung transplant, they were told, and if they didn't want the donor's heart for Robby, it would be used in a heart and lung transplant for another patient.

They were also informed that their medical insurance carrier had been contacted and would not cover the

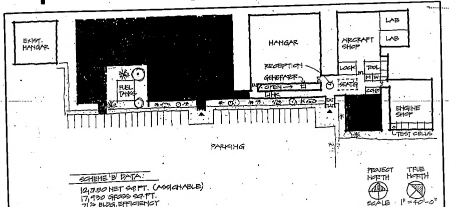
Optimism High For Additions To AVTI Facilities



Proposed additions to the aviation program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute's facilities at the regional airport are shown in the diagram above. The area indicated in red shows the proposed additional space and area reserved for future expansion. The shaded area indicates existing facilities already in use. The program has expanded in recent years to involve up to 125 students and potential is indicated for more than doubling of that number.

Optimism is running high at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute that funding will be made available this legislative session for $2,053,331 in additions and remodeling for the local program.

Primary beneficiary of the funding would be the aviation program which has grown substantially in the past several years and has potential for additional rapid growth. The proposed project would include $1.2 million for an instructional building adjacent to the hangar at the regional airport and additional funding for expansion and improvement at the main campus on highway 1 east, including a new library.

At a recent meeting of the state board of vocational-trechnical education in Minneapolis, the Thief River Falls project was placed seventh on a list of 32 projects given priority for funding. Depending on appropriations made by the legislature, the local project appears to be viable for the near future.

In addition to $400,000 for system planning by the state board, other projects ranked ahead of the Thief River Falls proposal are Mankato, $5.8 million; St. Paul, $7.3 million; Hibbing, $2.7 million; Wadena, $2.05 million; and Willmar, $34,000.

"The state board of vocational-technical education's recommendation now goes to the governor's office for inclusion in his request to the 1987 legislature," stated Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the local AVTI. "This is the first step in what is possibly a two-year process to obtain new facilities."

Enrollemnt in the program hit about 125 this fall and now stands at about 100 due to graduations with a new class of students scheduled to begin in January. Projections call for 300 students in the program in the future, with affiliation with the University of North Dakota program possibly bringing in students from a number of foreign countries.

Peter Vesterhold of the Twin Cities architectural firm Architectural Alliance visited the AVTI recently to complete a space utilization study. His report and recommendations on where and how to add and utilize space is expected later this month.

Sylvia Nilson And Corey Rude United In Marriage August 2

Sylvia Lenay Nilson and Corey Lynn Rude were united in marriage August 2 at Abundant Life church in this city. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Philmore Nilson, Alvin Rude and Beverly Thompson, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Burton R. Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony. The church was decorated with fresh garden flowers in a rainbow color theme, arranged by Val Chommie and Caroline Shodean, friends of the bride and her family. Altar decorations were two floral arrangements of gladioli from Orville and Polly Heiren, and a special center arrangement of a dozen red roses, a gift from Julie (Shodean) and Charles Sharier of Korea, friends of the couple.

Pianist was Carol Waswick, accompanying Ramona Sjovall of Karlstad who sang "The Rose" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her parents, wearing a street-length gown of white brocade with an overjacket and three-quarter length sleeves. She carried a bridal bouquet of pink roses, white, lavender and yellow daisies, and blue babies' breath. Terri Knutson of Bagley, friend of the bride, was her personal attendant.

Darla LeMoine of Grand Forks, friend of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a blue gown similar to that of the bride, and carried a bouquet of blue, lavender, yellow and white flowers.

Best man was Terry Knutson of Bagley, friend of the groom. Darrel Nilson and Kirby Schmidlgall were ushers. Gentlemen of the wedding party wore business suits. The groom wore a boutonniere of a single pink rose and tiny lavender blossoms. The best man had an arrangement of mixed flowers as his boutonniere. Ushers wore blue carnations and the father of the birde wore a peach carnation.

The mother of the bride wore a sheer gown in shaded brown with a full skirt and a corsage of a peach carnation with babies' breath. The groom's mother wore an A-line gown of coral featuring applique at the neckline. Her corsage was of yellow carnations and babies' breath.

Special guest of honor was the grandmother of the groom, Belinda Evenson of Winger.

Following the lighting of the unity candle, the couple presented their mothers with long-stemmed red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Andy and Kimberly Imberi of Moorhead, sister and brother-in-law of the groom.

The wedding cake, baked by Gloria Winkler of Fosston, was a square-tiered creation with a heart-shaped top layer decorated with a silver wedding cross. The cake and the cross were a gift from the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Darrel and Charlotte Nilson. Charlotte Nilson and Carol Evenson of Winger cut and served the cake. Caroline Shodean of Detroit Lakes poured.

Dilene Nilson, cousin of the bride, registered the guests and served punch to the guests. Ladies of the Hope circle of Abundant Life church served the dinner.

A groom's supper was held at the Waldo Thompson home the evening of rehearsal.

Out of town guests were from Fosston, Winger, Bejou, Crookston, Fertile, Moorhead, Rochester, Minneapolis, Bethel, Karlstad, Grygla and St. Hilaire, as well as Cooperstown and Grand Forks, ND, the Philippine Islands and Tydal, Norway.

The couple is at home at Chokoloskee Island, FL. The bride is assistant manager at Circle K of Everglades City and the groom is employed by McMillian fisheries of Chokoloskee.

October Wedding For Diane Anderson-Douglas Haven

Diane Joy Anderson and Douglas Gene Haven were united in marriage October 11 at the Evangelical Covenant church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Art Rimmereid and Rev. Dale Van Deusen officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Halward Anderson of Viking and Mr. and Mrs. Rangvald Haven of McHenry, ND.

Ida Nordvall served as organist and Anne Abler as pianist. Dave Haven sang "Time For Joy." Kent Hudson sang "This Is The Day," and "Charity." The bride sang "Walk Hand In Hand." "A Prayer For Bride and Groom" was read by Deb Jacobson, accompanied by Anne Abler.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a gown of white taffeta with a V-neckline and court sleeves. Beaded Alencon lace accented a fitted bodice, and the dropped torso flowed into a full skirt and semi-cathedral train. Her bridal hat was trimmed with beaded Alencon lace and flowers on the underside of the brim, with attached illusion pouf and fingertip veil.

To compliment her gown, she wore pearls which were a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was composed of peach roses, white stephanotis, white button mums and teal babies' breath. Her cousin, Pam Vatthauer, served as her personal attendant.

Sheila Nelson, Newfolden, friend of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Shelly Anderson, Thief River Falls, and Tamie Swanson, Brainerd, sisters of the bride; Lori Nelson, Roseau, friend; and Darlene Haven, Northwood, ND, sister of the groom. All wore tea-length gowns in teal-green tina satin. They wore pearl necklaces which were a gift from the bride, and carried bouquets of peach carnations, rust daisy mums, white button mums and babies' breath.

Flower girl was Emily Haven, niece of the groom. She wore a long white gown accented by small teal bows. It was sewn by the bride's cousin. She carried a bridal basket filled with peach roses, peach carnations, white button mums and teal babies' breath.

Matthew Nelson, Newfolden, friend of the couple, served as ring bearer. He wore white tails identical to the groom's with a peach rose boutonniere.

The groom wore white tails with matching bow tie and cummerbund and a boutonniere of a single peach rose with stephanotis.

Best man was Mark Jorgenson of Newfolden. Groomsmen were Dave Haven, Warner, SD, cousin of the groom; Mike Skalicky, Minot, ND, brother of the groom; Hal Swanson, Brainerd, brother-in-law of the bride; and Denly Loge, St. Regis, MT, cousin of the groom. All wore black shadow stripe tails with teal bow tie, cummerbund and pocket scarf. Their boutonnieres were a white carnation tipped in teal green.

Ushers were Dennis Rimmereid, cousin, and Tom Mjelde and Rich Filafer, friends of the couple. They wore black shadow stripe tuxedos with matching bow ties and cummerbunds and white carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length gown of teal chiffon with a sheer jacket. The groom's mother was attired in mauve.

Guests of honor were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tangquist of Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tangquist greeted the guests as they arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Tangquist served as candle lighters. Both couples are aunts and uncles of the bride.

Host couples at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rafteseth, Moorhead, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Haven, McHenry, ND, aunt and uncle of the groom. Deb. Jacobson presided at the guest book, gifts were arranged by Jason Tangquist, and punch was served by Linda Rafteseth and Heidi Tangquist.

The three-tiered wedding cake was baked and decorated by Gloria Ness of Viking. Vivian Rimmereid and Clara Loge, aunts of the groom, and Betty Gustafson, aunt of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake.

Pouring were Viola Rud, aunt of the bride, and Borghild Haven, aunt of the groom. The Norwegian wedding cake was cut and served by friends of the bride, Pam Lindemoen and Jodie Torkelson. Waitresses were Nicole Nelson, Karen Ness, Dayna Sustad and Tricia Olson.

Pine To Prairie Stresses "Home For The Holidays"

Pine to Prairie Home Health Care is participating in a week-long schedule of events to celebrate National Home Care Week, which began November 30 and extends to December 6. With the theme of "Bringing Health Care Back Home Where It Belongs," set by the National Association for Home Care, the schedule of events has been organized to extend to people in the communities of Fosston, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls, attempting to make them more aware of and familiar with home care.

Monday, Polk county commissioner Rupert Syverson visited with a Pine to Prairie home health care nurse. That evening, the consumer advisory board met at the Third Base in Brooks to assist in setting long and short term goals and objectives to bring quality home care to residents of the Pine to Prairie home health care service.

Tuesday, prizes were awarded to winning posters of Bev Anderson's Magelssen elementary school's third grade class, made in honor of National Home Care Week. Carol Stone, R.N. coordinator, and Andy Nelson Star City coordinator, will award businesses in downtown Fosston, as well as at the Pine to Prairie Home Health Care open house Friday.

Today (Wednesday) blood pressure screenings are scheduled at the McIntosh bank and at the Red Lake Falls bank from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, and at the Fosston bank from 1 to 3 p.m.

Thursday there will be an open house and blood pressure screening at the Medicine Shoppe in Thief River Falls from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, with free coffee and doughnuts served, as well as drawing for a door prize.

Pine to Prairie Home Health Care will have an open house Friday at the office building in Fosston with a special presentation by Carol Stone, R.N. coordinator, on "Family and Professional Caregiving in the Home." The presentation will be geared toward families of people needing home care as well as the individual needing home care. It will show the important role of the family member in helping to provide health care in the home. There will be free coffee and doughnuts and a door prize at the open house. The presentation will be given at the senior meal site in Red Lake Falls Friday at 12 noon by Carolyn Roff of Pine to Prairie Home Health Care.

Nurses, home health aides and other staff members of Pine to Prairie urge everyone to join with them in the special events and activities planned in honor of Home Care Week. Holidays are a time for families to be together, and thanks to high quality, skilled health services, many American families will be able to enjoy the season together. Families with an ill child, infirm grandparent, disable father, or recuperating mother are taking advantage of home health care services so the holidays can be enjoyed at home instead of a hospital.

Christmas Giving Can "Light Up For Life"

Would you and your family like to do something worthwile to help those less fortunate than yourselves this Christmas? Would you like an alternative way to show you care besides a wrapped gift under the tree? If so, why not "Light Up For Life" by giving a gift of a light on the tree on the island at Northwest Medical center with a donation to Hospice?

The lights on the tree can represent someone who has died, friends and relatives who are unable to be home for the holidays, those in the military, beloved grandparents, or anyone else remembered or fondly recalled during this holiday season. Why not "Light Up" a shining light for each member of the family this year, as thanks for their presence and joy shared at this time of caring and sharing? Why not a special good wish for loved ones at Christmas or for blessings in the New Year? Your special gift to family and friends can be enjoyed each time the Medical center parking area is passed.

All donations will be entered on a special scroll that will be on display in the window of Northwest Medical center. The tree lighting service will take place Monday, December 22, and everyone is invited to join the celebration of Christmas carols, readings and refreshments and spend a few moments reflecting upon someone special. Donations may be mailed to Hospice, Box 714, Thief River Falls, and any amount will be accepted to "Light Up For Life."

Hospice is presently beginning its fourth year of caring for their terminally ill and their families in Thief River Falls and surrounding areas. Thirty-five trained volunteers assist in Red Lake Falls, Plummer, Oklee, Trail, Brooks, Goodridge, St. Hilaire, Karlstad and Thief River Falls. For more information on Hospice services, contact Darla Twomey, director, 681-4240, extension 115.

CLOSE OUT

I Won't Fly, But Give Me A Road Map . . .

by David Hill

Mistakes sometimes happen and they always happen too often whenever they happen. What follows is a description of what happened Tuesday, so take out your road maps — we won't be flying.

About the time I was reading an editorial from another paper, reminding us of all the things we should be thankful for, including the freedom to fly from one place to another, I was 45,000 feet in the air circling Denver's Stapleton airport. Why was I circling Denver's Stapleton airport?

The only way to get from Rapid City, SD, to Fargo, ND, is via Denver or Sioux Falls and Minneapolis. Yes, I know it's strange. I like to tell the stewardess to pass me a parachute and open the door when we fly over Rapid City.

I was in Rapid City celebrating Thanksgiving with my brothers and parents. I grew up in Rapid City and will always consider it my home away from home. Unfortunately as I left Rapid City a storm was brewing in the Rockies. As the storm got worse the number of open runways at Stapleton decreased. So Sunday night I was wondering when I would land or how.

Upon arriving in Denver, about one hour later, I had a sinking feeling that my plane would not take off as soon as I stepped in the terminal. Inside the airport were thousands of unhappy, stranded holiday travelers. The airline representatives at my gate were pleasant and kept reminding us every 15 minutes that we had a plane and we only needed a crew. Around 11 p.m. I gave up on the idea of waiting 15 more minutes and made reservations on another flight the next day.

They finally did cancel my flight at 4 a.m., and they did pay for some of the passengers to stay in a motel room. An estimated 6,000 travelers were stranded Sunday night. Quite a few slept at the airport because airlines don't give passengers motel rooms if the cancellation is due to an act of God. They gave some of the passengers on my flight rooms because when the crew showed up at 4 a.m. they weren't allowed to take off because they had accumulated too many flying hours. However, the unhappy travelers they did put up only got 45 minutes of sleep before they had to return to the airport. Unhappy is probably an understatement.

I finally arrived in Fargo Monday afternoon. It was approximately an hour-and-a-half behind schedule due to further delays and weight restrictions — some of the unhappy travelers' baggage got left in Denver. It was 3:30 p.m. and I decided to take my time because the skies were clear and I was close to home. After dinner I decided to leave. I got to Hawley rather abruptly because the fog was so thick I was in town before I knew it. I turned around shortly after because I nearly rear-ended an unloaded semi-trailer parked on the side of the road.

Tuesday morning most of the fog had lifted but it was raining, which turned to snow and froze. At times I was traveling 30 miles per hour on the highway. When I finally arrived at the Times it was time to put the front page of Wednesday's second section together. I should have stayed another day in Fargo or Denver. Maybe I should have taken some of the typesetters and proof readers with me.

When you do look at the front page of the second section you will notice a few errors. In Times' Capsule a transposition changed December 13 to 31. I don't know what 22 p.m. is, but I think 2 p.m. is correct. In the article on the tax law workshop, the AVTI in Thief River Falls is a sponsor not Thife River Falls. I don't know where Thife is. In the Enterprise zone article, Arctco is not a cusiness but a business.

And now we get to more errors. In the article on winter driving, the beginning of the story starts halfway through the story. Somehow sections of the article got mixed up during paste up and the beginning ended up starting about halfway through the story. In the picture of the students who had their poetry published by COMPAS, the students are unidentified. Pictured from left to right they are: Sara Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Tyler; Cory Gustafson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gustafson; and Seaton McCool, son of Yvonne McCool.

Well that about identifies all of the mistakes. Maybe I should have stayed in Fargo or Denver another day. Next time I'll take a road map and stick to the ground.

As you can see mistakes can happen and if ever you need a road map to follow our mistakes, please let us know, we'll be more than happy to correct them.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to Drs. Bray, Bentson and Donlin for their genuine caring, concern and community spirit. First of all, Dr. Bray cared enough to take time to talk to our son and to his friends about the death of their friend Craig and to ask them to help each other and to talk to someone when they are hurting.

Even more significantly, we appreciate Dr. Donlin and Dr. Bentson for talking with all the kids and for helping them on an ongoing basis to deal with the tragic death of their good buddy.

As parents of a teenager, we appreciate the time and care these individuals gave to help these kids, because this shows a spirit of caring not only about the teenagers but also about our community.'

That community spirit is rare and valuable. So many of our teens are under different kinds of pressures, and many are hurting emotionally. Thank God there still are people who care.

Congress Recount In Pennington To Begin Thursday

eight pages of written procedure for recounting the 189,264 votes cast in the election.

About 130,000 of the ballots to be recounted are paper ballots. Some of those are expected to be challenged on various grounds, including instances where the voter identified the ballot by some type of marking. Contested ballots generally revolve around voter intent. Recount teams will also be looking for errors in addition and transposition errors made by election judges. The letter could involve either transposition of figures (such as 98 for 89) or crediting a vote total to the wrong candidate.

The district includes all of Becker, Benton, Clay, Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Moorison, Norman, Otter Tail, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau, Stearns, Todd, Wadena and Wilkin counties and parts of Grant, Sherburne, Beltrami and Hubbard counties.

Goal of the recount teams is to complete the mechanical phase of the recount in five working days with a December 9 target date for completion. About 2,000 ballots are expected to be contested in the district and the teams will report the number of uncontested votes each candidate received. District Judge Keith Davison of Wilkin county will rule on each contested ballot on an individual basis after hearing arguments from attorneys on whether or not it should be counted. The judge's decision can be appealed to the state court of appeals and the Minnesota supreme court.

The Seventh District recount — the first congressional recount in the state's history — was brought by Sen. Peterson. State law says the candidate who brings the recount suit must bear the cost, which is estimated to be between $50,000 and $100,000. The recount process is expected to be completed in time for the winner to be sworn in when the new congress convenes in January in Washington, DC.

Boat Launch Area Is Built At Highlanding

Cooperative effort by Pennington county, Minnesota department of natural resources and the Goodridge area development association is providing an improved boat launching area on the Red Lake river and a picnic area for the public just east of the Highlanding bridge in eastern Pennington county.

It was about a year ago when the discussion of improvements began, and under the leadership of John Hoffman, who served as supervisor of the project, everything came together last week. boat ramp was installed, brush clearing was done and landscaping formed in preparation for final touches in the spring.

Goodridge area development corporation provided $2,000 for labor and equipment at the site. Pennington county permitted the changes on its approximately one acre of canoe landing site and provided rock, gravel and filter fabric — a material placed beneath the rock and ramp to keep it from sinking into the mud.

Department of natural resources furnished 37 concrete "planks" (12-inch x 5-inch x 12 feet) constructed by the fisheries construction crew at Detroit Lakes and valued at $20 cost each. The department also supplied the permit under its access and development program and aid to local units effort, according to Arden Belcher of Bemidji, regional trails and waterways coordinator.

The concrete planks made a ramp 12 feet wide and about 46 feet long, extending down into the river. The area was sloped and rock was packed in on both sides of the ramp. (see photo at left). Galen Quam operated David Paulson's backhoe to accomplish much of the necessary site work.

Among those assisting project coordinator John Hoffman on the project were Eugene (Ole) Wiskow, Ernest Swanson, Roy Jensen, Clarence Peterson, Richard Parnow, Jack Scheef, Larry Bryl, Jeff Bakken, Gordon Henrickson, Randy Henrickson, Lorine Aandal, Jeanne Groven and Marilyn Wiseth. David E. Dahlen and Glenn Jensen operated dozers for the land shaping work and Ronald and Rory Haugen used their tractor and loader.

DNR coordinator Belcher said the boat ramp will be similar to one being planned for the Red River below the dam at L.B. Hartz park in Thief River Falls next summer.

Arts council board and is a member of Zehlians. She also has done programming for the Northwest regional library system.

Jan notes she has always been interested in music. Born in Borup and raised in Moorhead, she took lessons in piano and clarinet and sang in the choir while growing up. "I drove my parents crazy in junior high and high school. I had all the soundtracks from all the musicals and I knew all the lyrics!" she exclaims with a twinkle in her eye. "And I sang them continually.

Her parents enrolled her in voice lessons at Concordia college when she was a sophomore in high school, much to her delight.

Jan continued voice lessons at Lutheran Bible institute in Minneapolis. She also auditioned for and was accepted into the college's traveling women's quartet. They did many special concerts during the year and, during the summer, took 10 weeks to tour.

After college, Jan worked at Augustana academy and sang in the faculty trio. When she moved to Sioux Falls, SD, she continued singing in church. Subsequent moves to Minneapolis and Moorhead found Jan involved in raising her and her husband Gordon's two children, Hillary (now 17 years old) and Kim (now 16 years old). Upon moving to Thief River Falls, Jan became more involved in community activities.

Currently Jan hopes to see a re-emergence of community theater. "I really like theater — especially musical-type comedy. That's what I'd like to see develop. I'd really like to see community theater get started again."

Her enthusiasm bubbles over as she talks animatedly about this dream. "My first taste of musical theater was 'The King and I.' I played a wife. I just loved it. I wish everyone could have an experience like that!" With Jan's energies behind it, her dream will surely come true.

S.D. Board Adopts Draft Statement, Studies Property

At a special meeting Monday evening in the school district service center, the Thief River Falls board of education adopted a draft mission statement, approved a letter of understanding with Bemidji public schools regarding joint AVTI efforts and took the first steps toward negotiating a possible purchase across Knight avenue from Lincoln high school.

Board members Hank Hallstrom and Maryel Anderson were named to assist the school administration in negotiating with Northern Woodwork ownership for possible purchase. The district had previously purchased the former Pepsi-Cola Bottling company property, which presently houses the Northwest Educational Cooperative Service unit, and had acquired other private residential property in the area.

The letter of understanding with the Bemidji school districts includes concerns about the proposed timeline for accomplishing joint programs and the need to include staff and community representation at any phase of the process.

The timeline established for the joint governance program between the Thief River Falls and Bemidji AVTIs had projected ratification of the agreement by April of 1987. A joint board meeting of the two districts had been scheduled for January 18 with additional meetings possible later in January if necessary.

At a joint meeting July 16 of this year, the two boards adopted resolutions calling for their administrations to "develop a plan to explore areas of mutual cooperation between the respective area vocational-technical institutes". Activities have been conducted toward preparation of a joint governance model which is now being considered for implementation.

The draft mission statement was approved following presentation by Dr. Richard Hill of the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The statement is as follows:

It is the mission of the Thief River Falls Public Schools to provide for students within the mandated age ranges a quality basic education designed to prepare them for entry into a complex and changing world.

As a secondary focus, it is the mission of the district to provide expanded educational opportunities to students and community members where resources allow.

In the provision of these services the Board recognizes that it is crucial to develop an educational climate that is conducive to decision participation by staff, students, and citizens within the district and that the district's staff is the primary resource by which the schools accomplish their educational mission.

In light of the above district mission statement, the following goals are adopted:

(1) To review and modify, if appropriate, the district's curriculum in order to "focus" on the primary mission of our schools.

(2) To continue implementation of the district's five-year plan with specific emphasis on the following goals:

To encourage school-site management with considerable autonomy in determining the exact means by which the goals and expectations of the district and building are to be met;

To initiate building level staff development programs directed toward the school's goals and closely related to the instructional program;

To more actively involve parents in their child's education and to encourage parental support of the goals and expectations of the school;

To develop a written district curriculum and organize the school day to provide appropriate time for planned, purposeful instruction focused on the desired outcomes and coordinated across grade levels; and

To assist teachers in designing instruction that maximizes substantive learning time, monitors student progress, and gives regular feedback to the students regarding their progress.

(3) To provide facilities appropriate for the accomplishment of the district's mission.

Next meeting of the board will be Monday, December 15, at 5 p.m. in the school district service center board room.

Heart Transplant Is Gift Of Life For R. Grendahl

cost of harvesting the heart from the donor. (The transplant team also removes the heart to be used in the transplant from the donor.) They had to provide assurance they had $10,000 to cover that cost — and they were given five to 10 minutes to make arrangements for the money. Supportive friends from Wadena, including their pastor, assisted in making financial arrangements through a Wadena bank.

Saturday at 9 a.m. Robby was prepared for the transplant. He was taken to surgery and, when word was received that the heart had been harvested and was on the way to the hospital, his chest cavity was opened. At 4:30 p.m. the donor heart arrived. At 6:30 p.m. Dr. Stuart Jamieson, heart-lung surgeon, came out of the operating room to inform Bob and Donna that the transplant had been completed. Robby had spent only an hour and eight minutes on a bypass machine — record speed for transplant procedure.

Relieved that the procedure had gone smoothly, Bob and Donna returned to the place they had been staying, only to be notified about 11:30 p.m. that Robby was continuing to bleed internally and that corrective surgery would be necessary. They again rushed to the hospital and waited until about 2:30 a.m. when they were informed that second surgery had been completed.

On the second day following receipt of his new heart, Robby was up and walking with assistance. After the third day he was transferred from the intensive car unit. Eight days after the surgery he was told he could also go the state fair, but his parents drew the line on that amount of activity.

The Grendahls were informed that the surgical procedure involved attaching Robby's new heart to a portion of the old one because the lining had become so stretched from his own enlarged heart. As the lining shrinks, the portion of the old heart remaining will shrivel away.

Not much is known about the donor of the heart which now keeps Robby alive, according to his parents. They were informed only that the person was the victim of an accident, but they don't know what kind of accident and they don't know the age or sex of the donor. They do know that a number of other organs had been harvested from the donor and that the heart was taken late in the day because it is the last organ removed.

They would like to make contact with the family of the donor if that them. The American Red Cross will serve as an intermediary and the current director of the university's transplant program encourages a greater openness between donor and recipient families. The Grendahls especially want to relay their appreciation.

Beginning with his convalescence in the cardiology unit, Robby and his family were provided with a manual to study on diet, exercise, side effects of medications, reasons for the use of those medications and other important information. Robby keeps a record of his temperature twice a day, his weight once a day and blood pressure and pulse twice a day. At first he was taking 38 pills a day, but that has now been reduced to a dozen. Three of the medications he takes are immunosuppressants; all are taken orally.

While the drugs are vital to survival, their cost is a major item. One of the immunosuppressants — cyclosporine — is a major breakthrough in treating transplant recipients. But a 10-day supply of the liquid in a small bottle costs from $140 to $180. Robby can anticipate being on medications all his life. Based on present costs and dosages, the cost will be from $20,000 to $25,000 per year for medications and check-ups.

The Grendahls said that the cost of the transplant operation and related hospitalization and fees will be about $125,000. Bob's medical insurance will cover most of that and his policy should also cover most of Robby's medications while he is still a dependent. After that time the future is clouded; most worker's gross income is less than what Robby expects his medical costs to be alone.

Robby's friends and other friends of the family at Wadena held several fund-raisers, including a radio effort, spaghetti supper, "Rock for Robby" dance, chili supper, volleyball games and other events. They presented him with a black hat containing a check.

Throughout the ordeal, Robby insists he was never bothered by pain. He remembers little about the week or so that he was in the hospital before and after the transplant, although his family says he was alert and took part in conversations.

"I was concerned that he know everything about what was going on," Bob Grendahl said. "If I knew than what I know now, I maybe wouldn't have been so insistent. But when we talked to him about the possibility of a transplant, and the need for it, he just said, 'Let's get it done'."

For the first six or seven weeks after the surgery, Robby had to be back for checkups twice a week. That was reduced to weekly checkups for three or four weeks. Now the schedule involves visits to the cardiologist only once a month, but a biopsy is taken each month — the only way to accurately monitor his condition.

How does Robby feel about the whole situation? "It seems a little unbelievable," he said after some quiet deliberation. But he is taking things well in stride. This week he started skating again, but his doctors want him to stay away from hockey for this season. The ban isn't because of the heart but because of the healing required from the surgery and the problems which could be encountered with immunosuppressants and bone breakage.

Robby is on a low salt diet (2,000 milligrams per day), again due not to the new heart but to the medications he takes. He is also on a low fat and low cholestrol diet that is probably no more restrictive than would be beneficial to most people.

Heart transplants are becoming increasingly common and success rate is exceptionally high. From 1978 until the start of 1986 there had been 56 heart transplant surgeries at the University hospitals. Robby's transplant was number 84 and more than a dozen have been done since then. Only two of the patients receiving transplants failed to survive the first year after surgery. One of the patients is still alive after eight years. Techniques, procedures and medications are improving all the time and advancements are expected to continue.

The Grendahls' experience has made them active promoters of the donor program operated through the American Red Cross. They encourage everyone to carry a donor card which indicates they want their organs to be used in the event of death and to communicate those wishes to their families, which will ultimately also have to give approval.

They recognize that a death must occur for organs to become available, but having experienced the life-giving aspect of such a donation they know the value of such a selfless gift.

"I wonder," Robby said, "if they could transplant my new heart again. I'll have to ask my cardiologist at my next checkuup."

In the meantime, he has a lot of living to do.

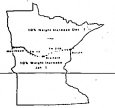
Truckers May Add 10 Per Cent To Weight Limits



Beginning on December 1, the Minnesota department of transportation is allowing truckers to add an extra 10 per cent to their legal load limits on state highways in northern Minnesota, according to Mn-DOT District Engineer Bob Wolfe in Bemidji.

The extra weight will be allowed on all state highways north of and including Trunk Highway 10 from Moorhead to Brainerd and Trunk Highway 210 from Brainerd to Duluth.

The extra loading will be allowed in the rest of the state beginning January 1. A special permit is required for trucks carrying the extra weight on Interstate highways.

According to Wolfe, the increased loading is made possible because of the additional strength the roadways gain when they freeze. He added that bridges are not strengthened by cold weather and that truckers should make sure that there are no posted bridges on their routes.

Questions about the weight increases should be directed to the Mn-DOT permit offices in Bemidji (218) 755-2942 or Crookston (218) 281-3503.

NFO Convention Underway At Nashville, TN

"Success Thru Unity" marks the tone of the 1986 National Farmers organization's annual convention being held through Friday at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, TN.

"Because of the efforts made with other farm organizations this year, particularly in the signing of marketing agreements with the Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa Farmers Unions, we felt this theme was appropriate for the 1986 convention," NFO president DeVon Woodland commented in making the convention announcement.

"This increase in volumes of production moving through the National Farmers Organization, as a result of participation by Farmers Union members, will certainly lead to success in the marketplace in the upcoming year. We will continue our efforts in working with all farm organizations.

Prowlers Open Basketball Season Against Rockets Friday

Three starters back from a 13-9 team — the Prowlers' first winning season since 1979-80 — will give the Thief River Falls a boost of confidence heading into the 1986-87 high school basketball season, which starts Friday when the Prowlers host Kennedy.

Junior varsity game is scheduled to start at 6:15 p.m., with the varsity game to follow.

While much of the line-up returns from a year ago, it'll still be a different-looking Thief River Falls team this winter as the Prowlers take the court without graduated 6-5 Kevin Nelson and 6-6 Dave Onkka. Nelson averaged 13 points and eight rebounds per game, and Onkka was a force on defense under the basket. The Prowlers will also miss Mike Kloety, who played extensively as a senior either in a starting role, or off the bench.

But guards Chris Bjorgaard and Griff Newland, along with forward Chris Nelson are all back in familiar starting roles. Bjorgaard and Nelson, a pair of juniors, averaged 12 and 11 points per game, respectively, last year. Newland, the team's quickest player, is a senior.

Brian Stark, a 6-4 senior letterman, will step in at center, while Jarrod Kalsnes and Todd Solsten, a pair of senior letter winners, compete for the other starting forward spot.

Seniors Jon Erickson, Tom Knoff and Quincy Lofberg, plus juniors Jason Tangquist and Todd Hornseth, round out the varsity squad. Erickson and Knoff are returning letter winners.

Thief River Falls lined up scrimmage sessions over the weekend against Grand Rapids and Bagley, and Monday participated in a jamboree at Kennedy, where the Prowlers out-scored Hallock 29-22 in two quarters of basketball. The Thief River Falls junior varsity lost a 24-21 decision to Strandquist at the same site.

"I feel we played decent," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt after the three outings. "We got up and down the court fairly well, but we still have a ways to go defensively, and our rebounding needs to improve."

Rebounding may be a key to the Prowlers' success this winter, indicated Hunt. "We hope to get our running game going, but we have to do a better job rebounding if we want to fast break. If we get the ball, we'll go (run) with it."

A number of teams on the schedule possess strong front line combinations, like Kennedy and next week's foe, Moorhead, adding additional challenges for the Prowlers, mentioned Hunt. "Our first two games will tell us a lot about our ball club," he said. "Kennedy is one of the favorites in District 32, and Moorhead, of course, will be tough."

But Hunt likes his team's chances. "If we play up to our potential, we should have a fun team to watch this year," he said.

After hosting the Rockets, the Prowlers will wait until Friday, December 12, to visit Moorhead. They'll be back on to play Roseau the following night, then stage their fourth annual Northwest Christmas Classic Dec. 23, 26 and 27.

AN EFFECTIVE screen set by Thief River Falls' Lisa Lillevold (55) blocked a Warren defender as the Prowlers' Cindy Kruta cut to the basket in the second half of Tuesday's high school basketball game played here. The Prowlers opened their 1986-87 home schedule with a 46-31 victory over the Ponies. They host Roseau Saturday.

Kelly Cornell Leads TRF Girls . . .

TRF Beats Warren 46-31

Sparked by guard Kelly Cornell's 21 points, the Thief River Falls girls out-scored Warren 21-6 in the third quarter Tuesday, and that 15-point spread was the margin of victory at the end as the Prowlers beat the Ponies 46-31 in their 1986-87 high school basketball home opener.

Both sides played solid basketball at the start when the Prowlers emerged with a 15-12 first quarter lead. But both offenses suddenly quit working in a second quarter that produced just seven points and an 18-16 Thief River Falls halftime lead despite the fact the Prowlers went the whole eight minutes without a field goal.

That changed in a hurry, though, in the third quarter when Cornell, a 5-8 junior, hit three baskets in the first 50 seconds of the second half. She scored on a drive to start the blitz, scored from underneath the basket moments later after a Warren turnover, and then pulled up on a drive for a short jumper that made it a sudden 24-16 spread for the Prowlers.

It didn't end there, either. Backcourt mate Brenda Russell scored off a drive, and Cornell got back in the act by hitting one from the side as the gap widened to 28-16 with 5:33 remaining in the quarter.

Baskets by Joyce Seward and Val Nielson put a temporary stop to the Thief River Falls breakaway, making it 28-20 midway through the quarter, but the next 11 points came from the Prowlers including three baskets in a row by 6-0 senior center Laura Beito, to put the game away. It was 39-22 when the quarter ended.

The fourth quarter resembled the second, but even though the Prowlers scored just once in the final five minutes, their lead was never challenged.

"We put in two quarters of ball," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was a good first quarter for both teams. We didn't do much in the second and fourth quarters, but we came out in the third quarter and played some good ball. We played with some intensity that quarter; it seemed to be missing in the second quarter. We ran the ball well on the fast break that quarter, too, and our rebounding was better."

Cornell finished with 21 points, while Russell added 11 and Beito 10.

Mary Bjorgaard, a 5-5 junior guard, was Warren's best player, scoring a team-high 8 points.

An inconsistent shooting night wound up as a 37 per cent figure from the field for the Prowlers, who made 19 of 52 shots. They were 7-for-14 in the first quarter, 0-for-9 in the second quarter, 10-for-18 in the third quarter and 2-for-11 in the fourth quarter. Warren shot 38 per cent for the game, going 14-for-37. The Prowlers shot 47 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-17), while the Ponies shot 43 per cent (3-for-7). Thief River Falls ended up with a 35-23 rebound advantage, including a 16-6 edge on the offensive boards. Warren topped the turnover charts 17-15, eight of those coming in the Ponies' third quarter collapse.

Thief River Falls, 2-0 for the year, hosts Roseau Saturday.

Plummer Wins Opener 53-36

Plummer overcame a slow start to beat East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 53-36 Tuesday in a 1986-87 season-opening boys high school basketball game at East Grand Forks.

Sacred Heart led 10-9 at the end of the first quarter before a Plummer press was put into effect, producing a 21-14 halftime lead for the Cardinals, who opened up a 42-23 third quarter spread.

"We got off to a very slow start," admitted Plummer coach Jim Baron. "We really didn't want to press, but we had to. That was the difference in the game."

The press forced 37 Sacred Heart turnovers. Plummer was charged with 22 of them.

Shane Freyholtz and Wade Grinde, a pair of 6-4 juniors, scored 17 and 15 points, respectively, for the Cardinals. Chip Shea had 17 for the Eagles.

Plummer shot 47 per cent from the field (25-for-53) and 38 per cent at the free throw line (3-for-8). Sacred Heart shot 34 per cent from the field (16-for-47) and 40 per cent at the line (4-for-10). The Cardinals had a 35-25 rebound edge.

Baron said he'll take the season-opening win, but his Cardinals, who are expected to be a District 31A challenger this winter, "have lots of room for improvement," he noted.

Plummer visits Alvarado Friday. The Cardinals' home opener will be Tuesday, December 16, vs. Clearbrook.

Clearbrook	66
Goodridge	65

Goodridge owned a 10-point lead with four minutes remaining in the game, but faltered in the face of a Clearbrook press down the stretch that resulted in a season-opening 66-65 defeat for the Huskies Tuesday night.

Tim Nordlund, who scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Clearbrook comeback, sank two free throws with 10 seconds left for the victory.

Despite the loss, first-year Goodridge coach John Rahn wasn't disappointed in the Huskies' play. "It was a super performance," he said. "My kids played well. They played really hard. I was pleased."

The loss spoiled a big 33-point, 13-rebound game by Goodridge junior Shawn Groven. Senior Jeff Berg contributed 13 points. Clearbrook, hitting consistently from the outside, had four double figure scorers, led by Lee Westrum's 20 points.

Goodridge led 14-11 at the end of the first quarter, trailed 31-30 at halftime and regained a 46-41 third quarter lead.

The Huskies shot an impressive 60 per cent from the field (28-for-47), but shot just 41 per cent from the free throw line, where a 9-for-22 showing proved costly. Clearbrook shot 73 per cent at the line (16-for-22).

Goodridge will be on the road again Friday, visiting Climax.

Northland Hockey Team Opens Season Thursday Against UMC

Scott Bergland's first Northland Community College hockey team finished 4-17 in 1984-85. The record climbed to 12-7-2 in 1985-86, and Bergland is looking to improve on that figure again when the 1986-87 season gets underway Thursday with a 7:30 p.m. game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Bergland figures there's enough talent on hand for the Pioneers to make a serious Minnesota Community College Conference title bid this winter.

"I'm excited," admitted Bergland as he talked about his team's potential. The skills are there, he said. It's simply a matter of the players putting in the effort required to be a winner. "It all depends on what they (players) want to do," he explained.

Northland had its best finish since a 14-9-1 campaign in 1972-73 last year, and the Pioneers will be trying to put back-to-back winning seasons together for the first time since the Swede Lund-coached Northmen did it in 1971-72 (13-11) and 1972-73 — their second and third year of hockey-playing existence.

Biggest losses off last year's team are Tim Bottem and Brad Burlog. Bottem led Northland in scoring with 26 goals, 18 assists and 44 points, and Burlog shared goaltending duties with Dean Hanson, recording a 5-3-1 record with a 4.88 goals-against-average.

However, Hanson is back after a 7-4-1 season in the nets when the Grand Forks Central product sported a 3.58 g.a.a. And Thief River Falls' Steve Wiskow, the team's second-leading scorer (22-19-41) is also back.

Other returning sophomores include defensemen Chad Swenseid (Grand Forks Central) and Stacy Monkman (Roseau), plus forwards Darrin Abernathy (Grand Forks Central), Stacy Lies (Fargo South) and Ron Dass (Ely). There's also Thief River Falls' Chad Bottom, a sophomore transfer student from Bottineau, ND.

Freshmen on hand include Al Erickson, Bill Desrocher, Joe Blankenfeld and Lee Hamre of Thief River Falls, Troy Miller and Tim Sand, Grand Forks Red River; Tony Hagen, Brian Nelson and Steve Ristau, East Grand Forks; Jim Speidel and Steve Mahoney, Jamestown, ND, Curt Chaffee, Eric Anderson, Darrin Elliot and Mike Zelinski, Fargo North, Russ Cagnoni, Aspen, CO, Brad Lang, Stonewall, MB; and Mike Delorme, Red Lake Falls.

Chaffee is pushing Hanson for the team's No. 1 goalie status, and both will play. "They're both excellent goaltenders," pointed out Bergland.

Defensively, the pairings include Swendseid-Desrocher, Monkman-Nelson, Hagen-Cagnoni and Elliot-Sand. "We've got eight pretty good defensemen," mentioned Bergland. "We've got a lot more depth back there than we had last year."

Up front, Erickson will center Ristau and Wiskow, Mahoney will skate with Blankenfeld and Bottem, Speidel will center Miller and Abernathy, while Anderson skates with Lies and Hamre for the opener. Wiskow is a proven MCCC scorer, said Bergland, while most of the others showed they could put the puck in the net at the high school level. "We're fairly quick up front," he mentioned. "We're a little small, but they can go."

There is no MCCC scouting report, but UMC and Hibbing are traditional powers. Northland has a challenge in that 13 of the Pioneers' first 14 games will be played on the road.

"It's important for us to get off to a good start," explained Bergland. "If we do well on the road early, we'll be in pretty good position with our schedule in January and February. If we struggle at the start, we might be in trouble."

Pioneers Face Tests

Northland Community College basketball teams, after opening the 1986-87 season with a doubleheader sweep over a pair of alumni teams Saturday, will face varsity-type competition for the first time this week.

The Northland women are scheduled to host Rainy River tonight (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. Coach Tom Neibauer's Pioneers beat their alumni 84-48 Saturday. They will be idle this weekend, returning to action Tuesday, December 9, when they host the Concordia College junior varsity.

Northland men will participate in the four-team Austin Invitational Friday and Saturday, where the Pioneers will join Western Wisconsin Tech, Iowa Lakes and host Austin in a competitive field. A four-team women's tournament is conducted at the same time, with the women playing both Friday and Saturday afternoon, while the men play Friday and Saturday night.

Before returning to Thief River Falls, the Pioneers will stop in Willmar Sunday for a 2 p.m. game.

Coach Chet Engelman's Pioneers beat their alumni 95-73 Saturday. He wasn't sure which of the 13 players on the roster would be in the starting line-up this weekend, but figures Northland should be competitive no matter who is on the court. "We don't have any outstanding talent," said Engelman, "but nobody is dogging it, either. If we work hard, we'll win some games."

Prowlers Face Redskins In Hockey Opener

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

Thief River Falls will open its 1986-'87 high school hockey season Saturday against Grand Forks Central when the Prowlers begin an effort to reverse last year's 8-14 finish that left them in uncharacteristic 16th place in the 19-team Section 8 standings.

It was their first losing season since 1975-76 when the Prowlers went 8-13-1.

Admittedly the Prowlers haven't been enjoying state tournament-type of success, and that has frustrated those involved with the program. But Thief River Falls always fields solid, competitive hockey teams. Last year, despite the record, was no different.

Thief River Falls hockey was certainly entertaining last winter when 17 of the Prowlers' 22 games were decided by a two-goal margin or less, including 12 one-goal decisions and six overtime games. The Prowlers lost seven one-goal games — four of them in overtime, including a 3-2 season-ending setback to East Grand Forks in the Sub-Section 8 playoffs.

It was a frustrating injury plagued campaign for the Prowlers and head coach Wendell Grand. It won't be easy to get back above .500 this winter, either. Key graduation losses off last year's team include Bill Desrocher, a three-year regular on defense, and Al Erickson, the Prowlers' leading scorer with 17 goals, 13 assists and 30 points. But they do return top-notch players like forwards Scott Novak and Blair Lund, defensemen Dave Johnson and goalie Shayne Anderson. Novak (10-15-21) and Lund (10-11-21) ranked second and third on last year's scoring charts. Johnson is starting status in goal last year as a sophomore.

There's little doubt the Prowlers will once again be competitive, but the question is, do they have enough overall depth to challenge preseason Section 8 favorites like Warroad, Bemidji and Roseau. Grand concedes that the Warriors, Lumberjacks and Rams are the front-runners, but adds that the gap between those three and teams like Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls and Moorhead might not be as great as some people might think.

After meeting the Redskins Saturday at the Grand Forks Arena, the Prowlers will wait until Tuesday, December 16, to play again, hosting Grand Forks Red River in their 1986-87 home opener that night.

— Youth Hockey —

Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team opened its 1986-87 hockey season with a weekend sweep over Fargo South and Bemidji.

Marc Haugen had a three-goal hat trick in a 9-3 Saturday victory over visiting Fargo South. Jason Svir scored twice, while Nathan Knutson, Matt Steinert, Cory Offerdahl and Rick Ostby had single goals for the winners. Offerdahl and Mike Hink both had three assists, and Knutson had two.

Barry Dowers was in goal for Thief River Falls.

Haugen came up with the game-winning goal on an assist from Offerdahl with 2:32 left in a six-minute sudden-death overtime period Sunday as Thief River Falls edged host Bemidji 7-6.

Bemidji had scored with just four seconds left in regulation time to force overtime.

Svir scored twice for the winners. Offerdahl, Knutson, Aaron Broten and Jeff Stengrim added single goals. Corey Mattson had two assists.

Ross Boldt made 28 saves in the Thief River Falls nets.

Pee-Wee B

Beaten soundly by Fargo South 9-2 in the season opener Saturday, the Thief River Falls Pee-Wee B team bounced back to gain a 2-2 Sunday tie at Bemidji.

With just one team practice under their belt, the Bees had a shakey home debut in the loss to Fargo South. Pete Antonenko and Guy Gustafson scored the goals as Thief River Falls was out-shot 23-15.

Thief River Falls turned it around Sunday, though, out-shooting Bemidji 21-8. Jason Niemi and Brett Torkelson scored as Thief River Falls gained a 2-0 second period lead. There was no overtime period played because of a time problem.

Trevor Haugen handles the Thief River Falls Pee-Wee B goaltending.

VFW Bantam A

Fargo South knocked off the Thief River Falls VFW Bantam A team 6-2 Saturday at the Sports Arena, but Crookston was a 7-3 loser in the same building Sunday.

Corey Poole and Chad Kleinvachter were the Saturday goal-scorers. Ryan Haugen played in goal, making 25 saves. Thief River Falls forced the Fargo South goalie to make 28 stops.

Paul Borchert scored twice in the win over Crookston. Single goals came from Roger Anderson, John Seaverson, Dave Stengrim, Wade Jorde and Poole.

Todd Stewart made 17 saves for the winners, while Crookston came up with 38 saves.

Bantam B

Thief River Falls Bantam B team lost a pair of identical 5-4 decisions to Fargo South and Grand Forks North over the weekend to begin the 1986-87 hockey season.

Troy Coltom scored two goals and Darin Tele had three assists in the Saturday loss to Fargo South at the Old Arena, a game that featured 17 penalties — 11 assessed Thief River Falls.

Mark Daniels had a goal and an assist for the losers, who pulled within one goal with just six seconds remaining in the game.

Bryan Cloutier made 18 saves for Thief River Falls. The Fargo South goalie came up with 23 stops.

Tele had a goal and an assist Sunday at Grand Forks, with Brian Gillespie, Cory Delap and Coltom scoring goals, too. David Klesow had two assists. This time Thief River Falls made it a one-goal game with just three seconds to play.

Cloutier made 22 saves in a strong performance in the nets. Grand Forks came up with 24 saves. There were 16 penalties in this one — 10 against Grand Forks North.

Squirts In-House

Thief River Falls Squirts In-House league play starts Saturday with three games. Hardees-Bridgeman will play TG Sporting Goods in an 8 a.m. game at the Old Arena, while Sports Arena match-ups include Pizza Hut vs. Pepsi at 8 a.m. and Coke vs. Red Lake Falls at 9:30 a.m.

GOING AFTER a loose ball, Thief River Falls guard Kelly Cornell picked up a rebound on this play during Tuesday's high school basketball game against Warren. Teammate Laura Beito was also under the basket, while Roberta Wesolowski (42) and Val Nielson (30) looked on. The Prowlers won 46-31.

Middle River Girls Win 39-24

Middle River girls used their front line strength to beat host Warroad 39-24 Monday, putting the Skippers at 1-1 for the year. They lost their opener 50-31 last week to Plummer.

"It was an improvement over the first game," said Middle River coach Steve Larson after the victory.

Rayette Benke, a 5-7 senior, had a 20-point, 13-rebound night, which included a perfect 10-for-10 effort at the free throw line. Those figures helped the Skippers to a 13-for-18 (72 per cent) game at the free throw line and a 40-26 advantage in rebounds. Kerry Nelson, a 5-10 sophomore, had 14 rebounds and Stacie Sparby, a 5-11 sophomore, grabbed 9.

"We should be pretty strong on the boards this year with those three," acknowledged Larson. "We did a real good job on the boards in the first half; they (Warroad) were only getting one shot."

Middle River led 6-4 at the end of the first quarter, opened up a 19-5 halftime cushion and had a 31-10 third quarter spread before Warroad managed to cut into the deficit in the fourth quarter.

Warroad had trouble shooting. The Warriors were 10-for-53 from the field (19 per cent) and 4-for-18 at the free throw line (22 per cent). Middle River made 13 of 41 field goal tries (32 per cent).

Middle River will play Lake of the Woods Friday at Baudette and will host Tri-County Monday.

Goodridge	41

Julie Murack scored 27 points, including a game-winning free throw with six seconds remaining Monday, to lead Oklee past visiting Goodridge 42-41 in the 1986-87 season-opener for both teams.

Bridget Sjulestad has a 21-point, 14-rebound game for the Huskies. Cindy Vettleson had 14 points for the losers and Kelly Moen 10 for the winners.

Goodridge led 10-7 at the end of the first quarter, fell behind 21-16 at halftime and came back for a 28-28 third quarter tie.

"It was a tough game to lose," acknowledged Goodridge coach Patti Johnson, "but I can't say that either one of us played that terrific."

Goodridge shot 24 per cent from the field (17-for-70) and 54 per cent at the free throw line (7-for-13). Oklee shot 29 per cent from the field (17-for-61) and 47 per cent at the line (8-for-17). Oklee had a 37-35 rebound edge.

The Huskies host Oslo Thursday in their home opener and entertain Red Lake Falls Monday.

Plummer	79

Janelle Konickson scored 27 points Tuesday in just 2½ quarters of action to lead Plummer past Strandquist 79-48 in the Cardinals' 1986-87 home opener.

Robin Brantl contributed 19 points and Renae Walter had 11 as Plummer rolled up quarter leads of 24-14, 51-25 and 74-33. Kari Walton and Lorina Berggren scored 14 and 12 points, respectively, to lead Strandquist.

It was the second win in two starts for the Cardinals, and Plummer coach Rick Koivisto was happy with what he saw. "Seventy-four points in three quarters," he noted. "You've got to be satisfied with that."

Plummer shot 43 per cent from the field (31-for-72) and 63 per cent at the free throw line (17-for-27). Strandquist shot 32 per cent from the field (22-for-68) and 50 per cent at the line (4-for-8). The Cardinals had a 37-31 rebound edge.

DNR NEWS

Cross-Country Skiers

Cross-country skiers who use public trails groomed and signed with the help of state money will need state cross-country ski licenses again this winter, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

DNR is allowed to spend no more on ski trails than is raised each year through licenses sales. "All the money is legislatively earmarked for skiing," said Dan Collins, DNR trail programs supervisor. "If we're going to have the money to develop and take care of trails, people must support the trail system by buying a license."

This is the fourth season that the licenses have been required in state parks, state forests and on all state-developed trails. They also are needed in many county and municipal recreation areas, including all Hennepin County park reserves, in which state money has been used for recreation. Licenses are not required on federal ski trails and in unsigned areas where skiers break trail themselves.

Explore Minnesota on Skies, the 1986-87 guide to downhill and cross-country ski areas published by the Minnesota Office of Tourism, provides a list of 2,700 miles of cross-country trails in the state and indicates which require licenses.

Sale of cross-country ski licenses generated $190,000 for the acquisition, development and maintenance of ski trails last year, said Collins. "License sales were up dramatically," he said. "Revenues have allowed the state grants-in-aid trail program to continue after other sources of money have dried up."

Ski license money distributed through the DNR's grants-in-aid program has allowed many communities to develop cross-country trails, Collins said.

Annual individual license costs $5. A husband-wife license is $7.50. A daily permit is $1. About 70,000 skiers bought licenses last year, Collins said.

Licenses are available at more than 300 locations, including any state park, designated trail locations, county auditor's offices and the DNR Bureau of Licenses at 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul.

Special Rules Proposed

Proposals to manage Beer Lake for muskies and to allow anglers to take more northern pike from Dead and Star lakes are the subjects of two Department of Natural Resources public meetings Dec. 4 at the Senior Citizen's Center in Dent in Otter Tail County.

First meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m., will be devoted to a proposal to ban all spearing on Beers Lake, a 255-acre lake in Maplewood State Park in west-central Minnesota.

Wisconsin-strain muskies supplied by Muskies Inc. have been stocked in the lake four times since 1977, said Richard Hassinger, chief of fisheries for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. The spearing ban is intended to protect these fish, many of which are now reaching the legal size of 30 inches and may be mistaken for northern pike.

In recent years there has been little darkhouse spearing on the lake, Hassinger said.

Second meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m., will cover a proposal to increase the daily bag limit on northern pike on Dead Lake (7,901 acres) and Star Lake (4,721 acres), which are joined by a small stream.

Daily bag would be raised from the statewide limit of three pike to six pike, only three of which may exceed 24 inches.

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts, National Wildlife Federation

Niger Seed: Black Gold

To many of us, black gold means crude oil. To feeders of birds, however, the price of black niger seed, one of our frequent purchases, might also bring to mind that same phrase. And like that other black gold, niger seed (or "thistle" as some call it) carries with it a certain amount of intrigue and international mystery.

The seed from Guizotia abyssinica comes to us from Ethiopia and Asia, with as much as 70% of the 7500 tons we import annually coming from northern India. In these nations, niger seed is an oilseed crop that provides an inexpensive cooking oil that many peasants are able to grow on their small holdings.

The seed, a distant relative of the sunflower, is fussy about where it grows, preferring long days and warm temperatures. Unlike many commercially-grown, machine-harvested crops, niger seed matures just a few seeds per plant per day. Harvesting, which must be done by hand, goes on for months.

Growing the crop for bird-seed export provides growers with extra cash profits. But, because of the seed's maturation pattern, profits must accumulate very slowly. That's one reason we pay a high price for these tiny black seeds that goldfinches and siskins seem addicted to.

Many seed crops that come into the U.S. from developing nations are required by the Department of Agriculture to be sterilized. This, of course, includes niger seed and there's good reason. In imports from India, for instance: As the seed gradually accumulates in regional holding areas and moves toward the port cities, it is continually subject to contamination by unwanted weed seeds. Therefore, to forestall the possibility of some killer weed sneaking into the U.S., the niger seed is sterilized at port-of-entry.

The sterilization process itself can create problems that add to seed importers' costs. When seed is steamed in its sacks at the boiling point of water, mold may develop and spread through the seed. That can change the taste and texture of the seed—which may make it unpalatable to birds and causes an availability crunch that drives up the price of the seed.

Niger seed became very popular in the U.S. wild bird seed market some ten years ago. Those of us who are regular purchasers of the seed have watched its price fluctuate with the change in governments in Ethiopia and with the tightening of the agricultural import restrictions on seed crops.

What's the outlook for the goldfinches' favorite this year. Well, I'm glad to be able to report that facilities have been expanded to handle large quantities of niger and to sterilize it by means of a dry process instead of the steam method. Market prices are about the same this year as last. So it appears that we'll be able to buy excellent quality, palatable niger seed.

As you fill up that plastic tube or thistle sock, you can reflect on where your seed came from, how it was harvested and how good it is that with a stable market and expanded sterilizing facilities, we should be able to spend less time ferreting out the good seed and gasping as we write out the checks for bird seed and more time watching birds.

SIX-POUND WALLEYE was caught by 14-year-old Terry Benson of St. Hilaire on Thanksgiving day while angling from a fish house owned by his grandfather, Maurice Benson, on the Red Lake river near the Eighth street bridge in Thief River Falls. Terry was using a minnow for bait while doing some fishing after dinner at his grandparents' home and caught the walleye about 1:30 p.m. Maurice Benson said he had the fish house on the river for three days and had caught several notherns but Terry's prize was the first walleye caught this winter season.

History Of Forestry In Minnesota
(Part of a Series)
by Vincent Buck, Warroad

First assistant ranger to be stationed at Clear River was Raymond Geroy in 1944. He was followed by Arthur Oliver in 1946. Oliver resigned in 1948 and was replaced by Burton Peterson, who transferred out of the area in 1951 at which time Tom Adams was appointed to the Clear River position.

When the Warroad area headquarters was established, the office was located in what is known as the Carlquist Building. This place was occupied until 1950 when warehouse and office buildings were completed on a newly acquired site and headquarters moved to its present location on East Lake Street.

First move to make a complete inventory of the timber resources of the Beltrami Island State Forest was made in 1949 and foresters Willard West and Frank Usenik were assigned to this work with headquarters at Warroad.

Until this time very little work had been done on the inaccessible Northwest Angle. Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company moved to the Angle in 1949 with a 25-year contract with the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs to harvest all mature timber on Indian tribal lands. They built a winter road from Middlebro, Manitoba and set up a permanent camp. This provided an opportunity to harvest large areas of overmature spruce and aspen on state-owned lands in the Northwest Angle State Forest. These large-scaleloggingoperationsalsoincreased the fire hazard on the Angle and in 1951, the lookout tower located at Warroad was moved to the M & O Camp. Fire fighting tools and equipment were located at the camp and forest guard Norman Hohn was assigned to the Angle during periods of high fire danger.

Demand for pulpwood had greatly increased since the pre-war years. With the improved market, the initiation of an intensive management program for the Beltrami Island State Forest and operations on the Northwest Angle, the timber sales work load became too heavy for the area ranger force. In 1950, appraiser Brandol Hopia was assigned to the area. His duties consisted of making and supervising all timber sales on the Northwest Angle and all auction sales in the Beltrami Island State Forest. At one time during the early 1950s there were over 40 active auction sales in the isolated parts of Beltrami and Lake of the Woods Counties.

In 1952 Jerry Person resigned from the position of assistant area supervisor and in January, 1953, Conrad Larson was appointed to fill the vacancy.

As duties, activities and responsibilities increased, it became evident that the River District was too large to be administered by one ranger. In 1953 a combination office and warehouse was built at Grygla and the River District was divided in two. Oliver Anderson, who had been assistant ranger at River since 1952, was transferred to Grygla in charge of the newly-created district. The lookout tower was moved. This is now known as the Linder Tower in memory of the late Art Linder.

For many years there had been no major changes in district ranger personnel in the area. On June 14, 1955, Wayne Henderson was seriously injured in a fall across the endgate of a pickup truck while unloading supplies at Norris Camp in preparation for a supervisors' meeting. After reporting the accident he stayed on the job and did not visit a doctor until the two-day meeting was over. He died in the Warroad hospital on June 20, 1955 after serving as ranger in the Norris District for 17 years.

Passing of Wayne Henderson marked the end of an era in the Norris District. His wife, Iva, had the unique distinction of being the only woman forest guard in the Minnesota Forest Service. She served in that capacity through the war and up until her husband's death. Their home at the Norris Station was known far and wide for its hospitality.

(To Be Continued)

Sixty-one per cent of women with children under 18 years of age are working or seeking work, including more than half (52 per cent) of those with children younger than 6, according to "Meeting the Challenges of the 80s," a publication of the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Floyd Haugen
Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart,
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill you vacant place

Memoriam

In loving memory of Floyd Haugen, our beloved son, brother, uncle, father and grandpa who passed away Dec. 2, 1985.
We know when you were laid to rest,
For you it was the very best
In Heaven there is no suffering or pain,
You couldn't take that again and again.
Each time we think of you and your smile,
Tears fill our eyes and we cry for awhile.
Although our treasured memories of you will always stay,
We will miss you more and more each day.

Sadly missed by your Mom & Dad, brother, sister and their families, your children and grandchildren. 1t95c

Langan also reported on the status of school district tax delinquency study being conducted in four-county area. He expressed hope that study information would prove to be of value to legislators in the 1987 session.

Goodridge Education Association requested a meet-and-confer session to discuss budgeting process. GEA officers would meet with Hanson and Langan to determine agenda and meeting time and place. Johnson reported on National Education Week activities, and forthcoming Grygla-Goodridge Association meeting.

Report on Special Education program over the past two years was presented by Langan. (See Report No. 6.1 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Of particular interest was Vocational Center School study being conducted by the U.N.D. Research unit. (Copy of report perspectus attached as No. 8.2, Official Board Minutes.) Discussion of a paired volleyball program with Grygla was discussed. Land O'Lakes And Cenex Approve Consolidation

Cenex and Land O'Lakes shareholders have overwhelmingly approved a joint venture proposal which will consolidate the two cooperatives' farm supply operations. The announcement was made following Monday's special stockholders meeting of the two regional cooperatives.

More than 90 per cent of shareholders favored the proposal, in voting which followed a series of local meetings during which member-owners had an opportunity to discuss details of the proposed joint venture, Cenex and Land O'Lakes officials said.

Under the plan, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1987, Cenex will concentrate on managing the petroleum assets of the two organizations; Land O'Lakes will concentrate on managing the feed and seed assets of the two cooperatives; and the two cooperatives will combine fertilizer and ag chemical assets and jointly manage this venture.

Cenex, headquartered in Inver Grove Heights, and Land O'Lakes, headquartered in Arden Hills, have operated separate ag service divisions which supply individual farmers and local community-based co-ops with petroleum, fertilizer, ag chemicals, feed, seed and other agricultural products and services.

Raft Of Fishermen About 30 fishing huts have appeared on ice off Centennial park near Eighth street bridge. Some of the fishermen estimate the ice is 10 to 12 inches thick. They also said the fishing wasn't all that good, but judging from the number of huts on the river maybe it is better than they want to admit.

TRF Students Make Poetry

Three students from school district 564 were recognized as having written outstanding poems recently when their poems appeared in "The Large Sky Reaches Down," a statewide anthology of Minnesota student writing from the 1985-86 COMPAS writers and artists in the schools program.

Every year, publication of students work comes as a welcome surprise, and it wasn't any different this year for Cory Gustafson, sixth grade student at Franklin school; Sara Tyler, fourth grade student at Knox elementary school; or Seton McCool, fifth grade student at Washington elementary school. Unfortunately this COMPAS publication may be the last one because of funding problems.

COMPAS is the largest community arts agency in Minnesota, providing and sponsoring a variety of multi-disciplinary arts activities for people of all ages and abilities. Last year an estimated 32,000 students worked with COMPAS artists.

In the program a resident artist visits the schools and helps students channel their creativity in different ways. Last year Susan Marie Swanson of St. Paul was the artist-in-residence.

"Once, when I was working in a Thief River Falls classroom, I saw a student writing a poem about shadows, another writing about light bulbs, one writing about sun, and still another about frost — all of these happening at once. It was a pleasure to work at your schools with the honest and good-humored students who wrote these poems," said Susan Marie Swanson last February.

The residency is made possible in part by a grant provided by the Minnesota state arts board through an appropriation by the Minnesota state legislature, and in part by a grant from the National endowment for the arts. Additional support is provided by the Otto Bremer, the Dayton Hudson and the Jerome foundations, local school districts, and community groups.

At the conclusion of each school year representative student work from each of the writing residencies is selected and edited into an anthology of creative writing. "The Large Sky Reaches Down" is the 1986 anthology.

Because it is such a hard decision to make when deciding which one will appear in the COMPAS publication and because of the many fine poems written by students the school district also publishes another publication containing the poems of many students in the district. This year's publication is entitled "99 Poems."

Sara Tyler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Tyler, wrote the following poem which was published in "The Large Sky Reaches Down":

Forever and ever.
Making me cry.
It hurts.
Fills my eyes with tears.
I cry.
She's gone.
Gone forever and ever.
The hum is here.
It will be forever.
She's gone.
The bird's here.

Cory Gustafson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gustafson, wrote a poem entitled "Rejected" which appears in the COMPAS publication.

Big, sturdy and strong...
alone.
As I wait and remember, about being stuffed in a sack with twelve of my kind and two heavy bricks.
The ride that seemed forever.
And our volley over the bank and into the dank wetness.
My muzzle found a hole in the sack; I ripped for my life
...I was washed up on shore.
I live by killing not only for food but because of the pain of being rejected.
I am now a wild dog.

Seaton McCool, son of Yvonne McCool, wrote a poem called "My Friend the Moon" which was also chosen to appear in the anthology.

I have seen you with the sky and stars and with the night.
I have seen you with the wind and the weather — and in the shadows....
You chase them away from me.

THIEF RIVER FALLS students really did make poetry. These three students participated in the COMPAS artist-in-residence by writing poetry last year. To their surprise and pleasure, their work was selected for publication. Their poetry appears in "The Large Sky Reaches Down," an anthology from the Compas writers and artists-in-the-schools program.

Public Employment Lower In Minnesota

For the month of October in 1985, 172,684 full-time state and local government employees in Minnesota earned an average of $2,059 in wages. This amounts to one state and local employee for every 25 Minnesotans. Minnesota's total state and local payroll for that month was just over $400 million, an increase of 5.6 per cent since 1984, according to the Minnesota taxpayers association.

Most government employees work for local governments. Nationwide, over 7.5 million people are full-time employees of local governments while under three million work for the 50 state governments. The trend for Minnesota is similar. The state employed 47,463 persons full time in October 1985, only 27.5 per cent of the state-local total. School districts employed the most of any type of government in the state — 64,606 or 37 per cent of the total. Cities and counties each employ over 25,000.

Except for township employees, state and local employees in Minnesota were paid more than their counterparts in other states. State workers fared the best: monthly earnings for state government employees were $338 higher on average than the national total for state employees.

Minnesota state employees also earned more than local government employees in the state: $2,273 monthly versus $1,978 for all local workers. Average wages for employees of municipalities and special districts are higher than employees of other local governments. Township employees were at the bottom of the pay scale earning only $1,465 monthly on average. All categories of state and local employees in Minnesota were paid more than their counterparts in other states except the township employees.

While Minnesota governments pay their employees better than in other states, total public employment in Minnesota is lower. Nationally there are 443 state and local full-time employees per 10,000 population versus 412 in Minnesota. By this measure, Minnesota ranks 43rd out of the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

About half of Minnesota's state and local government employees are in education. Elementary and secondary education has 154 employees per 10,000 in population in the state while higher education has 44. The other large categories in Minnesota are hospitals, highways and public welfare.

Minnesota's distribution of public employment is different than the nation's. Minnesota has a smaller share of employees than the nation in the areas of elementary and secondary education, hospitals, health, police, fire, corrections and sanitation. Minnesota employs more in higher education, public welfare, highways, natural resources and parks, and financial administration.

Between October 1984 and 1985 there was a 3.3 per cent indrease in full-time state and local employees in Minnesota. This surpassed the

Enterprise Zone In TRF, A Silent Success Story

by David Hill
Times Reporter

When Thief River Falls residents speak of harsh winters, they speak from experience. But they also speak from experience when they speak of harsh economic realities.

It's no secret that Thief River Falls suffered heavily during the winter of 1981-82 when Arctic Cat snowmobile manufacturer closed its door ending nearly 1,800 jobs in a community of about 9,100. Since then the population of this Northwest Minnesota community has dropped to about 8,200.

While the population decreased since its 1982 high and many jobs disappeared, Thief River Falls has been having a tough row back to economic viability. The recovery has nearly been kept a quiet secret. However, that same recovery has been getting more and more attention.

Last year the Times reported that the enterprise zone, a major factor in an economic recovery in Thief River Falls, was getting some wide media and political attention. More recently the success of the program is being touted by the Minnesota Real Estate Journal and a major case study by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It (the enterprise zone program) has been real good for us," said Bill Hogan Sr., chairman of the community development board. "It has helped us retain companies and jobs, like at Arctco. And, we have enough money left to help any new business that may come, which is a real plus."

The enterprise zone legislative history begins in 1982 and 1983. Originally the legislation was created to benefit border cities seeking assistance to equalize the tax burden across state lines. High taxes in Minnesota made it difficult for cities along the borders of North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin to keep businesses interested in continuing their business in Minnesota. But the legislature altered the bill in 1983 to accomodate cities in Minnesota meeting requirements of the zones within these areas, including competitive criteria and criteria as an economic hardship area.

As a result, the zones are divided into two types: border cities and competitive cities. The six border city zones are Duluth, Breckenridge, Dilworth, Moorhead, Ortonville and East Grand Forks.

The first five competitive city zones, Thief River Falls, Virginia-Mountain Iron, Mankato and parts of Minneapolis and St. Paul, were chosen because of their level of economic distress and their ability to use tax credits.

The program is jointly administered by the Minnesota department of energy and economic development and the Minnesota department of revenue. However, each city board that acts as the official representative does have a say in where and how the tax credits are used.

The state legislature in 1983 allocated $22 million to the program. Funding for the program is primarily through state aid, however, each local government participating and administering the program is expected to match state grants. Thief River Falls' share is around 11 per cent or about $245,000.

Presently there are 16 enterprise zones in Minnesota with no more expected to be created. Estimates on new jobs created and retained vary, but state officials estimate that 100 to 200 jobs have been created and more than 3,000 jobs saved statewide.

Since its inception in Thief River Falls three years ago, the city has used $737,021 of its $1.75 million allocation. The maximum allowable tax credits to any one business is $500,000. Only one business, Arctco, has reached its limit.

Don Stewart, community development director, estimates that 508 new jobs have been created with the use of enterprise zone credit in Thief River Falls. Estimates on jobs created vary because in some instances credit limits were reached before the company received credit for all of its new jobs created. The 508 jobs created are also based on full time equivalents and may not take into consideration all jobs within the enterprise zone which may have benefited from enterprise zone credit.

In order to be eligible to apply for tax benefits under the program, the applicant must be located in the enterprise zone which covers a significant area in and around the city.

Workshop On New Tax Law To Be Held In TRF On Dec. 10

The effects of the new tax law on the individual and small business owner will be the topic of a workshop to be held Wednesday, December 10 from 8 to 11:30 a.m. at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls. This workshop is for all individuals and business owners concerned about the new tax law.

Cost of the workshop is $15. Pre-registration is recommended due to limited space. Sponsors of the workshop are the AVTI small business development centers in Thife River Falls and East Grand Forks.

The presenter will be Leonard Sliwoski, CPA, CMA, associate professor of accounting, Moorhead State University and director of the Moorhead SBDC.

Topics to be covered will include: "How the tax rate cuts affect your bottom line," "Congress puts the squeeze on interest deductions," "other itemized deduction changes," "last chance to cash in on capital gains," "How to make real estate investments continue to work for you," "The new tax shelter rules," "Shifting income within the family in light of the new law," "Retirement planning for 1987 and beyond," "Tax credits that remain," "The new alternative minimum tax," "Tax planning before and after December 31, 1986."

A second session will be held January 13, 1987 from 6:30 to 10 p.m. at the AVTI. This session will cover tax strategies for 1987 resulting from the new tax laws.

To register for the workshop send the $15 registration fee to the SBDC, AVTI, Hwy 1 E, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or call 681-5424 ext. 34 or 29 or call toll free 1-800-222-AVTI.

The SBDC operated under cooperative agreements with the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Minnesotans Should Recognize Dangers Of Winter Driving

And more recently, on February 4, 1984, a deceptive blizzard with very little snow swept out of Canada through the southwest regions of the state, leaving 16 dead and hundreds of stranded travelers.

Minnesota's driver's manual suggests that if you become stuck in a heavy snowstorm or blizzard: (1) Stay with the car because most deaths occur when people leave the car, get lost, and freeze to death; (2) attach a red flag to the radio antenna and set out flags and flares, if feasible; (3) bring all clothing, blankets, and other survival items into the car; (4) run the motor and heater until the car is reasonably warm, then shut it off, repeating as long as the fuel holds out; (5) provide a little ventilation even if it is very cold because carbon monoxide is dangerous in an idling car; (6) keep yourself and passengers active, exercising as much as possible, and not allowing anyone to go to sleep; (7) don't panic, and impart confidence to the passengers.

Other cues from safety tips include checking road conditions before leaving on a winter trip, letting others know your travel plans, never letting fuel in the gas tank drop below the half-way mark, maintaining the car in good working condition, and never leaving the car if it gets stuck even if the light of a farmhouse or building can be seen.

Being prepared for emergencies is important but learning to recognize one and avoid it makes better sense. Road and highway conditions reports can be obtained by calling 681-4944 in Thief River Falls.

The division of emergency services and the National weather service are once again encouraging all motorists to improve their preparedness for the winter driving season by putting together a "Winter Survival Kit" for their car. Designed for use by motorists who become stranded, these "kits" are easy to assemble and are inexpensive. Persons interested in obtaining a pamphlet which explains winter survival information in general, and winter survival "kits" in particular, can contact the Division of Emergency Services, B-5 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Living in Northwestern Minnesota should condition most residents who live in this region to traveling during harsh winters, but every year people get caught unprepared.

In recognition of the special dangers associated with the winter season, and the need for all Minnesotans to prepare themselves for it, Governor Rudy Perpich has designated the first week in December (November 30 through December 6), as winter storm awareness week.

Winter can be a season of fun winter sports, however, as the following actual incidents recorded by the Minnesota department of public safety indicate, the winter season can also be a time of tragedy:

"A woman went from her farm house to the barn in a raging blizzard and lost her way. She was found frozen to death in a snowbank two hours later.

"A man and his wife, while on their way home, drove their car into a ditch less than three miles from their home. They tried to walk the rest of the way through the storm but the BURLINGTON NORTHERN railroad division superintendent, Cliff Tye, arrived on a special train with the first loan payment of $90,000 for the Northwestern Minnesota rail shippers corporation last week in Greenbush. Tye is pictured with Buzz Marvin of Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. Marvin was instrumental in organizing shippers for the 92-mile rail reconstruction project that extends from St. Hilaire to Warroad.

Times' Capsule

Wednesday

Shopping hours have been extended in Thief River Falls until 9 p.m. during the weekdays. Santa Claus will be at the city auditorium 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. December 31. Most stores will close at 4 p.m. December 24 and 31.

Thief River Falls city council has approved the plans for a fishing pier along the bank of the river across from the Indian village park. The pier will be built and financed mostly by the Minnesota department of natural resources.

— 70 years ago Lincoln high school, with an enrollment of 351, ranked seventh in size in the state outside the Twin Cities and Duluth.

— 20 years ago a search of the farmyard of Phillip Brockopp, a 79-year-old Newfolden area farmer who died after leading a secluded life of a recluse for many years, uncovered more than $16,000.

NEW BRIDGE:
Warren will have a new bridge next year on Central street over the Snake river. The old bridge has been declared unsafe for heavy traffic.

AN ECHO?
Norm Holan wrote that the president was in South America for a peace conference. "The trouble" is, Holan writes, is that he seems to be on the wrong continent.

Tidbits from the Times includes an interesting description of "Early School Days" printed December 3, 1936 and written by Homer F. Mussey.

WEATHER

No significant precipitation is expected for the rest of the week into the weekend. Highs are expected to be from 20 to 30 degrees and lows from five to 15 degrees.

TRANQUIL MINDS

There may be a tendency to confuse tranquility with the popular tranquilizers. There is, of course, a great difference.

Tranquilizers are sometimes prescribed to soothe a troubled mind or body; but tranquility of the mind comes through the calm peace that is realized when one's life is so attuned to God's will that there is neither time nor space to allow frustration and confusion to invade the inner spirit of the soul.

A tranquil mind is not an inactive one, and it is never a closed door, but rather an open door to more abundant blessings with an ever faithful assurance that God has even more blessings in store for us.

When we are at peace with our maker, we are capable of inviting tranquility to enter and live within us; we seek His will quietly with the knowledge that He never fails us.

Your church or synagogue offers an opportunity for this serenity.

Minnesota Has Fewer Public Employees

national increase of 1.7 per cent. The largest growth in Minnesota came from the state itself, which added over 3,000 full-time employees, or a 6.9 per cent increase. (Part-time employment with the state dropped, however.) Local government employment in Minnesota increased by 1.5 per cent over the year. City employment actually dropped slightly.

Nationally, state and local government employment continues to grow. Between 1980 and 1982 there was a drop in state and local employment which interrupted a long series of regular increases. Since 1982 employment has increased and 1985 continued this trend. Total payroll costs increased by 8.1 per cent in 1985 and have increased every year for over 35 years.

Winter Driving Brings Its Own Special Hazards

woman could not keep up. Her body was found less than a mile from their car.

"A man left his stalled car 200 yards from his house and became confused in the blizzard. He walked three miles in the wrong direction and died on a neighbor's doorstep.

"These people were among a total of 30 persons who lost their lives the past couple of winter seasons as a result of winter weather conditions in Minnesota," according to David Luhdberg of the Minnesota department of public safety's emergency services division.

As the above incidents demonstrate, potentially dangerous winter weather conditions are all too common in Minnesota. Each year an average of 36 per cent of all winter storms reported in the United States affect Minnesota.

On November 11, 1940, the Armistice day blizzard caused 49 deaths and a heavy loss of livestock. In 1975 the January 12 "Storm of the Century" dropped 12 to 23 inches of snow on the state. As a result of 80 mile per hour winds this storm left thousands of motorists stranded.

Enterprise Zone In TRF, A Silent Success Story

The life of the zone is seven years. Applicants can only be accepted for five years. But if an industry were declared an employment property in the fifth year, there would be tax benefits seven years from that date. Therefore it is possible to stretch the life of the zone to 12 years.

Different kinds of tax benefits are available to industries other than for new employees: an industry can get an exemption from the general sales tax for purchases of construction materials and-or fixed assets (equipment) acquisition in the zone; an industry can get credit against the income tax of an employer for new workers employed in the zone, other than workers employed in construction, up to a maximum of $3,000 per employee; and as of just recently, an industry can get an income tax credit for a percentage of the cost of debt financing to construct new facilities in the zone.

Under the rules adopted by the community development board from the legislature's regulations it was also possible to get property tax credit for a portion of the property taxes paid by the new commercial or industrial facility or the additional property taxes paid by an expansion of an existing commercial or industrial facility in the zone. However, the city exercised an option not to use this type of credit because of its possible impact on the county tax base and school district. Thief River Falls was selected as an enterprise zone because of its economic distress. To grant property tax credits would severely impact on the county and school district.

The board was able to negotiate with the state to drop the property tax option and then use the cost of utility improvements to the enterprise zones as part of its local contribution. Of the city's total local contribution of nearly $245,000, the state has approved around $169,900. Stewart said if the state approves more capital improvements, the city can easily reach its obligation.

Stewart credits success in Thief River Falls to its judicious use of the $1.75 million available to it. When compared to the many other enterprise zones in the state, Thief River Falls has created more new jobs and investments per dollar because it has used its credits judiciously, Stewart said. Many of the enterprise zones have already used up most if not all of their enterprise zone credits. Stewart expects only more success.

"Obviously if you take out Arctco the results are not as good, but it is still relatively good when compared to other programs," Stewart said.

Stewart believes the success has been a silent one probably because Thief River Falls has not received a lot of publicity by traveling to different countries or experiencing the difficulties made through those deals. "We have kept it local, instead," Stewart said.

Most if not all of the jobs created and retained were through local businesses already established in the community or developing within the community by people living in the community. The list of the industries taking advantage of enterprise zone credit and also qualifying includes Arctco Inc., the Occupational Development Center, Future Fuel Inc., Northern Outerwear, and many others, almost all local industry.

"The enterprise zone program is an excellent tool in getting new business," said Ron Winter, board member and board chairman for Jobs Inc. Winter is convinced that while there is room for improvement, the program is a great success and help to Thief Rive Falls.

Stewart said it is difficult to draw a direct correlation between enterprise zone credits and jobs. "You cannot conclude that we would not have these jobs 'but for' enterprise zone credits. It is impossible to determine whether a business created more jobs or even stayed in a community only because of enterprise zone credits," Stewart said.

However, Stewart believes that while assessing the impact of the enterprise zone is imprecise, it has become an important tool in securing a more stable future for Thief River Falls.

To say that other communities have not had success would also be incorrect. Other communities have also done well with their credits.

Stewart believes enterprise zone credits are an important tool which is clean and relatively simple. Because of the successes reported in Minnesota, and many other states adopting the same type of program, Stewart suspects a federal program may soon become a reality. If and when it does, he suspects, one of the first areas to receive federal enterprise zone credit will be the Iron range and then many Midwest areas.

The local administration board for enterprise zone credits is an interested and motivated group of individuals not likely to sit on its laurels. Stewart said changes are always being contemplated and studied. One of the more recent changes includes acceptance of an income tax credit for a percentage of the cost of debt financing to construct new facilities in the zone. Addition of this credit option brings in Land O'Lakes and Bridgeman's, and probably others, Stewart said.

A great deal of credit still exists in which to attract a new business or get one started, which makes Thief River Falls' position advantageous. When all credits and other available assistance is added up, Stewart said, "We can put together a pretty good package."

The voting board, composed of one member from the city clerk's office (Jerry Wigness or Roger DeLap), Bill Hogan (chairman), Paul Ihle, Don Narverud, Ron Winter and J.J. Womack, is also considering new regulations and guidelines that will clarify the program as well as give them a little more leeway. For example, credit for retained employees and not just new employees may be raised to $5,000.

Ron Winter believes it is necessary to insure participation by the state in improvements. One drawback to the program is that its assistance to the economy in Minnesota as a whole is minor. The more the state can do to give businesses a reason to locate in Minnesota, the better, because the local communities can do only so much. One area of improvement, as Winter sees it, would be to reduce taxes, one major reason more business does not locate in Minnesota.

Another issue Stewart believes should be addressed is the value of a job. Stewart reasons that a job that pays a "living wage" should be given more credit than a job that pays only a "minimum wage."

State regulations exist to prevent new industry from setting up in a town, receiving credit and then leaving without paying back any of the money. But a new agreement for current and future industry using the program in Thief River Falls has been written to further protect the city. The new agreement gives the community development director the right to audit payroll records to verify eligibility. Stewart said many have done it and now we require it.

All this discussion and success will hopefully bring about changes in the program. Stewart and other community development board members are hopeful that their successes will continue.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I am 63 and disabled and I am drawing social security. If something should happen to me, will my wife be able to draw social security on me? She is 58 years old. Argyle, MN

A. Assuming that no minor children are involved, monthly survivor benefits cannot be paid to your wife until she becomes age 60. She could then be eligible for a reduced widow's benefit. If she is also found to be disabled, then a disabled widow's benefit could be paid earlier than age 60.

At the time of your death she could be paid a one time $255 benefit to help defray funeral costs. Wishing you each many more years, she can file for wife's benefits on your record when she is age 62. If children under age 16 were involved, then benefits could usually be paid to them and the surviving spouse. Both men and women can receive survivor benefits.

Q. I signed up for social security in June, 1985, so I could start receiving payments at age 62, my birthday being Aug. 16, 1985. They would not pay me for August as my birthday was August 16. Is this right for a person who paid in for 40 years? Hallock, MN

A. Yes. This is correct for retirement. The first month of entitlement, meaning the month for which benefits can first be paid, can be no earlier than the month "throughout" which the individual is age 62. Established legal precedent holds that persons attain their age on the day before their birthdays so those born on the first and second of a month could receive retirement for that month (e.g. those born August 1 or 2 can get social security for August). All others would not be age 62 "throughout" the month and benefits could first begin with the following month. This is why your benefits could first begin with the following month. This is why your benefits were effective with September.

This provision was enacted as part of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981 and was effective with benefits payable after August, 1981.

Q. I have been denied for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) due to my wife's wages. I have paid social security tax for years. Why should my wife's earnings count? Orr, ND

A. This is a common area of misconception. SSI is administered by social security but it is funded through general federal tax revenues and not social security (FICA) tax. Unlike social security, SSI is a needs-based assistance program for the disabled and those over age 65.

Income is a major factor in seeing if someone is eligible. Between the amounts of your social security disability and your wifes wages, you had too much income to be eligible.

Current income limits for SSI are $356 for individuals and $524 for couples. Not all income counts. The best way for someone to see if he or she is eligible is to contact a social security office and apply. The Grand Forks social security office is at 124 North 6 Street (phone 701-772-5517).

Q. I've been getting SSI checks for the past four years. Every year my social security office contacts me for information and to fill out papers. Little changes from year to year; is all this really necessary?

A. Yes, it is. SSI is a program for people who are 65 or over, blind, and disabled and is based on need. To be sure that you're being paid correctly, your case must be reviewed from time to time.

You also are required to notify social security if you have a change in your address or living arrangements, your income, or your resources. Changes can be reported by telephone, mail, or in person. The phone number for the Grand Forks social security office is 772-5517; in Grafton 352-0656.

Q. My disability was turned down. It was explained to me that just hurting so much that I cannot work is not good enough to be allowed. Why not? Langdon, ND

A. Under existing law (PL 98.460), pain alone cannot have a significant effect on making a disability decision unless a medically determinable impairment is present which could reasonably be expected to produce the pain alleged. This illness or injury can be physical or psychological in nature. If you believe that the original decision is incorrect you can file the appeal called a Reconsideration. If this is done, the first decision will be reviewed by medical personnel not involved with that decision.

Q. I am mailing in applications to get my four children social security numbers. Do they need to be mailed separately?

A. No, you can mail them in one large envelope. Remember that we will need to see both a birth certificate and proof of identity for each child. Your documents will be returned.

Q. Are my social security taxes kept in individual accounts?

A. No. Social security taxes are used principally to meet the current benefits and administrative costs of the program. Any social security taxes that are not needed to meet current program costs are set aside in trust fund reserves for us in the future during periods when program costs exceed program income. Although social security numbers could suggest to some that social security maintains individual accounts of taxes paid, the purpose of social security numbers is to maintain records of workers' earnings, upon which social security benefits are determined.

Q. I know that Supplemental Income (SSI) is based on income and is not the same as social security. What do I need to apply?

A. SSI is a needs based program for those either at least age 65 or disabled. When applying for SSI, a person should bring the following information:

(1) His or her social security card or a record of the social security number;

(2) Proof of age such as religious record or a birth certificate;

(3) Information about any income and assets, such as payroll slips, copies of tax returns, bank books, insurance policies, car registration and burial fund records (if applying for benefits for a child, information about the parents' income and assets will be needed);

(4) Information about the place he or she lives: the amount of the mortgage and property taxes on a home he or she owns, the lease and landlord's name if renting, and the cost of food and utilities;

(5) If disabled or blind, medical records of the names and addresses of doctors, hospitals, and clinics that have treated the person.

The monthly maximum federal SSI payments are $336 for a single adult or child and $504 for a couple. Because income and living arrangements are involved, not everyone gets these amounts. SSI resource limits are $1,700 for a single adult or child and $2,550 for a couple. Not all income or resources count.

Q. Does working past age 65 build up a worker's social security benefit?

A. Yes. Working past age 65 can produce higher social security benefits for two reasons. First, a worker's earnings after reaching retirement age may increase the average earnings upon which the worker's benefits are based. Second, a worker who delays retirement past age 65 receives a special credit that may result in a higher benefit. The credit increases the retirement benefit for each month from age 65 to age 70 that the worker does not receive benefits.

For workers age 65 after 1981, the rate of increase is 1/4 of one per cent for each month (3 per cent each year). The delayed retirement credit will gradually increase to eight per cent a year between 1990 and 2009.

Earnings after age 65 can also increase average monthly earnings and, therefore, the benefit.

Q. So far I've been lucky enough not to have to use my Medicare, but now I've got to have a major operation. Exactly what services will Medicare cover while I'm in the hospital?

A. Medicare hospital insurance (Part A) can help pay for the following services while a person is a hospital inpatient: a semiprivate room, all meals, including special diets, regular nursing services; operating and recovery room costs; the costs of special care units, such as an intensive care or coronary care unit; drugs furnished by the hospital; lab tests included in the hospital bill; X-rays and other radiology services billed by the hospital, medical supplies, use of appliances, such as a wheelchair; rehabilitation services; and blood transfusions furnished by the hospital during your stay, except for any nonreplacement fees charged for the first three pints of whole blood or units of packed red cells. Most people pay nothing for the hospital insurance part of Medicare.

Q. My brother is 23. He's out of school and can't find a job. In fact, he has no money at all. Can he get Supplemental Security Income (SSI)?

A. To be eligible for SSI, a person must be 65 or older or blind or disabled and have limited income and resources. Unless your brother is blind or disabled he is not eligible. A person 18 or older is considered disabled if a physical or mental impairment prevents him from doing any substantial gainful work and the impairment is expected to last for at least 12 months or to result in death.

Q. I know that there is a five full month waiting period before disability can be paid. Is this for everyone?

A. There is a waiting period for almost everyone starting on social security disability. For example: a disability is determined to start on March 15. The waiting period would be from April to August with the first benefit payable for September. People can file applications before the waiting period ends. Some people such as those who were on disability before, do not have a second waiting period.

Q. Does social security have a total death benefit? If so what is the amount? Badger, MN

A. There is not a total amount of social security survivor benefits which can be paid over time on a given record. The benefits cannot be exhausted and then end. Benefits will be paid as long as there is an entitled survivor. For instance, if a young worker who is insured under social security dies there is a $255 lump sum payable and the minor children can receive monthly benefits up to age 19 if they remain full time high school students.

The widow(er) can potentially receive benefits until the youngest child attains age 16. If a child becomes totally disabled prior to age 22 he or she may be eligible for continued benefits as a disabled adult child for his or her entire life. The widow(er) when older could receive a widow(er)'s benefit at age 60 and as early as 50 if he or she becomes disabled. These are all possible as types of survivor benefits so you can see that there is not a total limit payable as long as there are entitled survivors.

Q. When I first reached age 65 I did not sign up for Part B (Medical) of Medicare. Can I do that now?

A. Yes, you can. Each year social security has a general enrollment period from January through March for people to sign up for Part B of Medicare if they did not originally sign up for it. Part B is the Medicare section involving payment of doctor's bills. The general enrollment period only involves people who originally turned down Part B and who now want it. It does not concern those just approaching age 65 or those already having Part B. For more information, contact your local social security office. In Grand Forks the phone number is (701) 772-5517; in Grafton (701) 352-0656.

Q. How much is paid out to social security each month by employer and employee? Warroad, MN

A. The "earnings base" is the maximum amount of earnings on which social security taxes are paid. In 1986 the earnings base is $42,000. In 1987 the maximum earnings taxable will be $43,800. Nationwide about 8.5 million workers, their employers and the self-employed who earn more than $42,000 will be affected by the higher earnings base. Individual monthly amounts of tax paid depend on a person's earnings.

The tax rates are not changing from 1986 to 1987. They will still be 7.15 per cent each for employees and employers and 12.3 per cent for the self-employed.

EDITORIAL OPINION

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Worth Found Incomparable

Following editorial is from the Arizona Republic:

There has been no end to the theoretical wranglings over the idea of comparable worth, i.e., equal pay for different jobs judged to be comparable.

The concept is based on the assumption that different jobs can be evaluated as to their comparableness with a reasonable degree of scientific precision and objectivity. Advocates of the idea are certain it can be done.

Well, theories aside, the idea doesn't appear to work in the real world. Richard Burr, a research analyst at the Center for the Study of American Business of Washington University conducted a study, summarized in the current issue of "Policy Review", to see if real comparable worth programs currently being employed in 13 states are truly comparable.

Burr discovered what critics of comparable worth have long known theoretically — the whole idea of establishing the equal worth of different jobs is arbitrary and subjective. Vast discrepancies exist between states in determining the relative worth of even the same jobs.

For example, a secretary would be ranked first among three different jobs in Washington and Iowa, but last in Minnesota and Vermont. A data entry operator would place first in Minnesota but third in Iowa, while Vermont and Washington would rank the job second.

In Minnesota a registered nurse, a chemist and a social worker are judged comparable, and would be paid the same. In Iowa, however, the nurse would be paid 29 per cent more than the social worker, who in turn is worth 11 per cent more than the chemist. A photographer is valued twice as highly in Vermont as in Iowa, but is worth 25 per cent more in neighboring Minnesota.

Racial and gender discrimination apparently have given way to geographic discrimination. People are now to be paid not for what they do, but for where they live.

The assigning of job "values," "scores," "factors" and "ratings" is purely arbitrary. The 13 states cannot even agree as to how much weight different job characteristics such as knowledge, skills, contacts, leadership, education, physical demands, etc., should be given. In Maine, job evaluators are given instruction on how to rate jobs for their comparable worth, and then are told the final decision is based on how the evaluator "feels" about the strength or weakness of each job characteristic.

Burr's study shows comparable worth is conceptually flawed, and is riddled with bias and arbitrariness. Advocates argue the way out of the mess is to have a nationwide, federally standardized comparable worth system. That would solve the problem of discrepancies among states, but it would be just as arbitrary in determining the relative value of jobs.

Jobs do not have intrinsic worth. Worth is determined by what the market will bear, what people are willing to pay someone to type, lay bricks, drive a truck or play professional basketball.

Comparable worth is a direct assault on the free market in favor of a centrally planned economy. Only a free market can determine the value of goods, services and wages, not whimsical committees of government bureaucrats.

Don't Raise Taxes . . . Cut Spending

Following comments are by Cesar V. Conda, tax economist with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, DC:

Conventional wisdom in Congress is that the 1981 tax cuts are the source of today's $200 billion federal budget deficit. Consequently, the conventional "solution" is to raise taxes and close the gap between revenues and spending. But, in this case, an examination of the facts shows that conventional wisdom is nothing but a smokescreen to hide Congress's failure to control public spending.

During the late 1970s, rising marginal tax rates on personal income reduced the incentive for individuals to work, save and invest. High inflation and inadequate capital cost recovery allowances for investment in plant and equipment reduced the incentive for businesses to reinvest. As a consequence, economic growth ground to a halt.

The 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Act dramatically reduced taxes on individuals and businesses. By increasing the after-tax return from productive economic activity, the tax cut set in motion a dramatic improvement in the U.S. economy, paving the way for the creation of almost 11 million new jobs and an increase — not a decrease — in total tax receipts.

In 1981, the federal government collected $600 billion in taxes; this year it will collect $777 billion. Today's tax revenues are 18.6 per cent of the nation's gross national product, a level consistent with most times in recent history and slightly higher than the average of the past 25 years. There have been times, such as during the 1969 tax surcharge of the Johnson administration, when revenues climbed noticeably above their historic average. During the late 1970s, tax revenues rose again as the combination of high inflation and steep marginal tax rates — commonly referred to as "bracket creep" — pushed tax revenues to over 20 per cent of GNP in 1981. The 1981 tax cuts helped put a halt to bracket creep and returned the tax burden to it's historic levels.

However, much of the 1981 tax cut already has disappeared because of tax increases in the intervening years. These include the 1977 Social Security tax rate increase which took affect over 1981, the 1982 tax increase bill, the 1983 Social Security amendments, the 1983 gasoline tax increase and the 1984 tax increase bill. Consequently, of the $1,488 billion tax cut for fiscal years 1981 through 1989, only $12 billion remains.

This can lead only to one conclusion: excessive federal spending, not tax cuts, is the source of today's deficits. In 1981, the federal government spent $678 billion. This year, the government will spend just over $1 trillion. Federal spending as a percentage of the GNP is far above historic levels. It was 23.8 per cent of GNP in 1984 and 24 per cent in 1985. This compares to the 20 per cent average from 1964 to 1979.

The only solution for the budget deficit is to reduce federal expenditures and this year Congress finally has taken some positive steps toward fiscal responsibility. The spending restraints imposed by the Grumm-Rudman-Hollings budget-cutting law has forced Congress to reduce spending growth. Consequently, federal spending has fallen slightly to 23.7 per cent of GNP.

Congress must continue to pursue prudent spending restraint in order to reduce the deficit and eventually balance the federal budget. Of key importance in this task is maintaining a properous economy. Raising marginal tax rates — as some in Congress has recently suggested — would result in a return to the economic malaise of the late 1970s and exacerbate the deficit problem.

As Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N-Y, recently put it, "A tax increase would sap economic vitality, erode the tax base and allow Congress to spend more." Although a serious problem, the budget deficit is manageable and does not warrant the current hysteria. It certainly should not be managed by raising taxes.

Borrowed Nonsense

"The entire emphasis on American agriculture has been on sending raw grain overseas, but that policy is as dead as dinosaurs. Argentina, Canada, Brazil, France, China, India — everybody's competing with us in major grains and we're losing our share of the market. Let's stop pretending we're going to get back to where we were five or 10 years ago and concentrate on exporting higher value products."

Tidbits From Thief River Falls THE TIMES

Excerpts from the December 3, 1936 Times, rewritten by Sharon LaCoursiere.

School days, school days, dear old golden rule days. The following column, "Early School Days Here," was another in the Red River Valley History series by Wm. V. Working. He began the story with this comment:

"We believe the Times readers will find the following description of the school here in about 1890 and school days of that period, written by Homer F. Mussey interesting. The article was written about 21 years ago."

If the article was interesting to readers of the 1936 Times, it should be even more interesting reading today, right? Here is Mr. Mussey's story:

"The school building faced the south and was set back from the street about 60 feet. It was a typical old-style school and its exterior appearance was not particularly inviting. When it was first erected it might have been painted a blueish gray, but the weather of several seasons had marred its beauty and dulled and faded the color of the paint.

"Teacher's desk stood at the north end of the room. Rows of double seats accomodated the scholars ad 'pals' sat together. Each desk was marked with the initials of former occupants, either scratched in the varnish or cut with a jack-knife deep into the wood.

"When the cold weather set in the school board provided a large box stove for heating purposes. The girls took turns cleaning the school room while the boys brought in the wood and tended the fire.

"At the time the building was erected this was district No. 107. Carl Kretzschmar was chairman of the board; Charles Robbecke was secretary and W. W. Gibbs treasurer. Miss Wallin, who had the distinction of teaching a term of school in what now is Thief River Falls in 1883, had been engaged as an instructor in 1890, continuing in educational work here until April, 1902, when deafness made it necessary for her to relinquish the textbook for a more suitable employment.

"The school board of distrcit No. 107 in 1891 faced problems no less grave than does the Board of Education of district No. 18 today. The enrollment of the school was steadily increasing and on June 13, 1892, it was decided to call a special meeting of the voters to discuss the feasibility of securing a site and erecting a school building. By this time two rooms could not accommodate the enrollment and the overflow was handled in the building occupied by the Northwestern hotel on LaBree Street north.

"The site of the present Central school was purchased on June 17, 1893 — just a year after the agitation was started. The consideration for the 12 lots was $1,240. Near the close of the school year in 1892, there were 124 pupils in actual attendance, this showing the rapid increase that made imperative increased accomodations.

"Pupils were required to purchase their books and in many homes may be found the textbooks used 25 years ago. Some even have retained the old slates that now have been superseded by paper and pencil, the latter being less noisy and more sanitary. Well remembered is the first catastrophe of school days — the broken slate resulting from a fall to the floor through careless handling.

"During the period in which the little old school house was occupied, the Indians, then very numerous in this section, made their headquarters at the Aos store and the school children were often late on account of a too deep interest in the redskins.

"Events of th school year which still remain vivid in the minds of the pupils were the occasional public entertainments given in the village hall and participated in by young and old. Those were gala nights for the children who for weeks previous had studied and practiced for the 'big night.' Dialogues and recitations with a few songs comprised the programs which were generally liberally attended and applauded.

"Shortly after the purchase of the site for the Central school, residents of the East Side, then known as Red Lake Rapids, instituted a movement which resulted in the organization of school district No. 57. The organization being perfected, school was held in whatever rooms were available — the Proctor residence at the corner of Bridge street and St. Paul avenue where the Melgaard residence now stands, and a house about two blocks farther south on St. Paul avenue which has since been remodeled or removed.

Bear in mind that these are school memories from about 71 years ago. Too bad we can't bring back the old school house for a day, just to show the kids of today what they're missing, especially on a minus 20 degree day in January — and have them walk that mile or two there and back.

New Look For Bagley

Bagley — The Bagley court house has had a face lift, making it look nicer and conserving energy too. All windows were replaced with smaller, tripple-glazed vinyl frames which are maintenance-free, new front and back doors have aluminum frames and insulated glass, and the outside of the building was insulated with a bonding of four inches of rigid insulation and then an acrylic coat of dry-vit, which will never have to be painted again. Architect for the project was Tom Jones of Clearbrook. The new, cream-colored exterior with dark windows and lines has elicited "nothing but compliments" said county commissioner Pike Jones.

Good Samaritan Grief

Baudette — A Baudette area woman was injured and two cars damaged in a crash west of Baudette November 19. John Charlton of Williams stopped to aid the driver of a car that went into the ditch along highway 11. While his car was parked alongside of the highway, it was struck by a car driven by Rebecca Burnett of Baudette. Charlton's 1984 Ford sustained about $2,000 in damages, as did the 1984 Honda driven by Burnett. Burnett was held overnight at the Baudette hospital. The highway was icy at the time of the accident.

Only $28,500 To Go

Badger — The Badger Booster club donated $1,500 as the first gift toward the $30,000 needed for a new wooden gymnasium floor at the Badger school. The committee is seeking community support from local organizations and businesses.

Some Great White Hunter!

Roosevelt — A pet fawn of the residents of the city of Roosevelt did not make it through the deer hunting season, in spite of efforts by the citizens to keep him from harm. The fawn, named CoCo, was presumed to have been shot in the front yard of a rural Roosevelt home after visiting there about 11 p.m. last week. Upon hearing a gunshot, residents of the home rushed out to see a car disappearing down the road. Blood was found in the driveway of the home, and CoCo's blood-stained blaze orange collar was found later, with no trace of CoCo. The collar was specially made for the deer by a local upholstery shop to warn hunters that he was a pet.

Vocal Native Son

Warren — Joe Steffan, midshipman at the Annapolis Naval academy, will sing the national anthem at the Army-Navy football game to be aired on CBS December 6 at 1 p.m. He is a 1983 graduate of Warren high school.

Holiday Workshop

Bagley — A Holiday Workshop will be presented December 2 at 9 a.m. at the Bagley American Legion hall, sponsored by Extension Home Council. Program highlights include "Norwegian Heirlooms," "Holiday Specials," "Holiday Magic Mix," and "Create Your Own Fantasies." There will be a noon luncheon, bake sale, entertainment by the vocal department of the Bagley high school and door prizes.

Trip, Trip, Trip

Hallock — You've heard of the Three Billy Goats Gruff and the bridge, right? How about the Three Little Deer and the bridge? Well, Harold Anderson, Hallock pharmacist, is a firm believer in them. On his way to Grand Forks last weekend, he encountered the three little deer on the Golden Grain Bridge over the Red River on Highway 75. First one, then another, then another deer paraded over the bridge in front of his car — trip, trip, trip — forcing him to screech to a sudden halt three times. And then each one leapt gracefully over the side of the bride (to visit the troll beneath, perhaps?). Anderson said he had to brake very carefully in order to avoid a collision, as the roadway was covered with ice. As he returned home over the bridge later that night, he spied the three deer together on the river below (plotting their next adventure, no doubt).

Bemidji Doctor Fined

Bemidji — An independent practitioner in Bemidji has been fined $6,000 by the Minnesota Board of Medical Examiners for prescribing appetite reducing tablets, codeine, valium and phenobarbital for purposes other than those stated under federal and state law. Dr. Hartvig B. Roholt said the charges are correct and he plans to fulfill all disciplinary requirements of the board.

Ah, More Trip, Trip, Trip

Warren — The city of Warren will have a new bridge next year on Central Street over the Snake River. The old bridge has been declared unsafe for heavy traffic and fire and garbage trucks have been unable to use it.

10-Month Reprieve

Fertile — In the ongoing saga of the Polk County Emergency Medical Ambulance Services (EMS), the Fertile Journal reports that the Polk county board of commissioners has voted a 10-month reprieve for EMS, during which time they will make full payments per month to subsidize the service. In those 10 months, EMS must find a way to subsidize itself or go out of business. The Journal also reported the naming of paramedic and co-founder of EMS, Steve Belau, one of the recipients of the Fertile Community club's Citizen of the Year award.

Trap, Trap, Trap

Red Lake Falls — A father and son trapping team from Red Lake Falls has 96 years of trapping experience together. Lloyd and Bob Phillon are the fourth and fifth generations of trappers in their family. Within a radius of 35 miles of Red Lake Falls, they have trapped fox, beaver, mink, weasel, gophers, muskrats, coyotes, and even a lynx.
